Gulf Man Wrote Letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Gulf Oil Corp. executive said today he helped draft a Canadian government request that Gulf participate in an international uranium-price-setting cartel.

The testimony by L. T. Gregg to a House of Representatives investigations subcommittee appeared to undermine Gulf's contention that it was compelled to join the cartel by Canadian officials.

At issue is a January, 1974, letter by a top Canadian energy official to N. M. Ediger, manager of Gulf's Canadian uranium-marketing subsidiary, claiming "it is deemed to be in the public interest" for Gregg to become an active member of the cartel's operations committee.

Gregg, then manager for uranium sales for the subsidiary, said the letter was drafted by Ediger and himself.

The letter was signed by G. M. MacNabb, senior assistant Canadian deputy minister for energy, mines and resources.

Gulf officials testified before the subcommittee Thursday that the firm joined the cartel only because it was forced to by the Canadian government. The officials also denied that this involvement violated any United States anti-trust laws.

Gregg said that his superiors at Gulf were sensitive about the anti-trust issue and that "I would not, as a practice, talk about club activities when I was in the United States."

He said that if asked about activities of foreign uranium producers he would deny knowing anything about the arrangement.

Subcommittee chairman John Moss (Dem. Calif.) said the subcommittee may vote to ask the justice department to investigate whether Gulf violated U.S. anti-trust laws.

Gregg, testifying under supeona, said that he served on the cartel's "operating committee" for the first four months of 1974 and attended various cartel meetings.

Gregg said the cartel had a quota system so that a percentage of the international market was guaranteed by the members — Canada, Australia, government-controlled production company's in South Africa and France, and an international firm called RTZ based in Britain.

"There was a set of minimum prices," he said, for each cartel member to use in selling uranium, and the members would take turns serving as the leading bidder for new business.

As Gregg described it, "the leader" had to bid at the minimum price level or above and the system served to raise prices repeatedly.

Gregg said the cartel's activities were co-ordinated by a "secretariat" office in Paris.

8 Injured In Calgary Shooting

CALGARY (CP) — Two policemen were among eight persons taken to hospital following a wild shooting spree Thursday night in a west-end shopping centre.

Constable R. F. McLeary was shot in his left leg and Constable Duane Brown had shotgun pellets in the neck, but neither was in serious condition, a police department official said today.

Names of the other six wounded — taken to three separate hospitals — were withheld. Names were not released but police said two of the wounded were young persons.

A suspect also was wounded and taken into custody.

Police said that about 8:40 p.m. a man left a house near the Westbrook shopping centre carrying two guns.

They said the man shot one person in a parking lot after he left the house and shot more persons as he approached the shopping centre.

It was the second shooting incident in the city in the last three weeks in which policemen were wounded.

Prevue STUDENT CASHES IN

Prevue Payoff Puzzle perseverance and perspicacity have been rewarded with a $300 cash prize for University of Victoria linguistics student Adrian Leslie, of 12-4391 Torquay Drive.

Leslie said Thursday he intends to put the money toward his living expenses while completing a doctoral program at UVic, where he is developing grammars for previously unwritten native languages, particularly the Cowichan language.

Leslie, 29, has been a regular Prevue competitor since January but the prize has eluded him until now.

He said he submitted 64 entries a week ago, but this week he submitted only four and won.

He enjoys doing the puzzles because it "really sharpens the intuition," he said.

'Illegal' $25,000 Daily For Computer Consultants

DEAD at 65 from cancer is Werner von Braun, the German - born scientist whose rockets rained terror on London and sent Americans to the moon. See story on Page 22.

The NDP charged Thursday that the government is illegally spending more than $25,000 a day for up to 70 consultants on computer services.

The charge came in a motion to set aside the normal business of the legislature to debate the alleged unauthorized spending on development of the proposed B.C. Systems Corp., a Crown corporation intended to take over the government's computing services.

A bill to establish the corporation was introduced last April 1 but has not yet been debated.

Norm Levi (NDP-Vancouver-Burrard) said in his motion that the government is breaching the Audit Act by paying consultants up to $600 each a day without legislative authority to make the expenditures.

"The daily cost exceeds $25,000 for the hiring of as many as 70 computer consultants each receiving a per diem salary ranging between $350 and $425 plus full office and living expenses," Levi told the legislature.

Speaker Ed Smith ruled the motion out of order on several grounds, including the fact that it was argumentative and the facts contained in the motion could be disputed.

During question period, before Levi introduced his motion, NDP members pressed the Social Credit government for detailed information on their allegations but Finance Minister Evan Wolfe took all questions as notice, meaning he would possibly answer at a later date.

Wolfe later told reporters there were a total of 27 consultants receiving between $80 and $384 each daily plus expenses of $45 to $50 for those from outside Victoria.

The expenditures were approved earlier by the legislature and come from a contingency fund of $3.5 million for computer and consulting services, Wolfe said, adding other funds are available from ministries using computers.

AD HOC HANDOUTS END

14% Cash Boost To Municipalities

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Long-awaited legislation guaranteeing municipalities a fixed share of provincial government income was introduced today by Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

"The days of ad hoc handouts to municipalities are over," Curtis said in introducing the Revenue Sharing Act.

The revenue sharing formula, part of the Social Credit campaign platform in the last election, will mean an increase of about 14 per cent in money given to municipalities and regional districts, Curtis said. It will replace as of April 1, 1978, the current system of a $34 per capita grant to local governments.

Curus said per capita grants this fiscal year will total about $119 million.

Under the new formula next year, local governments will get about $140 million.

The bill provides a fixed formula for the calculation of provincial grants to municipalities and means local governments will no longer have to wait each year for the introduction of the provincial budget to find out if there has been any change in the per-capita grant.

The legislation was welcomed by Union of B.C. Municipalities president Mayor Pat Duke, of Lumby.

Duke said he had not had time to study the dollar implications of the legislation but is happy the government has finally replaced the per capita system with a fixed formula.

"We are now going to know in advance what money we can budget," Duke said.

"We were continually going to the provincial government for ad hoc grants and a change of government or even a change of ministers could wipe them out.

"I think the UBCM will welcome it," he said.

Money for municipalities under the new formula comes from three sources:

The dollar value of one personal income tax point; the dollar value of one corporate income tax point and 6 per cent of provincial government revenue generated in B.C. from renewable resources, non-renewable resources and sales tax.

(A tax point equals 1 per cent of all taxes, both federal and provincial, raised in B.C.)

"Simply stated, this means that local governments will automatically receive about six cents of every economy-generated dollar entering the

10% LEEWAY TO BUY-B.C.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe has doubled the preference given to B.C. — manufactured goods bought by the provincial government as part of a B.C.-first campaign.

Wolfe said the move is designed to encourage municipalities, school boards, regional districts, universities, hospitals and other public agencies to make every effort to buy B.C.-made supplies whenever possible.

The move means any B.C.-manufactured article can be 10 per cent higher in cost than a non-B.C.-made article, and still be considered for purchase as an equal bidder.

Previous policy allowed only a five per cent special preference leeway for B.C. goods.

For the first time, a price preference will be given to Canadian manufacturers outside B.C. up to a maximum of five per cent, when B.C. manufacturers cannot supply the goods.

Wolfe said he estimates the amount of purchasing done by all public agencies in B.C. to be about $1.5 billion, including about $150 million by the provincial government itself.

Wolfe said about 80 per cent of the goods purchased by the provincial government are now B.C.-made, but hopes the new 10 per cent preference policy will increase that to 95 per cent.

The preference policy will not be imposed on other public agencies, but Wolfe said word of the move will be sent to all those agencies, so they can co-operate if they choose.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A small earthquake centred near Port Townsend, gently rocked the Puget Sound and south Vancouver Island area at 11:16 p.m. Thursday. The quake measured 3.5 on the Richter Scale. An even smaller aftershock followed about two hours later.

Raid 'Mistake' By RCMP—Fox

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Francis Fox blamed the RCMP today for making mistakes in joining an illegal raid in Montreal in 1972 and for recommending that a complaint about the raid not be answered by Jean-Pierre Goyer, solicitor-general at the time.

Fox told the Commons the government "seriously considered" creating a royal commission in 1976 after a Mountie on trial on another charge said he had taken part in the police break-in into the offices of a left-wing Montreal news agency.

Only "repeated and unequivocal assurances" from the RCMP that the incident was "exceptional and isolated" changed the government's mind.

Fox said the incident raises doubts about a situation in which the RCMP investigate and handle complaints made against them.

He said he will introduce legislation later this year setting out methods of handling public complaints against the RCMP "in an independent and objective manner."

RCMP Chief Supt. Donald Cobb and senior officers of the Quebec provincial and Montreal police forces were given unconditional discharges Thursday after pleading guilty May 26 to carrying out a raid without a warrant. Cobb, suspended without pay after the guilty plea, was at once reinstated. The discharge means he will have no criminal record.

The Quebec government has initiated an inquiry into the incident and Fox said he and the RCMP will co-operate fully.

He said the federal government had been committed to re-examine the matter once court action in Montreal had run its course.

The raid took place Oct. 6, 1972, when the combined anti-terrorist squad (CATS), made up of members from the three police forces, searched employees offices of l'Agence de Presse Libre du Quebec, le Mouvement pour la defense des prisonniers politiques du Quebec, and la Co-operative des demenageurs du 1er Mai.

"Neither RCMP headquarters in Ottawa, nor the commanding officer of C Division in Montreal, nor (Goyer), had been told of the search and seizure of documents . . . prior to the operation being carried out," Fox said.

He said he spoke personally to Goyer, former RCMP commissioner W. L. Higgitt, and former RCMP security service director John Starnes and was assured of this. Files bore it out, he added.

$2.2M PLAN TO SAVE ENERGY

The Provincial government Thursday launched a $2.2 million program to conserve energy.

Energy Minister Jack Davis said the three-year program, to be directed by the B.C. Energy Commission, will help industry, government institutions, homeowners and small businessmen find ways of saving energy.

"The BCEC is also being asked to look at renewable sources of supply such as solar energy, wind energy and wood wastes in order to reduce our consumption of oil and natural gas," Davis said.

"Demonstration projects will be encouraged by the commission and three — heat pumps, solar heating for homes and use of wood wastes — will be launched shortly."

NDU Bill Decertifies Faculty

The Notre Dame University of Nelson Act, introduced to the legislature Thursday by Education Minister Pat McGeer, provides for the decertification of the university faculty association retroactive to May 30.

The bill says the government and university will not be "liable for losses, damages or claims" resulting from this action.

The collective agreement for the faculty association of NDU (FANDU) is terminated retroactive to May 30, affecting about 20 staff members. The association is a local of the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees.

McGeer said later in an interview that NDU's current faculty would no longer have a case for claiming any new jobs at the David Thompson University centre.

A spokesman for the B.C. Federation of Labor said today the labor body is completely and totally opposed to the decertification move as it has been to the government's handling of the NDU matter.

Clamps on Post-AIB Rollback Gains

OTTAWA (CP) — The government intends to amend the anti-inflation law to stop unions and companies, which have had wage and price increases rolled back, regaining their losses after controls end, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

Macdonald told reporters outside the Commons it was the intention of the government to stop the use of AIB clauses in contracts which provide that employees can make up the difference between negotiated pay increases and those allowed by the Anti-Inflation Board and the administrator.

Prices restrained by the board and the administrator also would be affected, Macdonald said.

Macdonald made the announcement as the Commons began a special three-day debate on a Conservative motion calling for an end to the program June 30. The program now is due to expire Dec. 31, 1978.

Conservative and NDP spokesmen said the controls program should be ended because it treats different groups inequitably and is hurting the economy.

The change proposed by Macdonald would follow the recommendations of both anti-inflation administrator Donald Tansley and board officials.

Macdonald said the problem was that in some contracts, when the program ends, pay increases would immediately go to the large amounts previously disallowed under the program.

"We feel that would be unfair to unions which have accepted rulings of the board or administrator," he said.

Macdonald said the use of AIB clauses could be extensive but he was not more specific.

He said there was uncertainty about the legal position of restraints once controls were removed and collective agreements ceased to be subject to mandatory restraint.

Earlier, the opposition said in debate that the controls had not effectively controlled inflation. The motion probably will be defeated because of the Liberal majority in the Commons.

Sinclair Stevens, the Conservative finance critic, said it was up to Macdonald to justify the continuation of the program.

S.A. Police Open Fire on Black Crowds

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Police opened fire today on crowds of blacks in two townships near the southern coastal city of Port Elizabeth.

The divisional commissioner of police in the Eastern Cape, Brig. J. Hugo, said police were forced to fire after large crowds of stone-throwing blacks set fire to several buildings in the townships of Kabah and Kwanobuhle.

He could not say if anyone had been injured.

Five persons were wounded when police opened fire in Kabah on Thursday night and two blacks died in fires in the township.

Reporters were refused permission to enter Kabah today but smoke could be seen rising from burning buildings some distance away.

The second day of violence in Kabah came as the potential trouble spot of Soweto on the outskirts of Johannesburg remained relatively calm.

However, police, who expected further violence later in the day because of growing tension, used tear gas in the township early today to quell a threatened disturbance.

Soweto Police Chief Brig. Gen. Jan Visser said tear gas was fired at a small group of black youths who stoned a police car.

MOORE APPEALS JAIL SENTENCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Courtenay Mayor William Moore, 53, has been granted $1,000 bail in B.C. appeal court pending appeal against his conviction in Nanaimo and three months sentence for obstructing justice.

Moore was convicted by a county court jury on the charge, which arose from an impaired driving trial year in Courtenay in which Moore was fined $500.

County court Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake also fined Moore $1,000.

In notices of appeal against conviction and sentence filed by lawyer Brian Coleman, Moore, mayor of Courtehay for 18 years, alleges the jury's verdict was perverse and that the sentence imposed was excessively harsh.

The mayor said in an interview Thursday that he is awaiting advice from his lawyer on whether to take a leave of absence or carry on as usual with his public duties while appealing the conviction.

Hotel Hirings Will Continue

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada Manpower said today it will continue to tell prospective workers about possible job opportunities at the strike-bound Hotel Vancouver.

The strike entered its eighth day as 475 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Union remained off the job to support wage demands.

Canada Manpower had been criticized by the union earlier this week for instructing workers about job opportunities at the hotel.

The B.C. Federation of Labor slapped a "hot" declaration on the hotel last Friday.

"We have very precise instructions in the area of our conduct in industrial disputes," said Gordon E. Hubley, acting director general for manpower and immigration's B.C. region. "The department must maintain a position of neutrality.

"We are obliged to accept job orders from the employer and tell our unemployed clients about the job opportunities."

The hotel has been attempting to maintain full service through the use of management personnel and part-time help.

The labor federation sent a telegram Thursday to federal Manpower Minister Budd Collen saying it is deeply disturbed that Manbpower offices are sending people to work behind the picket line.

Apology Vetoed

VANCOUVER (CP) — CBC Television refused Thursday night to make a prime-time apology for its recent program on organized crime as demanded by the lawyer for three Vancouver companies.

The apology was demanded Wednesday by lawyer Al Anderson who was acting for the Asia Gardens and Kingsland Restaurants and Wonderview Optical Industries of Canada Ltd.

"There isn't any apology tonight," a CBC spokesman said Thursday. "If we thought an apology was necessary, we wouldn't have put the program on the air."

YARDS STAY

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government tried to reassure football enthusiasts Thursday that quarterbacks will not be forced to run in metres when they make a touchdown.

Gus MacFarlane, Liberal party whip and member for Hamilton Mountain, said the game of football will be excluded from metric conversion legislation he was debating in the Commons.

If yards became metres, the game would have to switch to four downs from three downs. Any move to four downs would make it appear that Canada was adopting American football, where a team has four downs, said the rotund MacFarlane, a former football coach.

provincial treasury," said Curtis.

The minister said the legislation ensures that when provincial revenues increase because of economic growth, local government revenue will increase proportionately.

"Once revenue sharing gets going, each municipality and regional district will receive accurate information about its provincial grants in plenty of time for annual budget preparation," Curtis said.

The initial reaction of Ald. Ian Cass, chairman of Saanich's finance committee, was one of reservation.

He said the new formula appears to tie in the revenues to be given to municipalities to the economic state of the province rather than acknowledge the need for increased municipal aid.

"It appears that we won't necessarily get a bigger piece of the action," he said. "Rather, we'll get a bigger share if the economy expands."

Cass said he has been told that if the new formula had been implemented this year, because of the state of the economy, municipalities would have received much the same amount as under the old formula.

"The inequalities of the provincial government's payments on their properties in Saanich is of far greater significance," Cass said. "That's of far greater significance that appears possible in this formula."

He said he would be better able to assess the situation after he has time to review in detail the implications with the municipal staff.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum, while agreeing revenues would have been much the same this year under the new formula, sees it as a move in the right direction.

"As the years go on and the economy of the province increases we will get our share of it," he said. "Instead of guessing what municipalities would get from the per capita grant they will know and be able to plan."

Victoria Ald. Bill Tindall said he would have liked to see some reference to municipalities' sharing the hotel tax, which in Victoria would amount to a "significant" source of revenue.

the weather

Under the influence of a ridge of high pressure lying across southern forecast districts the weather will continue mainly sunny over southern B.C. except along the west coast of Vancouver Island where extensive cloud will prevail on both days. A weak frontal system approaching the north coast will result in a little precipitation which will gradually spread over northern coastal regions across northern Vancouver Island on Saturday. Meanwhile bands of cloud will move over the central and northern Interior today and Saturday.

SEMI-DWARF
FRUIT TREES for FATHER
A special purchase has made it possible for Bill Bayley to bring you fruit trees in the summer. All trees are planted in 5-gal. containers, healthy and guaranteed to grow. Bill suggests you leave the trees in the container, plant cohtainer and all in the ground until approximately November (dormant season) then remove container, and water well.
(Please note that some trees need a pollinator so you may have to buy two to get better production).

CHERRIES
VAN — Fruit resembles Bing, very meaty, need pollinizing 6.95
LAMBERT — Fruit large, firm flesh, sweet flavour, Bill's favorite. Needs pollinizing 6.95
PEACHES
VETERAN — Elberta-type peach. Free-stone, good canner. 6.95
RED HAVEN — Yellow-fleshed medium sized fruit. Excellent for either dessert or canning 6.95
FAIR HAVEN — As nice as Red Haven, matures earlier 6.95
NECTARINES
A most delicious fruit, similar to peaches, smooth skin and very aromatic. Treat nectarines same as peaches 6.95
APPLES
RED DELICIOUS — Very nice eating apple. Children love them 5.95
Summered MAC'S — Medium size, bright red fruit. Tart until mature. Excellent for sauce and pies, fine for eating when ripe 5.95
PRUNES
EARLY ITALIAN PRUNE — Resembles Italian Prune and is two weeks earlier. A nice prune 6.95
PLUMS
LAREDO PLUM — A real juicy, firm tasting plum 6.95

A Man's Beer Is a Sacred Thing

PORT MOODY (CP) When you take a man's beer from him in Port Moody it can turn out like a grade B western.

A bouncer in the Port Moody Inn saw a man was walking around the pub with a glass of beer and he asked him to sit down. When the man refused, the bouncer took away the beer.

The man then pulled a pistol from his cowboy boot and pointed it at the bouncer. The bouncer returned the beer.

The man sat down and gave the pistol to a friend, who slipped it in his own cowboy boot.

The bouncer then called police, who arrived on the scene and arrested the "cowboys."

When they left the pub with their captives, the officers saw another beer parlor patron letting the air out of their tires.

"Here we are," they replied. And they arrested the man for drunkenness.

Charged with carrying a concealed weapon, pointing a weapon at a person, unlawful possession of a restricted weapon and possession of a stolen weapon are Craig Bradley Otto, 19, of no fixed address, and Richard Steven Moffatt, 26, of Port Coquitlam.

The tire deflater spent the night in the drunk tank suffering from a headache and acute embarrassment.

PET ROCKS enjoyed a brief fashion so why not pet fish? Times photographer John McKay caught elderly resident of Chinatown enjoying stroll in the sunshine on Belleville. Suspicion is, however, that he was just stringing fish along and that it ended up as a tasty supper.

Massive UIC Fraud Charged

MONTREAL (CP) — Nine former prisoners of Bordeaux Jail are executing a scheme which could defraud the Unemployment Insurance Commission of as much as $100 million according to the Montreal Star.

Quoting a "well-placed underworld informant," the newspaper says the scheme was planned while the nine were serving short sentences a year ago, most of them for fraud, and was put into operation last summer.

A commission spokesman said that the scheme while not impossible, was unlikely.

Patrick Gaudreau, Quebec UIC information director said a fraud of that magnitude would involve too many people and too much time.

The Star says the scheme is concentrated mainly in Quebec and British Columbia, but has spread to other areas across Canada, including Calgary.

More than 1,000 false claims are being filed every week, the newspaper says, but adds that it has been impossible to determine how much money the former prisoners have taken in.

The Star says the men set up officially-registered companies which function as fronts for the operation.

Names of employees with stable jobs are obtained from credit information bureaus and false claims are then filed in the name of these employees as if they had been hired and laid off by the front companies.

Checks are made weekly to insure that the employees are still legitimately employed so that duplicate claims are not filed.

Britons Carry Idi Through Kampala

NAIROBI (UPI) — A group of 19 Britons carried Ugandan President Idi Amin shoulder high through the streets of Kampala Thursday.

Amin described the latest in a long series of bizarre spectacles in a speech on Uganda's budget day, which was broadcast by Radio Uganda.

"I think you have heard that I was carried ... by 19 people (Britons) who managed to carry me from 11½ miles and they are very tired," Amin told the budget meeting.

Although he gave no further details, Radio Uganda earlier said the Britons had offered to carry him 25 miles shoulder-high through Kampala to demonstate their "solidarity" with his regime.

SENATE FOILS CUBA TRADING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dealing President Carter's foreign policy a double blow, the U.S. Senate has refused to support administration plans for South Korean troop withdrawal and a partial lifting of the trade embargo against Cuba.

The Senate, working late into the night Thursday, also rejected a Republican proposal to demand key concessions from Cuba as the price of restoring full diplomatic recognition.

Carter wants to withdraw about 33,000 ground troops from South Korea within five years.

We're Waiting, Hugh

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis should make a statement in the legislature today explaining how the government is planning to close the loophole in the Strata Titles Act that now is allowing developers to circumvent municipal zoning bylaws. He should also make it clear that the necessary legislative changes will be retroactive to today so that the loophole will immediately become useless to the developers.

Since problems with the loophole arose in Central Saanich last week, Curtis has said only that legislative change will be forthcoming soon. That isn't good enough. All such a statement does is encourage unscrupulous persons to use the loophole as much as possible as quickly as possible, before it is closed.

The outrageous remarks of developer Howie McDiarmid to Central Saanich council this week make it only too clear that the public cannot rely on the responsibility or morality of developers to ensure the loophole is not abused until action is taken. McDiarmid told the council he had indeed used the loophole because he did not consider the zoning bylaw governing his land provided for the best use of that land. He wants to subdivide the land into two-acre parcels (each to sell for $70,000) but the zoning bylaw specified a minimum lot size of 10 acres.

McDiarmid may or may not be right about the best land use for the area. However, if he disagrees with provisions of the zoning bylaw the moral and proper thing for hm to do is to convince the duly-elected officials to change the bylaw, not to try to find legal technicalities to get around it. It is actions like his that give all developers a bad name.

Since the developers cannot be trusted to act properly, the government must take immediate action. Every day's delay is another piece of land carved up against the wishes of local residents and elected politicians.

The Envelope Please

Mr. Chairman and members, the Society for the Elimination of Abuse to the Language reports that the current fiscal year has been a bad one for the furtherance of the society's aims, particularly in the area of abolition of useless alphabetization and egregious acronyms.

The provincial government, particularly, has been a terrible offender in this regard.

Only the other day the B.C. minister of municipal affairs was heard referring proudly to a safer program. It was not a policy to make us all wear our rubbers in the rain, or to leave the car in the garage after two ginger beers. He was speaking acronymically of Shelter Aid For Elderly Renters.

That is a fairly intelligible phrase, once the initials are decoded. But it is a rare example of the beast: most require double deciphering. GAIN, for example, is Guaranteed Available Income for Need — an ungainly contortion which to the unversed is just as puzzling as the short form.

An example of another subspecies is PLAP, a euphonious little bit which trickles off the tongue like baby upsetting his pablum. It means Provincial Learning Assessment Program. This four-word 10-syllable monster replaced the descriptive and apt word, test. Twits Establish Silly Terminology, for the benefit of the education bureaucrats who thought they were blazing new trails with PLAP.

But the awards committee has decided that this year's etymologist's golden sledgehammer, for absolute and unequalled desecration of the mother tongue, should go to the anonymous authors of LIFE. That is, Living Independently For Equality. Judges felt that this contribution from the human resources department was by far the mealiest and most meaningless phrase of the year. Logorrhea Is For Ever.

Feisty Union

As the phenomenal success of the film Rocky has confirmed, people still like to pull for the underdog and it is always nice when some contemporary David lets loose his sling and comes home a winner. And so it is with the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada, that young and feisty B.C. labor organization that this week chipped a significant crack in Canada's monolithic banking industry. In a decision based on simple logic and reason, the Canada Labor Relations Board has ruled that individual bank branches may be considered appropriate bargaining units for unions seeking certification.

The decision opens the way for individual bank branches throughout Canada to be organized by trade unions. Tens of thousands of white collar workers, most of them underpaid women, will be affected. As an official of the Canadian Labor Congress noted, the implications may be overwhelming. They will also, we trust, be beneficial, as these frequently exploited employees use their newly-acquired power to improve their bargaining position while refraining from vengeful excesses.

For this landmark decision, these countless bank workers may thank SORWUC, a tiny union born in 1972 out of the Vancouver women's movement, and its hard-working officers. It is always encouraging to see the positive results of dedication and diligence and the Times tips its hat to this energetic little union.

Why Stephen Lewis Quit

TORONTO — Coming so hard upon last week's election results, Stephen Lewis' decision to step down as leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party will inevitably be seen as the natural consequence of a three-time failure to win power for his party.

So natural, indeed, that one is reminded immediately of former Premier John Robarts' penetrating comment on election night, as the returns showed the Conservatives were again back without a majority, the Liberals had salvaged second place and the NDP were back in third position, having surrendered official opposition to the Liberals.

— Premier William Davis, Robarts said, had "won the election but lost the future." Liberal leader Stuart Smith had lost but won, and Lewis had "lost and lost."

So it would seem to be three strikes and out for Stephen Lewis, according to the law of the Medes, Persians, politics and baseball. But that is not how Lewis sees it, and that is not what has really happened.

Lewis is quitting for purely personal reasons. He simply wants out, to have more time for his young family, to pursue specific issues in public affairs which particularly interest him, to be free of the incessant pressures and frustrations of party leadership. He told his wife and close colleagues before the election campaign that barring the NDP's winning the government — a possibility he never seriously considered — he would be stepping down after the election whatever the outcome.

Desperate Straits

He has been under no pressure from his party to quit and he will certainly be beseeched to change his mind. The NDP, it would appear from this point in time, is going to be in rather desperate straits without him. Many who are not NDP supporters but like to have it around, will be sorry to see him go. The press, which has developed a special affection for his silver tongue and wit, will be desolate.

But Lewis is determined to go and perhaps only the very few who have been leaders of political parties can understand why. The general comment amongst politicians around Queen's Park following Lewis' announcement was that it was a sad mistake, that his timing was bad, that his party would suffer. But former Liberal leader Robert Nixon, who quit after three strikes in 1975, said he knew on election night Lewis would resign and that he was doing the right thing at the right time.

One may still quarrel with the timing. If Lewis is not quitting because he lost the election — and he isn't — he might have waited a discreet interval before announcing, just to avoid the impression that he is. Instead, he has cemented the belief that in politics winning is everything, which is the last thing, he says, he wants people to believe.

The point is rather important because Stephen Lewis has been, for over five years, the most avid practitioner of minority politics in Ontario. Ever since the 1971 election he has sought to diminish political partisanship, to eschew extreme confrontation, to promote reason over dogma and flexibility over dogmatism. His party, which is rather given to dogma, has not made it easy for him — especially in the last election — but he has been remarkably successful in furthering the idea that "winning" isn't everything and that a political party is justified even if it only sits in opposition.

LEWIS

This is the essence of minority politics, which is now a fact of political life in Ontario for as far as one can see and requires, on the part of public, press and politicians, some fundamentally new ways of looking at the political and parliamentary process. It is to be regretted, therefore, that our most sophisticated practitioner of the new politics should be leaving his party's leadership in circumstances which suggest for all the world that he is an obedient servant of the old politics.

Lewis told his press conference that he would be disconcerted and unhappy if that impression is created because he is convinced that the next two or three years of minority government in Ontario will be an exceptionally successful experiment, whether he is NDP leader or not. He does not share the widely held view, he said, that leaders "make all that much qualitative difference" in politics.

Here, perhaps, is an indication of Lewis' Achilles Heel as a leader. He is prone to making fundamental errors in political judgment, errors which he makes with the best will in the world and out of a certain naivete. Being fundamental, they have been few but they have dictated his career and limited his effectiveness.

He became NDP leader, for example, in October, 1970, a year after his predecessor, Donald MacDonald, had successfully withstood a challenge from James Renwick, the MPP for Riverdale. It was then well understood within the party that MacDonald would continue unchallenged through the 1971 election but Lewis, who was Renwick's colleague in revolt, was not content with that understanding and forced MacDonald's resignation, with himself as the likeliest successor.

Genuine Transformation

The NDP under MacDonald had by 1970 achieved a certain public respectability and acceptance and it may have done quite well in the 1971 election under his leadership. Mature judgment would have been that a change in policy direction and leadership was to be avoided. But Lewis was young, radical and could not wait. The 1971 election was a disaster for the NDP, with Liberals voting Conservative in droves to beat back "the socialists".

Following that Lewis went into a brown study and at one point decided to quit. He rallied and began building a totally different image for himself and the NDP in which radicalism was avoided wherever possible. One sometimes wondered if Lewis was not the best friend the Conservatives could have.

It was a genuine transformation but Lewis carried it too far in his desire to be popular, forgetting that it is the duty of party in opposition to be, on occasion, distinctly unpleasant. It is at least a tenable thesis that the Conservatives continue to be the government today because Lewis pulled his punches whenever integrity in government — perhaps the most basic of political issues — became even remotely questionable.

Two Streams

This is an attempt to dispel a myth which unfortunately is gaining national prominence. This myth involves the "either-or" approach to Canada's North — either development and no equitable settlement of land claims, or no development while land claims are being negotiated.

Over the years both questions have been examined concurrently and only recently has the "either-or" myth been fabricated to create an unnecessary polarization of two issues.

I feel development and land claims can and should be considered together and not to the exclusion of one or the other, and that every attempt should be made to reach a workable solution to the two questions as soon as possible.

I see the two issues — development in the North and land claims in the North, as two separate but parallel streams flowing in the same direction . . . a simple analogy, but one which the record bears out.

First of all there is the development stream, particularly the development of the mining industry in the Northwest Territories. Historically the government of Canada has supported minining development in the North. Fair royalty and tax levies, the need for companies to deal with only one level of government, the absence of extensive provincial intervention (such as the intervention which curtailed mining activity in B.C.) have made the North a favored area for mining exploration.

The government has also become increasingly aware of the energy requirements of Canada and is aware of the uranium potential of the Northwest Territories. To encourage uranium and other mineral exploration in the North, the government, through the Geological Survey of Canada, in 1976 spent $10 million in the North. The mining industry responded by putting $35 million into mining exploration in the North in 1976. This year the industry expects to put another $35 million into northern mining exploration.

Then there is the land claims stream, also supported by the federal government. In 1971 the Inuit Tapirisat of Canada was formed. In 1973 then minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Jean Chretien stated that the government was ready to negotiate land claims settlements and offered government funding to groups to prepare their claims.

In January 1976, former Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Judd Buchanan called for specific proposals from the groups and in February 1976 the ITC land claims proposal was presented to Cabinet.

Until March 1977 the two streams flowed along — moving closer to a point where they would merge into one large river.

Now it appears that before the streams can come together, one stream, the development stream, could be dammed. First indication of this was the exploration freeze put on some 30,000 square miles of land in the Baker Lake area. This freeze was imposed on the mining industry by Indian and Northern Affairs minister Warren Allmand at the request of the ITC. It was done without consulting the mining industry and despite the fact that the government itself had spent considerable money doing survey work in that area the summer before, preparing for future exploration.

Now the prospect of an even more crucial dam looms on the development stream, if the recommendations of Mr. Justice Thomas Berger are implemented in the Northwest Territories.

In order to proceed with the orderly development of the North to the advantage of both the native people and all Canadians, the Northwest Territories Chamber of Mines requests that the following be done without delay:

1. Cabinet must issue a policy statement on northern development to overcome the atmosphere of uncertainty and assure companies they can follow through on any exploration work they are conducting.

2. The government of Canada must encourage an expeditious, fair settlement of land claims and should place a deadline on the settlement of these claims.

3. The "either-or" myth which precludes the co-existence of development and land claims must be dispelled. — Ronald Hawkes, President, Northwest Territories Chamber of Mines.

City police check for impaired motorists

No Place to Go

Attorney General Garde Gardom is to be commended for his desire to decrease drinking driving on a year round basis. The loss of lives and property of the innocent victims of these dangerous drivers is tragic. But, in addition to treating the symptoms of the problem, why not treat the cause? Ironically, the cause is not too many licensed outlets but too few. It's a sad fact that people must drive to reach a licensed premises with a pleasant atmosphere because they are few and far between. And when they do get there, they're not likely to find a seat.

Lounges and beer parlors are concentrated in the central areas of cities in B.C. because the hotels and motels are there. What if you live in a suburb? You drive. The hotels have a near monopoly on serving liquor and are, understandably, a strong lobby against decentralization. But what is this situation costing the people of B.C. in terms of inconvenience, shoddy facilities and even loss of life?

The legislation to allow decentralization of drinking establishments already exists but is not being used. The idea of neighborhood pubs was conceived to create small local outlets within walking distance of patrons. Why are there none in suburban areas? The only ones I have seen established are in low density country areas where patrons still must drive to reach them. It seems to me that drinking-driving would be significantly reduced if more licensed outlets were encouraged in the higher density suburbs. The Attorney General and the people of B.C. should ask themselves if the Liquor Control Act can be applied to solve or at least reduce drinking driving. — J. D. Lafontan, 152 Moss St.

Why Victoria Fuss?

I disagree completely with Mayor Young regarding Canada Day celebrations being a great hoax.

I have made my home in Victoria for over 20 years, having previously lived in Saskatchewan, Ontario and the Maritimes, and I have always wondered why so much emphasis is placed on Victoria Day. Just because the city is named after Queen Victoria isn't sufficient reason for all the fuss.

If the Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce spent as large a sum on a Canada Day program we could all really feel we lived in a great country.

I would suggest that Mayor Young read Paul Moss' interviews with French Canadians in Victoria in the Times June 4. — Berta Schmidt, 765 Arden Road.

Do As I Say

The wage and price control program of the AIB must be the biggest misnomer of all time, for while wage increases have been severely curtailed, prices have been allowed to skyrocket.

Even the federal government has been forced to admit the program is a sham and now appears to be getting set to abandon it. The problem does not end there, however, for we now find that B.C.'s finance minister Evan Wolfe has drawn up a similar plan to apply in this province when the federal program ends.

One would have to be as naive as Little Red Riding Hood on her visit to grandma's house to believe that Mr. Wolfe's legislation would be any more equitable than the federal plan, in fact, indications are that the reverse will be true. Remember how only two months after coming into office the Socreds abolished the food price controls of the NDP, a move that allowed food prices to rise to their present astronomical high. The Socreds also showed complete disregard for price control and applied their own brand of increases ranging from 100 per cent on ferry fares to 400 per cent on hospital charges.

Due to AIB controls the average wage earner has been limited to increases in earnings of approximately $700 per year. How has our friendly Mr. Wolfe's income fared over this same period of restraint? First of all, it was allowed to increase to the nice tidy sum of $48,000 per year for "services rendered" as a B.C. cabinet minister.

Secondly, as car sales figures are up considerably from 1975 and as Mr. Wolfe is still the proprietor of a major auto dealership, it seems safe to assume that his income from this source has also increased by an amount far in excess of a piddling $700.

By expecting others to be content with an increase of $700 while his own income has been increased by well over $50,000 Mr. Wolfe has provided another classic illustration of this Socred millionaire government's policy — "Do as I say, not as I do." — Under Control.

B.C. Praised

Having arrived in your country from England for a three week vacation, I was very much impressed and taken aback by the warmth and kindness of your citizens. In your shops, museums and other businesses I have been met with the utmost courtesy and friendliness. Walking down any street or driving into any garage I am greeted or acknowledged and always asked to "have a nice day." It is truly named Beautiful British Columbia, but I was a little disappointed that you have not capitalized on the British part. As you may know, our Queen is celebrating her Silver Jubilee, and I can assure you back home every village, town, city and county have contributed in some small way to the celebrations to her majesty. Businessmen and women back in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales have sometimes had difficulty in meeting the demand for flagging, bunting and souvenirs of the Jubilee and I feel sure that if more of your dignitaries felt the same way as Minister Grace McCarthy, your wonderful citizens would have rallied around and boosted the celebrations and economy of your wonderful country. — Robert Berry, 1265 Vista Heights.

Solar Power Waters Farms

By GRACE LICHTENSTEIN

GILA BEND, Ariz. — Under the searing sun of Central Arizona, a strange "crop" occupies one section on the Gila River Ranch, surrounded by fields of cotton and alfalfa.

Row upon row of curved, shiny aluminum planks are rotating face up toward the sun. They are absorbing its heat to run what is believed to be the world's largest solar-powered irrigation system for pumping water into 50 ditches of this 22,000-acre farm.

It is a part of a $500,000 pilot project by two organizations not usually associated with the agriculture business — Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee and the Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, a large private research and development firm.

Their aim: To see if solar energy can solve the problem of soaring irrigation costs that now faces Sunbelt farmers in the arid regions from California to Texas.

There are huge portions of the Southwest that cannot rely on rain to water their crops. Instead, many rely on underground wells, from which they pump water to ditches that line crop fields, or pump that water into long irrigation sprinklers that sweep in a vast arc across the land.

Recently, however, farmers who use pump water for irrigation have seen their bills skyrocket for both electricity and natural gas, the normal fuels used to power such pumps. This eventually means higher food costs to the consumer.

Ten years ago Northwestern bought the Arizona farm as an investment from its owner, who was in debt to the company.

In 1973, the electric bill for irrigation pumps on the property reached $1 million. "When our power costs began to soar, we began to think of all that sun," said Francis E. Fergusin, president of Northwestern, "and we began to think of what we could do with solar energy."

Northwestern asked Battelle to design a 50-horsepower solar system. The Gila Bend facility is the result. According to Northwestern, there are only two other such solar experiments in the world. One is now being installed by the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration in New Mexico, but both are smaller than the Arizona one.

Graham Alexander, of Battelle, the project manager, explained that an electrical starter — similar to the ignition starter in an auto — starts up the system by pumping water into tubes set in the center of the curved solar collectors. The water gets hot, then flows into a boiler where it heats the liquid chemical Freon until it becomes a gas. This gas then turns a turbine that pumps water into irrigation ditches.

The amount of electricity needed to start up the system is miniscule compared to the amount it would ordinarily take to run irrigation pumps. So, while installation of the solar system is very expensive, a farmer would then pay almost nothing to operate it, Alexander said.

Project manager Graham Alexander surveys solar collectors

The Arizona system is only a few weeks old and still has some "bugs" in it, Alexander said. But project officials are optimistic. "We've proved it's feasible but we also know it is not economical," said Thomas W. Harvey, a Battelle vice-president.

"However, we've put this in as a showcase to encourage manufacturers of irrigation systems to invest in this new technology," he continued.

Northwestern and Battelle are hopeful that some company will join them in manufacturing solar irrigation systems on an assembly line basis, which would bring the initial cost down to the level where it could compete with conventional pump systems. For example, a 50-horsepower pump can currently be installed in California for $2,000. Farmers can often pay off that cost within five years because it allows them to produce much higher yields of crops.

"It all depends on OPEC," said Harvey. If the cost of gas and oil continues to increase as predicted, he said, farmers in the dry parts of the Sunbelt may be forced within 10 years to convert either to solar-powered pumps or have "little nuclear plants" all over their farms.

A representative of a pump manufacturing company, who toured the Arizona pilot project the other day, was interested but skeptical. "There's nothing complicated about it, but as far as costs go, I haven't the foggiest idea," he said.

Companies such as his, the man said, are nevertheless eager to see new technology because they fear rising fuel costs may soon deter farmers from buying conventional pump systems.

Yet Another Capital Becomes a 'Fat City'

THE NATION
An Editorial

A traditional liberal view has been that government employees should be well paid. It was based on the idea that the "private sector" should not have an unfair advantage in getting the best talent to work for it, leaving the dregs to who feed at "the public trough." It was a splendid policy, imbued with the notion of doing good, until wages began to snowball in the nation's capital.

Federal pay scales are now outrageously out of line. The inflation truly afflicting Washington is most conspicuous in the bureaucracy of the government, and it affects all three branches.

Consider the fact that residents of the Washington area now have average household incomes of $23,602, as that excellent publication The Washington Monthly points out in its April issue. That is by far the highest in the country, nearly $7,000 above the level of cities with reputations for affluence like New York, Los Angeles and Houston.

Set Own Criteria

The federal government, of course, is the employer of first and last resort for the overwhelming majority of workers in and around the capital. Federal employees are the fat and happy beneficiaries of the "comparability pay standard" which was enacted fifteen years ago — that is, their compensation must be based on what private business pays for equivalent work. That has worked so well, or badly, that federal salaries now run about 20 per cent above the "comparable" private sector's scale.

The trouble is that the bureaucracy itself sets the criteria of comparability, which means that ingenious government classifiers are constantly rewriting the criteria in their own interest, and therefore ever upward. Men and women in Washington get fancy pay for jobs whose description, in bureaucratic jargon, defies parsing and sense, not to say function. Enough to say that mere "secretaries" are scarce there but "administrative assistants" and "work-flow organizers" abound. "Typing pools" have disappeared and been replaced by "word-processing units," and so on.

Create Fiefdoms

Congress, which sets the standards and raises the money to pay for all this, is, naturally, in the vanguard. The pay of a member of that body has risen by 150 per cent in the past thirteen years, though men blush and turn their heads when they vote themselves raises ($57,500 is the current stipend). Our lawmakers have also greatly inflated their staffs, building not-so-little fiefdoms here and there, until the cost of the legislature has risen to about $1 billion a year — 18 times what it was thirty years ago. And as long as Congress is taking a comfortable ride on the federal escalator, its members deem it unseemly to curb the greed of mere bureaucrats.

This whole racket (not too strong a word) has caused a flood of applicants for civil service jobs — there are thirty for each opening. The judiciary is not exempt. The judges and their friends of the bar often complain that they can't make it on their wretched salaries (currently at $54,500 for the district judges). There is constant talk of a mass exodus back to the world of corporate law. Talk but not action. The "exodus" of the past two years has been at a rate of less than 1 per cent for federal judges, an attrition rate even lower than that of Big Labor's aged leaders.

President Carter got to the White House in part by suggesting during his long campaign that, being an "outsider," he was equipped to make the executive, among other branches, lean and mean, riding herd on the huge federal establishment. Mean maybe, but hardly lean, has been its stamp so far. The White House staff is now stronger by eighty "bodies," as they say down there, than the complement that manned it under Gerald Ford. (Part of the problem is the flood of mail Carter is getting, but he keeps urging people to write him, knowing perfectly well that their words will be weighed only in the physical sense, to measure the pros and cons by the pound.)

Not only have the numbers of White House staffers grown but their pay has shot through the roof. The man who carried Carter's bags most of the time during the campaign now makes $48,500 as "director" of special projects." (That's loyalty and classic bureaucratese, both.) The 25-year-old who was making $6,000 at the Democratic National Committee now controls "the "flow of paper" in the White House for seven times that sum. An assistant press secretary quit a $14,000 job as a reporter to pull down $48,500.

'Sincerity Gap'

Carter says these people "are not overpaid . . . I don't have any apology to make." Perhaps he need not apologize, but he should do something about not only his own lush staff but about the whole gravy train in Washington. He ran against that sort of thing and, if he fails to curb it, Americans will soon doubt that he means anything he says. There have been various kinds of "gaps" in Washington in the past, beginning with Johnson's Credibility Gap. If things continue as they are now in Washington perhaps Carter's contribution to the political topography will be Sincerity Gap. A man can take a bad fall down one of those slopes.

. . . But Should the Desert Bloom?

By WILLIAM SAFIRE

SAN FRANCISCO — "One small drip of water wastes 25 gallons a day, or 9,000 gallons a year," cautioned an airport sign.

"It take three glasses of water to serve one," warns a card on a coffee-shop table. "To ice, wash and rinse an 8-ounce glass of water, 24 ounces is required."

With an eye toward water conservation, a man who has worked hard to be able to afford a pool in his backyard now covers his pride and joy with a plastic blanket to retard evaporation, rolling back one lane twice a day to swim.

Symbolic gestures like these abound in drought-ridden, water-worried California. But everyone knows that ordering wine instead of water, or putting a plastic displacement bottle in the back of the toilet, or proudly claiming to be one of the "great unwashed" is not going to solve the problem.

Part of the problem is the weather: The sun keeps shining. This is the second year of the drought, of exposed cracked-earth bottoms where reservoirs used to sparkle, and Californians are getting edgy. Northerners resent the waste of water by Southerners sprinkling their lawns, and farmers are suspicious of "cloud-rustling" by aircraft trying to make rain.

That part of the water problem will be solved by nature: Sooner or later, droughts end. But the greater part of the proble will remain and get worse: We are coming up with new requirements for water throughout the United States with little thought given to conservation or developing new sources of supply.

Sound like the energy "crisis" all over again? True, the politics of oil and water mix: Dams create electrical energy, and it takes plenty of energy to run a water desalination plant. But we can hope that a future water policy will not be as self-defeating and defeatist as our proposed national energy policy, which uses none of the incentives of the free-market system.

In California, which produces more food than any state in the Union, 85 per cent of the water consumed is directly related to that food production. For generations, we have been taught to believe that irrigation is a blessing; to "make the desert bloom" has been an act of virtue and a mark of progress.

But perhaps all deserts ought not to bloom. If irrigation projects draw too many chairs up to the water table, causing shortages, perhaps irrigation in certain places is not a good idea. If the transformation of a desert into a fertile valley increases the potential of turning a drought into a disaster, perhaps we should begin planning intelligent allocation of water resources.

At this point, the limits-to-growth crowd can be expected to rush in with armloads of studies calling for a Department of Water, with a czar to determine who will get what water at what price, accompanied by denunciations of water-guzzling dinosaurs.

Before we go down that road, maybe it would be an idea to consider a price mechanism, and a law of supply and demand, to help allocate and increase our limited water resources.

If the cost of water were to become a more realistic part of the cost of producing food, then certain foods would be produced using costlier water. For example, California climate is uniquely suited for wine grapes, a high-priced item; it would make sense to growers to continue to irrigate with expensive water. But it may make no economic sense to raise tomatoes there; the price system may call for tomato-raising where water is cheaper, or for getting highballers to switch from Bloody Marys to Screwdrivers.

If this free-market approach sounds unfeeling to farmers, consider the alternative to consumers: The taxpayer of the future would be subsidizing the price of water to the farmer, enabling him to produce inefficiently, using costly water for irrigation. The consumer-taxpayer would get hit again in higher prices for food. What sense does that make?

On the contrary, the most and the best economic planning would be for the Congress and the Interior Department to help local water authorities determine the "real" price of the product, permitting the price of water to seek its own level. That would cut waste and provide an incentive to develop new supplies.

Do you remember that political idiot working for the Carter administration who came up with a plan to cut 18 major Western water projects out of the federal budget? Maybe that budget-cutter was not such an idiot after all. Perhaps the president should not have retreated so quickly when the dam-builders began to holler to the point where he has now reinstated 17 of the projects, cutting only one as a kind of fig leaf.

The president's first instincts were probably right. This may be the wrong time for rerouting rivers and building more dams. Contrary to populist belief, more waterworks do not necessarily mean more water; these new projects may be adding to the problem.

If the tightened faucets and covered pools of California suggest anything, it is that a thirst for local votes must not be the basis for decisions on the economics of water. Pointing that out would cost Mr. Carter some support, but that is what presidents are for.

We'd Better Study That

russell baker

Had the government simply refused to watch 58 women cook three meals a day for a week, no reasonable citizen would have complained, for the government is terribly busy. But the government did not refuse. This, after all, was a study, and if there is one thing the government loves it is a study.

And so it assembled 58 women in a kitchen at the National Bureau of Standards and told them to start cooking. They cooked and they cooked. And while they cooked, the government watched them on television cameras and through one-way mirrors.

They were not told why they were cooking, and so they did not know that their cooking habits were being scrutinized to determine the energy efficiency of the typical American cooker. The results are now in, and a more unexciting batch of results I have rarely seen.

The government's conclusion is that Americans waste a lot of gas and electricity through bad cooking habits. This differs substantially from my own conclusion, which is that the government wastes a lot of money and energy through bad study habits.

Any government half as efficient as ours wants its cooking citizenry to be would have nipped this story in the bud. It would have said, "Look here, you're not only proposing to tie me up for a week watching 58 women who don't know why they're being watched, but you're also asking to spend a lot of money on television cameras, one-way mirrors, psychologists, tabulators, report writers and similar gewgaws. And all you're going to learn is that people cook indiscriminately on the right front burner."

"How can you be so sure?" the study director might have asked.

To which a sagacious government would have replied, "Because most people are right-handed, and because Americans are a people who don't like to put things on the back burner."

Our government does not operate this way. Americans don't like to put things on the back burner, and the government doesn't like to pass up the chance to conduct a study that will confirm what everyone has always known. A few years ago it conducted a study that discovered kissing transmits colds.

As for the discovery that many people leave the oven door open while peeling potatoes, this is almost certainly wrong. The error in all probability results from elevating cookery to a laboratory enterprise.

Every cook at some point in his or her development has left the oven door open while peeling potatoes. But only once. In a normal kitchen with its cramped space, an open oven door leads inexorably to cracked shinbone, perhaps broken leg and possibly severe burn. After the first encounter with an oven door in the typical American kitchen, the neophyte Escoffier rarely, if ever, leaves it open again while dealing with the spuds.

The women who did so in the government's test probably had good reasons. Perhaps the government's kitchens were as commodious as its purse and gave them a luxurious sense of spaciousness which allowed them to indulge a vice denied them in their homes. More likely, I suspect, since the women were kept in the dark about why they were cooking in this laboratory, some of them tried to outguess the experimenters.

If I were taken to the National Bureau of Standards and told to cook three meals daily for a week under close observation, and utterly without explanation, I might very well conclude that the government was trying to discover whether I was wasting potatoes by peeling off too much potato with the skin. Under the intense strain of struggling to keep my potato peels paper-thin, I might easily forget such normal kitchen habits as keeping the oven door closed.

The government doesn't pounce on this sensible explanation of why the oven doors were left open. Instead, it proposes to inflict yet another buzzer on the national nervous system. This buzzer would sound off with each opening of the oven and, of course, in the natural development of buzzers, acquire a mind of its own which would set it off whenever it became peevish, at all hours of the day and night, whether the oven is open or shut.

We need only one more buzzer in America. This should go off in the government's ear every time somebody proposes to study whether water is wet and whether fleas like dogs.

Con. Rambler

To overcome what it calls a possible financial crisis, Consolidated Rambler Mines Ltd. of Toronto has renegotiated terms of a mortgage with the former owners of its Baie Verte copper mine in Newfoundland. Details outlined in the company's annual report show a payment of $200,000 was made last Oct. 29 in lieu of the $1.5-million payment formerly due on that date. The remaining $1.3 million will be paid in nine equal quarterly installments, including eight-per-cent annual interest, starting Oct. 29. The report also states that "a worth-while profit from 1977 operations is essential if the quarterly payments ... are to be met."

Ont. Jockey Club

The Ontario Jockey Club reports income for 1976 of $52.8 million, an increase of 7.3 per cent over the previous year. Income after expenses and appropriations amounted to $16,926,765, of which $16,922,748 was paid out in purses and supplemental distribution. In 1975, income after expenses was $15,795,807, all of which was paid out in purses. The Jockey Club distributed $2,546,352 in purse grants on behalf of the Ontario government, which, through the Ontario Racing Commission, paid a further $543,294 to owners of horses participating in the Ontario sire stakes program at harness raceways.

Whonnock

Sauder Industries Ltd., a private Vancouver-based company, plans to make an offer to buy a controlling interest in Whonnock Industries Ltd. in turn, Whonnock has agreed to buy a cedar mill operation from Sauder. The two transactions were announced jointly by Chester Johnson, president of Whonnock, and William Sauder, president of Sauder. Sauder manufactures and distributes wood moulding, panelling and other building products and also operates five logging camps and a sawmill in Fort Langley. Sauder is offering about $10.7 million for slightly more than 50 per cent of Whonnock Class A shares and for all of the 218,936 outstanding Class B shares. There are more than 1.5 million Class A shares outstanding and Sauder's offer is for 600,000. Johnson said holdings of the major shareholder, the Holding family which has about 200,000 Class A shares, will not be included in the offer. The family received the Whonnock shares after Whonnock bought out its interior B.C. lumber company in 1971. Sauder is offering $12 for each class A share and $16 for each Class B shre.

Nat. Sea Products

A reduction of the red fish quotas and closure of the cod fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Sydney Bite area has resulted in poor first-quarter earnings this year for National Sea Products Ltd., of Halifax. Total earnings for the three months ending April 2 were $559,128, or 36 cents a share. This compares with earnings of $1,027,187 or 67 cents a share for the same period last year. The Canadian fishing effort in the gulf for red fish was reduced to 18,000 metric tons this year from 30,000 tons in 1976.

NSI Marketing

Unsecured creditors of NSI Marketing Ltd. of Toronto have agreed to accept a moratorium on payment of the company's debt until Aug. 31, while arrangements proceed to try to reorganize the company. J. L. Biddell of Clarkson Co. Ltd., the court-appointed receiver, said a rejection of the moratorium proposal made May 11 would have meant bankruptcy for the company and no chance of recovery for unsecured creditors, whose claims total about $1.3 million. The concern of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the only secured creditor, is $6.7 million in loans to NSI and another $2 million to NSI Merchandising Inc., a U.S. subsidiary, which is continuing to operate normally but for which a buyer is sought, Biddell said.

Neonex

Neonex International Ltd. has sold its helicopter company, Associated Helicopters Ltd., to Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., Wilfred Ray, director corporate communications, said.

Neonex, a Vancouver-based firm, is involved in consumer products, recreational vehicles and manufactured housing and service industries.

False Repair Plan Earned $150 a Week

VANCOUVER (CP) — A county court fraud trial was told by Crown witness Stuart Trober Thursday that he sometimes received $150 a week from a plan under which car repair estimates were increased.

Trober, a former adjuster with the Insurance Corporation of B.C., was testifying at the trial of Tri Starr Collision Repairs and its operator, Stanley Kadlec.

They are accused of conspiring with Trober and David Sharma, a former ICBC estimator, to defraud ICBC between February and May of 1975 of an unstated amount of money by submitting documents to ICBC which resulted in ICBC paying more to Tri Starr than the value of repairs carried out.

Trober testified that he, Sharma and Kadlec devised a scheme by which the estimator would over-estimate the cost of repairs by assigning more hours of work to the job than required and by listing new parts not necessarily needed. Tri Starr would subsequently receive an ICBC cheque for the amount listed and every week or two he and Sharma would meet Kadlec to receive their one-third portions of the proceeds.

Trober said that on one occasion he and other falsified an accident as having happened to the cars of two friends, even though no damage was done. Tri Starr was put down as the body shop where work was purportedly done and the split was one quarter to each of the four persons involved.

He said a portion of one of the shares went to Tri Starr.

He also said that on one occasion he falsified a collision damage claim to his own car to have it repainted at Tri Starr. He told the court that Tri Starr did not get any illegitimate profit on this one but the bill was paid by ICBC.

Trober testified that when a car arrived at the claims centre, and the driver was interviewed, the nature of the damage would indicate whether a repair increase could be safely carried out. If circumstances were right he would nod to Sharma in the direction of the car to be used so Sharma could perform his part of the scheme.

Edward Bailey, testifying under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, said that he told a friend he could have the man's car r-e-p-a-i-n-t-e-d cheaply by his friend Trober. He said the man's car was sprayed with obscenities during a visit by Trober and was later repainted by Tri Starr as a vandalism claim.

Bailey testified he also was involved in a scheme in which a claim was put through for a two-car accident that never occurred and which involved one of the cars being purposely damaged on the Tri Starr lot to make it appear as though it had been in a rear-end collision. Daily said his portion of the proceeds never did materialize.

The trail continues.

Soil Removal To Be Banned

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt introduced new soil conservation legislation Tuesday aimed at providing more effective control over topsoil removal from land in the agricultural land reserve.

Hewitt said the bill, which replaces the 17-year-old Soil Conservation Act, will prevent developers from selling topsoil from a piece of land, then applying to have the stripped land removed from the land reserve because it is no good for agriculture.

SEA-BUS WHINES INTO SERVICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government's new Sea-Bus service between downtown and North Vancouver was initiated Thursday after years of planning and a campaign to encourage commuters to use the new ferry system.

Today was the first day of public operation. About 300 guests and officials were on hand for the innaugural runs Thursday and the only complaints seemed be the whining noise created by the motors.

There also were 10 placard-carrying bicycle club members protesting that initially cyclists will not be allowed to take their bikes onto the ferries, which were only meant to accommodate foot passengers.

Both of the twin 400-passenger ferries, dubbed sea-buses, connect with redesigned bus routes on both shores and allow bus passengers on for no extra charge. Although bus passengers use transfers on both sides, those who walk straight on the ferry are on their honor to buy tickets first.

The no-turnstile entrance speeds up the system and allows wheelchair passengers easy access. There will be spot checks to eliminate abuse of the system.

Operators use radar and an extensive radio system to keep tabs on traffic in the busy Burrard Inlet as they make crossings every 15 minutes Monday to Friday. The service operates on reduced hours on weekends.

The Burrard Beaver and its sister ship, Burrard Otter, were built for $6.8 million each and some $20 million has been spent on building terminals on the north and south shores of the inlet.

One Final Try On Herbicide

PENTICTON (CP) — The Okanagan Environmental Coalition decided Thursday to make a final appeal to city council to prevent the use of the herbicide 2,4-D in the Okanagan water system to combat Eurasian milfoil weed.

The chemical might be put into Skaha Lake early next week.

The coalition said earlier that it would circulate pamphlets protesting the use of 2,4-D but Mayor K. A. Kenyon labelled the plan a scare tactic against the tourist trade and indicated the group might face legal action if it distributed them.

About 70 coalition members and representatives of the tourist industry discussed the issue Thursday.

The coalition said if the pamphlets are distributed they would include the concerns of the tourist industry and the effect the addition of the chemical in recreational water or any poor publicity might have.

Meanwhile, suction dredging began Wednesday to remove the weed from the north end of Osoyoos Lake.

Karl Marsden of the provincial water investigation branch office in Vernon said the suction machine works like a vacuum cleaner.

The portable machine has a motor which floats on the water's surface while two suction pipes, controlled by divers, suck the material into a metal basket.

South B.C. Pipeline Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — An inquiry set up to study a proposed oil pipeline from Kitimat to Edmonton will be asked to turn its attention to a line through southern British Columbia, Environment Minister Romeo Leblanc said Thursday.

The inquiry, headed by law professor Andrew Thompson, was set up in the spring. However, Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd. has asked for a temporary suspension of its application.

Kitimat said it supported a proposal by Trans-Mountain Pipeline Ltd. to adapt its Edmonton to Cherry Point Wash., line to move Alaskan and far east crude oil into mid-United States markets through existing lines connected to Edmonton.

Trans Mountain also wants to use Cherry Point as a trans-shipment site for Alaskan oil to overseas markets.

An environment spokesman said Thompson will also be expected to study tanker routes in the southern B.C. area. There is a possibility he might also be asked to investigate routes along the B.C. coast for tankers coming from Alaska.

Work will also continue on the Kitimat proposal, he said, because the suspension could be removed in the future.

EXPANSION NEXT FOR BANK UNION

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver-based union whose application to represent bank workers on a branch-by-branch basis was approved earlier this week said Wednesday it will expand its organizing to 10 new areas in British Columbia.

The Canada Labor Relations Board Tuesday approved an application by the Service Office and Retail Workers' Union of Canada to represent workers in several Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island bank branches.

Elizabeth Godley, SORWUC national secretary, said the union now plans organizing drives in Port Alberni, Nanaimo, Victoria, Prince George, Kamloops, Kitimat-Terrace, Powell River, the Sechelt Peninsula, the Kootenays and the Okanagan.

The CLRB ruling was based on applications to represent workers at eight Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branches.

No COLA Cut By Forest Firms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiators for 122 forest companies have agreed to continue paying a 12 cent-an-hour cost-of-living -adjustment (COLA) to 28,000 International Woodworkers of America members until a new contract is agreed upon.

The agreement between in IWA and Forest Industrial Relations expired Tuesday. Bases rates, including COLA, range from $7.01 to $10.24 an hour for sawyers.

Fir could have cut the COLA payment when the contract expired, Jack Munro, regional IWA president, said Wednesday.

The union has set tabulation of a strike vote for June 24 in the coast region. Negotiations began two months ago.

"I don't know if the employers are waiting for the results of our strike vote," said Munro, "but we have to get down to some bargaining pretty quickly."

The union has presented FIR with 34 proposals, including an increase of $1 an hour across the board.

MEXICAN MAD DOGS FACE GAS CHAMBER

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Mad dogs are having a tough time these days in Sonora state in northwestern Mexico.

Officials of the State Public Health Service have announced they will round up 18,000 homeless dogs and send them to the gas chamber in a statewide anti-rabies campaign.

Dr. Juan Carrasco Marin, a state health official, said 20 per cent of the estimated 90,000 dogs in Sonora will be destroyed. Another 55,500 dogs which have owners will be given anti-rabies shots, he said.

Carrasco added that several persons bitten recently by mad dogs were treated successfully by doctors.

Mine Needs $240M Rail Spurs

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The royal commission inquiry into British Columbia Railway affairs was told Thursday that phasing of a massive coal development hinges on adequate rail facilities being constructed by the early 1980s in the Sukunka area.

Ronald Kessler, a spokesman for BP Exploration Canada Ltd. and BP Canada Holdings which hold property in the giant coal field 35 miles south of Chetwynd, estimated $240 million will be needed to build suitable rail spurs from that centre to the coal field.

Kessler said prior to completion of the rail line coal will be trucked to Chetwynd and by rail to Vancouver for export. As coal production increases it probably will be shipped by rail to Prince Rupert on the coast.

Drilling is expected to start in the Peace River district this summer on the project that will net B.C. more than $2 billion in royalties and provide 1,000 New jobs. The field will yield as much as three million long tons of quality metallurgical coal a year by 1983.

This summer's planned $4 million drilling project and the recent $30 million purchase of land are subject to approval by the federal government's foreign investment review agency.

Kessler told the commission that $5 million of the purchase price is not payable until there are adequate rail and port facilities to accomodate export of the coal.

He said the company expects production will start at 350,000 long tons a year in 1979, with the 3 million-ton objective reached "if adequate rail and port facilities are in place."

PP has a $404 million investment in the mine which has an estimated lifespan of 25 years.

The commission also heard briefs from Cassiar Asbestos Ltd. and four lumber companies urging completion of the Crown railway's Dease Lake extension.

Rail Prober Annoyed At Report

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A secret report into the Railwest railcar plan in Squamish commissioned by the chief financial officer of British Columbia Rail has drawn the ire of the chairman of the royal commission inquiry into the railway.

Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie told railway lawyers Thursday in Prince George that it was upsetting to suddenly find that B.C. Rail commissioned a secret report at the same time as the Sinclair Report on the Railwest plant in Squamish.

The Sinclair Report, commissioned a week ago for the royal commission and headed by David Sinclair, was presented to the inquiry Wednesday.

The inquiry was told today that the secret report was ordered without the knowledge of the railway board of directors.

Mr. Justice McKenzie said it is upsetting the secret report was not disclosed to the commission beforehand, and added he wants to see the author of the report appear before the inquiry when it sits in Fort St. John Friday.

He said the commission will release an interim report on the Railwest plant.

Drug Offer Angered Accused, But He Denies Using Knife

A 38-year-old Saanich man told an assize jury in Victoria Thursday he pushed a man over in his chair in a beer parlor but he didn't kill him.

Robert George Gibb was testifying on his own behalf as his trial drew to a close. The case was to go to the jury today.

He is accused of second-degree murder in the March 24 death of Arthur Bradley Zink, 26, who died from a wound to the heart in the Bastion Inn beer parlor.

Gibb told the jury he started drinking in the morning of March 24 and continued in the afternoon and evening.

About 10:30 p.m. he went to the Bastion Inn and sat down with two friends and ordered beer.

He said Zink, whom he had known as an acquaintance for about two years, came over and joined the table.

"He asked me if I was interested in purchasing heroin," said Gibb.

"I said no.

"He said he'd been in the bar and the police had been there and he wanted to sell what he had left. I said no.

"He got more insistent. He got a little obnoxious. Then more obnoxious.

"So I stood up and pushed him."

Gibb said he pushed him with his open right hand, steadying himself with his left hand on the table, which broke a beer glass.

"Then I sat down," he said.

Gibb admitted a criminal record for carrying a concealed weapon, possession of drugs, possession of stolen property, possession of burglary tools and possession of a restricted weapon.

He said he was introduced to heroin in 1957, when he was 17, and used the narcotic "now and then" until the late 1960s when he became an addict.

It took him from 1969 until 14 months ago to withdraw from heroin under a methadone program.

He said he stopped using heroin 14 months ago but about Feb. 15 of this year used heroin for three weeks. Just before March 24, he said, he decided to quit "cold turkey."

Gibb said that having gone through self-withdrawal he didn't want to be "tempted" with heroin from Zink, from whom he had bought drugs in the past.

He denied making comments in the beer parlor after the incident such as "where's the knife" and "could it be broken beer glass" and "is he still alive" and "I don't see the knife" and "I didn't shank (stab) him."

He said he got a cut on his left index finger when he broke the beer glass during the shoving incident with Zink.

He said a knife, not found until a week later in the hem of his bluejean pants, wasn't his, that he had never used it, that he had never possessed it, that he didn't put it in the hem, didn't know it was there and didn't stab Zink with that knife.

He agreed the Bastion Inn beer parlor is well known for drugs and that by going there he would meet drug users.

Psychiatrist Dr. Blake Thomson said he interviewed Gibb in Wilkinson Road jail June 4 for nearly two hours and felt there was no distortion of his memory processes, and he was able to give "a good account" of what happened.

He said pushing Zink was a "very normal reaction" for a man in Gibb's circumstances.

"I felt he was truthful and able to give me a good account of what took place," he said.

Summing up for the defence, Peter Freeman said "there are doubts so huge you could drive a truck through them."

He said the knife in court was nine and three-quarter inches long when extended yet no knife was seen by three eyewitnesses.

The police were "obviously embarrassed" that a knife was found in the pants a week later when they were sent to the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver and not when police arrested and searched Gibb.

But Freeman said there was nothing to be embarrassed about because the knife wasn't there when Gibb was arrested and searched.

There was "cause for embarrassment" however, because of the "shoddy" way police kept exhibits, not in a locker but in paper bags stapled closed and left under a table in the identification section which was unattended in the evenings and overnight and over the weekend.

He asked the jury whether Gibb would really put the knife into the hem at the beer parlor, wait until police came and be co-operative with police.

The 30-degree angle of the wound wasn't consistent with the pushing motion described by the eyewitnesses.

He said there was opportunity for someone else to have done it after Zink fell over in his chair and as he was being helped up.

Crown counsel Brian Smith said there were three features to the prosecution's case:

1. What the eyewitnesses saw — Gibb's motion toward Zink's chest, and Zink dead shortly after.

2. Gibb making various comments which four witnesses heard and a fifth witness hearing words to the effect "I hope they don't catch on because I did it." Smith said if the jury believed this it was "highly damaging."

3. A knife with stains similar to Zink's blood found in the hem of Gibb's pants.

"Put these three facts together and you have a pretty good web of evidence pointing to this man as the stabber of Zink," he said.

As to the fact no knife was seen at the time, Smith said one witness described what happened as a fast, thrusting motion and he commented "is it any wonder no blade was seen?"

Smith asked if the cut on Gibb's left index finger, a photograph of which was shown in court, was the sort of injury received by breaking a beer glass.

"I suggest he used his left hand to shut the blade and nicked himself," he said.

As to defence comments about police, Smith said police officers had to act quickly, under pressure, at night, with 100 people milling around.

"It is very easy to say in retrospect the police should have searched the hem," he said.

If Gibb hadn't put the knife in his pants hem, how did it get there?

"Did someone plant it? That's pretty fanciful. It's pretty far-fetched," said Smith.

Mr. Justice Samuel Toy was to address the jury this morning, following which the eight men and four women will begin deliberations.

Anacortes Ferry a Money-Loser

The provincial government would lose at least $3 million a year operating a ferry between Sidney and Anacortes, Wash., Transport Minister Jack Davis said Thursday night.

"We have no surplus vessel, no extra crews," Davis told Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria).

"The United States can't make it pay and they use smaller crews than we are permitted to do. We have done some preliminary studies, and it would cost us $3 million a year in losses.

"We have looked at it carefully, we'll continue to do so, but it would be an expensive run on a year-round basis."

A B.C. delegation headed by Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis is to meet Washington State officials in July in a bid to keep the ferry operating.

NEW FERRY ROUTE FOR NORTH COAST

One major new ferry route to Prince Rupert, supplemented by feeder services to smaller communities, will be the basis of the new ferry service to the north and mid-coast, Charles Gallagher, B.C. Ferry Corporation general manager, said Thursday.

Transport Minister Jack Davis disclosed the new route April 25, before the BCFC board of directors had a chance to study it.

Davis had said that the government was planning services to all communities, not just those with major ferry docks and that the ferries will be used for some freight services, such as transporting perishable food supplies which do not require special unloading equipment.

Gallagher said that starting in the fall, The Queen of Prince Rupert, will be based at Tsawwassen, south of Vancouver, rather than at Kelsey Bay on Vancouver Island.

"It will run twice-weekly to Prince Rupert, calling en route at Kelsey Bay, Bella Bella and Ocean Falls," said Gallagher. "Feeder services will also be set up in such a way as to provide connections with Namu, Klemtu, Port Simpson, Kincolith, Alice Arm and Stewart."

Kitimat is not included in this year's fall schedule.

Gallagher said, however, that if the private sector is unable to meet the area's requirements the ferries corporation "will have to make special arrangements there also."

Estimates Guillotine Unanimously Ended

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. legislature brought to a loud but unanimous end Thursday the three-year acrimonious battle over the imposition of time limits on legislative debate.

All MLAs rose to support a motion by Premier Bill Bennett which provides for cancellation of a rule imposed by the NDP government in 1974 allowing MLAs only 135 hours of debate on government spending estimates.

But the vote was proceeded by a long, sniper-style debate in which each side of the house accused the other of being arrogant and sanctimonious.

"It was a dark spot on the history of this legislature," the premier shouted, referring to the imposition of the time limits in 1974 by the NDP-government which accused the Social Credit opposition of deliverately prolonging and blocking passage of government spending estimates.

Bennett said the NDP, "through this infamous act" had carved for itself a unique position in B.C. history: "They restricted the right of this assembly to question the spending of the government."

Bennett, then leader of the opposition, and Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, led the 1975 fight against closure under a "Not a dime without debate" slogan and the NDP finally backed down and allowed special morning sittings so unlimited estimate debates could be held.

The chief NDP defence was offered Thursday by Vancouver East MLA Alex Macdonald who called the premier's speech "sanctimonious humbug."

Macdonald said Bennett's speech would turn the stomach of anyone who knew anything about the parliamentary system. Other provinces and the British government impose time limits on estimates debate, he said.

Throughout Macdonald's speech, Highways and Public Works Minister Alex Fraser shouted "Phooey, Phooey" and when his turn came in debate, suggested that the NDP should hang its head in shame.

"We're trying to let in a little sunshine," he said.

NDP leader Dave Barrett finally got to his feet and television debate on the rules televisio ndebate on the rules of the house.

Barrett wisecracked his way through most of his speech, referring to the "scintillating and witty analysis" provided by the normally droll Fraser.

"When the rules didn't suit them, they went out and cried about it."

"I now support this wonderful resolution to allow us a new level of communication, co-operation and love," he said.

Tory leader Scott Wallace said it was unfortunate that issues in the B.C. legislature always turn out black versus white.

There were points for both sides, he said.

On one hand, it simply is not practical for debate on spending estimates to be allowed to be blocked forever. The House simply cannot sit 365 days a year and therefore responsible members must reach agreement on debate, he suggested.

On the other hand, Wallace said, opposition scrutiny of government spending is the most important function of the legislature and could not be arbitrarily curtailed by time limits.

Both Bennett and Barrett, he said, lose points by overselling their case.

MAXIMUM FINES FACE BOOST TO $2,000

Maximum fines for people convicted of summary conviction offences in B.C. would be bosted to $2,000 from $500 Thursdy.
Thursday.

Under the proposed amendments to the Summary Convictions Act, the maximum penalty of six months imprisonment would remain the same.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said the new penalties would apply only to municipal and provincial statutes, regulations and bylaws which don't provide specific penalties for offences.

Gardom said the fines have been unchanged since 1936.

Marketing Board Attacks 'Unfair'

SURREY (CP) — Sig Peterson, deputy agriculture minister, said Thursday that when the provincial legislature's food inquiry is finished consumers will "know that marketing boards per se have a very marginal effect on food prices."

Peterson, speaking to a luncheon for vegetable industry officials, said of the 10 producer boards in British Columbia, only three have a direct influence on the price of food and "the others have about as much authority to set prices as you and I have in setting hydro rates."

"Marketing boards have been unfairly attacked in the opinion of our ministry," Peterson said, because their role is to have producers share equally with what is returned from the marketplace.

He said that if imported food products were removed from the monthly federal food price index, statistics would show that the increase in food costs from what is produced in Canada is a little more than three per cent a year — meaning food costs have a very low effect on inflation.

Peterson credited provincial legislation preserving farmland and programs providing farm income stability with giving B.C. status as the only area in Canada that has managed to reverse national trends of disappearance of commercial farms and increasing the average age of farmers.

New figures compiled by the government show that with a multiplier effect, the industry generates between $2.50 and $2.75 more for every dollar earned.

7% Sales Tax Exclusions Proposed

The B.C. division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Thursday called for the removal of the seven per cent sales tax from machinery and equipment used in manufacturing and from pollution abatement equipment.

The association, which met with provincial cabinet Thursday, said in a news release that similar action had been taken in Ontario "to encourage investment, broaden the industrial base and modernize production facilities."

It criticized government incentives for small businesses, saying that no segment of business should receive preferential treatment, and it urged that the benefits of any such programs be available to all businesses.

Greener Funds For Range Land

A total of $3.4 million will be funnelled into three areas of B.C. under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act (ARDA), the provincial government has announced.

The money will be spent on range improvement projects in the Cariboo, the Thompson-Okanagan and the Kootenays. Ninety per cent of the funding will come from the federal and provincial governments under the ARDA program, with the other 10 per cent supplied by local users.

Davey Singled Out In Conflict Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, a close confidant of Prime Minister Trudeau, was singled out by opposition MPs Thursday as one of a few senators who use their position for monetary gain in commercial ventures.

During a discussion in the Commons concerning possible conflicts of interest regarding Senator Davey's business holdings and those companies dealing with the federal government, Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) said:

"To some extent, the Canadian people are now convinced that the Senate is nothing more than a repository for people using their substantial Senate salaries to provide themselves with a secure income which allows them to participate in commercial ventures for their own benefit.

"When they are not doing that, they are perceived to be paid organizers, in effect, for their parties," he said.

To back his accusations, MacKay pointed to Senator Davey's involvement in two companies—Bluewater Raceway Associates Ltd. and Hydroculture Luwasa Canada Ltd.

Hydroculture, a company with operations in Ottawa and Toronto, grows plants using special nutrients.

MacKay said he wondered why Senator Davey would be a director of such an enterprise.

Outside the Commons, MacKay hesitated to state outright that the company was selling plants to the government.

RECEIVED INFORMATION

However, he said he had received some information concerning the company's customers that raised speculation about a conflict of interest.

MacKay said he did not want to make charges against the company, and hoped that information from the government would be forthcoming.

Rod Blaker (L—Lachine-Lakeshore, parliamentary secretary to the supply and services minister, said in the Commons that he did not know whether the company was doing business with the federal government.

However, Blaker did answer questions concerning Senator Davey's involvement in Bluewater Racing.

He said the company had applied to the government for racing permits in 1974 and was turned down because of various technicalities.

The following year, after it was known Senator Davey had joined the company, 19 permits were granted to it, he said.

Davey owns 50 of 100 shares in the privately-incorporated company, although published reports say he injected capital.

The senator's interest in the company was revealed when the 1975 application was made, Blaker said.

Ray Hnatyshyn (PC—Saskatoon-Biggar) described Davey as one of the most powerful senators in the country and that when he approaches public servants on issues such as obtaining licences they could be intimidated to grant his requests

600 WANT TO LEAVE

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada president, Claude Taylor, denied Thursday that there is an employee morale problem in Montreal and that 600 airline workers want transfers out of Quebec.

Taylor said at a Commons transport committee that "we haven't had a significant acceleration in applications for transfer out of Montreal within the last year."

118 Firms Quit Que.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government says 118 federally incorporated companies moved their head offices out of Quebec between the Nov. 15 provincial election and the end of April.

Information tabled Thursday in the Commons also shows that during the same period only seven companies moved their head offices into Quebec.

Only 52 of the 118 companies which left Quebec were officially established in the province for more than five years before the election of the Parti Quebecois government, the list showed.

Many of the companies listed are family holding companies. What is involved in many cases is merely a transfer of registration and a switch of bank accounts.

The federal information provided the assets of only six of the companies, totalling just over $90 million.

The largest is Canadian Overseas Packaging Industry Ltd. with assets of $55 million. Its head office, in Quebec since 1961, has moved to Saint John, N.B.

42,700 JOBS OPEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada reported Thursday that an average 42,700 job openings for full-time, part-time and casual employment were vacant during the three months ended May 31.

This total is down 20 per cent from the comparable period in 1976.

The number of job openings in the 1977 period for full-time jobs was 38,300. For every 1,000 existing jobs, there were five job openings, down from six per 1,000 last year.

The highest job vacancy rates were in Alberta, with nine vacancies for every 1,000 existing jobs. The lowest were in Newfoundland and New Brunswick, with three openings for every 1,000 current jobs.

Levesque Denies C'Wealth Bid

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque Thursday described as "an invention pure and simple" a statement by Prime Minister Trudeau that Quebec had made a bid to obtain separate representation within the Commonwealth.

"Where the hell Trudeau got that I don't know," Levesque said at his regular weekly news conference.

Trudeau was quoted Wednesday in stories from the Commonwealth conference in London as saying Shridath Ramphal, secretary-general of the Commonwealth, had rejected Quebec's bid.

Federal officials accompanying the prime minister said Levesque had raised the possibility of "some kind of associate membership" within the Commonwealth when he met Ramphal several weeks ago in Quebec City.

Levesque said that he and Ramphal had discussed the Parti Quebecois goal of Quebec independence.

The premier noted that an article in the Parti Quebecois program — "which isn't the bible"—calling for withdrawal from the Commonwealth if Quebec attains sovereignty had been removed.

Sauve Hedges on Violence

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve said Thursday that removing violence from the airwaves could require radical measures that would be "repugnant to the population."

But she said the question of TV violence has preoccupied her. She had asked broadcasters a year ago to reduce the amount of violence shown on television.

Sauve was responding in the commons to questions concerning the Ontario government's just-released report on violence in the media.

An Ontario commission of inquiry, chaired by former federal minister Judy La Marsh, said Canadians are exposed to more television violence than any other people.

Earlier, Sauve told MPs the federal government is not prepared to conduct a general inquiry into broadcasting at least until it receives a special report expected July 1 from the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC).

Prime Minister Trudeau asked the CRTC to advise on the need for an inquiry at the same time as he called on the federal regulatory body to investigate alleged political bias in the CBC, she said, the government is awaiting the CRTC report before it makes a decision.

But at the same time she said the government is ready to proceed with a bill clarifying federal repsonsibility in broadcasting and tightening government control over the CRTC even before the report is ready.

She said the matters dealt with in the bill are "completely separate" from the subjects considered in the CRTC report.

She was responding to Pat Nowlan PC—Annapolis Valley, who said "the increasingly confused state of broadcasting" requires an investigation of the comprehensive scope not seen since the Fowler Commission presented its report in 1955.

He said a royal commission or some other investigative body should also be asked to come up with recommendations concerning the introduction of pay television, the role of the CBC, areas of provincial jurisdiction and a possible reduction of regulation.

Doping Row Denied As Cause of Firing

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Foundation on Alcohol and Drug Dependencies (CFADD) has denied firing Andre McNicoll, its information director, for urging two Canadian Football League teams in a letter May 27 "to clean up their acts as regards the use of amphetamines by players."

James Edwards, CFADD president said in Edmonton that McNicoll was fired because "we didn't feel he was fulfilling his job to the best of his abilities."

McNicoll said Wednesday that he was fired after he wrote Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders about the alleged use of drugs by players.

Immigration Board Appeals Planned

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen Thursday introduced a mass of amendments to the proposed immigration act, including a change that would allow new hearings before the immigration appeal board in cases where there is new evidence.

Tht bill, as originally proposed, ruled out the possibility of a second hearing.

Another amendment would remove the immigration prohibition against persons "admitting to having committed a criminal offence as I do not believe that persons should suffer for being honest with us."

However, the bill still bars persons who had been convicted of an offence which would be illegal in Canada. The only exception would be violations of the Immigration Act.

"This will mean that persons who are issued departure notices following a conviction for an infraction of this bill, such as working in Canada without authorization, will not be subsequently refused readmission despite their ability to meet all of the other applicable requirements," Cullen said.

He defined a provision for secret security certificates applying to persons considered to be a threat to national security or involved in subversion, organized crime or terrorism.

"The recent expose about organized crime indicates the nature of the problem we are trying to solve," Cullen said.

"We have been duly concerned with this situation for some time, which is why we made these proposals to provide a weapon against this type of secret criminal activity where is is virtually impossible to find a witness to openly testify against it."

The security certificates, signed by the immigration minister and the solicitor-general, could be used as sufficient grounds for deportation or refusal of entry.

Another amendment proposed Thursday confirms the minster's current authority to direct the Unemployment Insurance Commission to issue special social insurance cards to persons who are not Canadian citizens or landed immigrants.

The special cards would identify the holders as persons who may be required to obtain work permits.

Cullen said he agreed with recommendations that persons seeking refugee status should be guaranteed a full hearing because "it is a concern which I personally share and which is supported by common sense and fair play."

He said he will announce improvements to the refugee appeal system, but will not put such changes in the act.

"Incorporating these changes in the bill itself would create great difficulties and inevitably overwhelm the system with non-bona-fide claims and legal entanglements."

Cullen said he also plans to establish a refugee status advisory committee with powers to call witnesses, hear refugee applicants personally and to demand the refugees be given a right to re-hearing in some cases.

Western Power Forecast

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE (CP) — Western Canada now has economic power and some day will be the political power of Canada, Jack Horner, federal minister without portfolio, said Thursday.

The Alberta MP, who left the Conservative Party earlier this year said the Liberal Party is awakening to the part Western Canada has played and can play in the over-all national scene.

"The Conservatives took Western Canada for granted," he told a public luncheon meeting sponsored by the Portage-Marguette constituency association.

Horner said investment for western development must be encouraged along with greater industrial diversification.

"The raw materials are grown here and should be processed here."

Terming disputes between the prairie provinces "nonsensical," Horner said:

"I look on the prairie provinces as one giant area and I'd be pleased to see the NDP ousted in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Premier Schreyer is not doing enough to make this province grow."

DEFICIT FROM AUTO TRADE SHRINKING

OTTAWA (CP) — The deficit on autos and parts trade with the United States fell to $137 million during the first three months this year from a deficit of $318 million in the comparable 1976 period, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

Both exports and imports were at record levels.

Exports were up 32 per cent in the 1977 quarter to $2.45 billion. Nearly 60 per cent of this $953 million gain was because of higher shipments of motor vehicles to supply a surge in U.S. buying.

Imports of motor vehicles and parts from the United States rose by 19 per cent to $2.59 billion. More than half of this $412 million gain was accounted for by increased parts imports.

Statistics Canada said that about 95 per cent of the Canadian shipments entered the U.S. market duty-free under terms of the 1965 Canada-U.S. auto pact. About 94 per cent of U.S. shipments came into Canada duty-free.

Exports of motor vehicles and parts to other foreign countries rose by 14.5 per cent to $148 million during the first three months this year.

The increased exports were entirely of passenger cars. Truck shipments fell from 1976 levels. The rise was concentrated in shipments to the oil-rich Middle East and to Venezuela.

Imports of automotive goods declined by $3 million from 1976 to $230 million in the first quarter this year.

Lui's Boot Paces Leos

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three second-half field goals by Lui Passaglia gave British Columbia Lions a 19-10 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Western Football Conference exhibition game Thursday night before 14,366 fans.

The teams were tied 10-10 at the half, but the Lions controlled much of the final 30 minutes ochind the quarterbacking of Gary Keithley.

Passaglia kicked a 25-yard field goal in the third quarter and added field goals of 38 and 36 yards in the final 15 minutes.

Keithley was the most impressive of three B.C. quarterbacks, although he failed to direct the Lions to a touchdown. B.C.'s only major came in the first quarter when another newcomer, Jerry Tagge, threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to rookie tight-end Richard Appleby.

Passaglia, who kept Saskatchewan deep in its own end most of the game with booming punts, converted and also added a single on a 56-yard punt for an 11-point night.

B.C.'s other two points came when defensive tackle Don Wunderly tackled quarterback Dave Williams in the Saskatchewan end zone for a safety touch in the opening quarter.

The Roughriders' touchdown came with the help of B.C. defensive back Ken Hinton, who tipped a pass into the hands of Greg Hudson of Saskatchewan and the rookie wide receiver rambled 78 yards for the score.

Bob Macoritti converted and kicked a 48-yard field goal to complete the Saskatchewan scoring.

Saskatchewan did not use veteran Ron Lancaster at quarterback as head coach Jim Eddy elected to use Williams and Eric Guthrie, acquired earlier this week from Montreal Alouettes. Guthrie threw the touchdown pass to Hudson, a rookie from Arizona State.

Keithley, with previous experience in the National Football League with St. Louis Cardinals, was much quicker than the slow-footed Tagge, another former NFL pivot with Green Bay Packers.

John Sciarra, a second-year pro, also played briefly at quarterback for the Lions, but spent most of the game at wide receiver.

1. Saskatchewan, field goal, Macoritti, 48 yards, 4:08.
2. B.C., safety, Williams tackled in end zone, 6:31.
3. B.C., touchdown, Appleby on 18-yard pass from Tagge, convert Passaglia, 11:27.

Second quarter:
4. B.C., single, Passaglia, 56 yards, 5:27.
5. Saskatchewan, touchdown, Hudson on 78-yard pass play from Guthrie, convert Macoritti, 12:43.

Third quarter:
6. B.C., field goal, Passaglia, 25 yards, 4:26.

Fourth quarter:
7. B.C., field goal, Passaglia, 28 yards, 1:04.
8. B.C., field goal, Passaglia, 36 yards, 6:05.

WHA Puts Mark On Top Juniors

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association, still uncertain whether it will operate independently or as part of the National Hockey League, next season, went through with its annual amateur draft Thursday.

Scott Campbell, a six-foot-two, 202-pound defenceman from London Knights of the Ontario Major Junior A league, was the No. 1 pick, going to Houston Aeros.

The nine teams would normally choose in order of their finish in the 1976-77 season but an assortment of deals changed all that. Houston, which had the best record during the regular schedule, wound up with the first and 10th choices. And Winnipeg Jets, which had the third-best record, had selections No. 3 and 8.

The Aeros, hit by the loss of Gordie Howe and his two sons to New England Whalers, took right-wing Dwight Foster of Kitchener Rangers as their second choice.

Barry Beck, a six-foot-three, 215-pound defenceman with New Westminster Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League which won the Memorial Cup as Canadian junior champions, was the No. 2 choice, taken by Calgary Cowboys.

Winnipeg selected Ron Duguay, a centre who scored 43 goals for Sudbury Wolves, with its first choice and picked Miles Zaharko, a six-foot, 190-pound New Westminster defenceman, with its second.

Asked what would happen if there were a merger between the WHA and NHL, league president Bill MacFarland said "I guess there will have to be some agreement, and there might have to be competitive bidding for players picked by teams in both leagues."

MacFarland was presented with a problem when Birmingham Bulls drafted Ken Linseman, an 18-year-old forward with Kingston Canadians, on the 10th and final round. The Bulls had previously announced they had signed Linseman to a contract despite a WHA rule that forbids the signing of any player under 20.

"I'll indicate to John Bassett (Birmingham owner) by letter that the draft choice is null and void," said MacFarland, adding that the Bulls will be permitted to use Linseman only if the courts rule him eligible.

A total of 90 players, most of them from Casnadian junior leagues but including a number of players graduating from U.S. colleges and a few players from European national teams, were selected.

Three members of European national teams were taken in the draft, all by Houston. The Aeros took goalkeeper Markus Mattson of Finland in the sixth round, centre Harald Luckner of Sweden in the seventh, and forward Matti Forss of Finland in the eighth.

Goalkeeper Murray Bannerman of Victoria Cougars, a fourth-round draft choice of the Canucks, was the 88th player selected, going in the tenth round to Winnipeg.

California Team Visiting

Victoria Firefighters Senior Babe Ruth League All Stars continue preparations for the British Columbia playoffs by facing a highly-rated team from California tonight and Saturday at Henderson Park.

Dunsmuir Siskiyou A's are one of the top teams in northern California and travel extensively each year.

Left-hander Jim Ruddy will start on the mound tonight at 6:30 for the All-Stars while Reg King and Rob Stenseth will get the nod in Saturday's doubleheader at 1 and 3 p.m.

Moose Jaw Picked

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Moose Jaw will be the site for the 1979 Uniroyal world junior curling championships, a representative of the company has announced.

LEAFS DROP KELLY AS COACH

TORONTO (CP) — President Harold Ballard of Maple Leaf Gardens said Thursday Red Kelly will not coach the Maple Leafs in the forthcoming National Hockey League season.

Ballard also said that Jim Gregory will be retained as general manager.

Kelly, NHL Coach of the Year in 1970 with Pittsburgh Penguins, has been Leafs' coach since 1973 when he was fired by Penguins' management.

"I told him there were other positions available in the organization and we'd love to have him," Ballard said in an interview. "He could be helping Gregory, or stay on as a scout, or whatever. He's one heck of a guy."

Ballard said Kelly would tell him today whether he will remain with the organization.

Kelly said he was not upset at the news. He met with Ballard an hour after taking therapy Thursday for old neck and back injuries.

"I have been treated here very well as a player and as coach," Kelly said. "We had some great times and some troublesome times, but that's all part of the game.

"That's why I wasn't really upset when Harold gave me the news this morning. Actually I had made up my mind before not to renegotiate my contract.

"Hockey has changed during the 30 years I have been involved in it, so I decided to do something else. I don't want to say now what it is but I expect to make an announcement in the not too distant future."

Kelly's departure throws the Leafs coaching stakes wide open, with four candidates reported interested in the job.

Latest entries are Orland Kurtenbach, a former Leaf centre who resigned as coach of Vancouver Canucks a few days ago, and Floyd Smith, who was let go as coach of Buffalo Sabres.

George Armstrong, former Leafs' captain and coach of the minor league Toronto Marlboros, and Roger Neilson, coach of the Dallas Blackhawks, are also interested in the job.

Finishing Hole Tough On U.S. Open Hopefuls

TULSA, Okla (AP) — Arnold Palmer provided the electricity, Jack Nicklaus was happy to get out alive, and the brutal 18th hole at Southern Hills scored a clear kayo of the field Thursday in the first round of the 77th United States Open golf tournament.

Seven players who have never captured a major championship shaved a stroke off par over the 6,873 yards of one of the toughest par-70 courses in North America.

Rod Funseth, Terry Diehl, Larry Nelson, Hubie Green, Grier Jones, Tom Purtzer and Argentina's 38-year-old Florention Molina struggled to 69s. Never in Open History had so many players been clustered in first place.

There was a logjam of 10 players at par including the 46-year-old Palmer, who had to qualify to get here and sent his followers into a frenzy by holing a wedge for a birdie on his roller-coaster round of four birdies and four bogies.

Nicklaus shot 74, Masters champion Tom Watson, looking for the Grand Slam, also floundered to a 74, and defending champion Jerry Pate suffered a six on the final hole for 72.

"The best thing for a man to do is come to that hole Sunday with a three-shot lead," said Al Geiberger, who bogeyed it for a 70.

Palmer, using only 29 putts, charged up a large majority of the total crowd of 14,818 with some of his old magic. He made three putts longer than 15 feet.

"The crowd pumped me up and I guess they were more exuberant than usual because I haven't given them a chance lately," he said. "I was doing things like I used to do."

Nicklaus, the dreaded giant of the game with 16 major championships, bogeyed two of the first four holes.

Tommy Bolt, the 59-year-old who won here in 1958 and was given a special exemption, shot a 75. Sam Snead, 64, who has captured more titles than any golfer but always let the Open escape his grip, fired a 74.

There were 53 players within four shots of the lead.

Soviets Explode To Whip Canada

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Soviet Union's Olympic team gave Canada's national squad a lesson in basketball Thursday night as they scored 24 straight points in the second half and went on to whip Canada 88-53 in Intercontinental Cup play.

Canada played the taller, more physical and much more experienced Soviets on even terms through the first half. At one point they led 22-13 but the Russians scored 10 straight points to move ahead 23-22 and they held a 35-32 lead at the half. Canada hit two baskets early in the second half before the Soviets broke loose during a seven-minute span.

Canada trailed 43-39 when the Soviets suddenly went to work and ran the score to 67-39 before Peter Ryan hit an outside jump shot for Canada to break the scoring streak.

"The Soviets are a very rugged team and we got beat up physically," said Canadian coach Jack Donohue. "Our guys were simply run down from being constantly beat on."

Donohue said he made a decision that resulted in the final margin of victory when the Soviets moved into a 20-point lead midway through the second half.

"When you're down by 20 points you have a decision to make . . . you either take a run at them and say we're going to win; or you slow down the game and lose by 18 or 20 points, or you say let's play our own game and see how our other guys play.

"So we went to our bench. But I count this as an 18-point game."

The Soviets did all their second-half damage without seven-foot-four Vladimir Tkachenko who was on the bench with four fouls but without him they presented a more mobile offence and defence that Canada simply couldn't cope with.

Tkachenko scored 10 points and had seven rebounds during the 18 minutes he played.

Leo Rautins led Canada's scorers with 15 points but he ran into foul problems in the first half also.

Gorge Pads Lead

Gorge Hotel won the battle of the league leaders in the Senior Amateur Baseball League at Lambrick Park Thursday night with a 4-3 victory over second-place Kubiceks.

Victory moved Gorge a game and a half ahead of Kubiceks in the league race.

Russ Holmes, making his first start of the season, was the winning pitcher. The playing manager pitched six innings before giving way to Derek Drinkwater in the seventh.

Garnet Moen battled in two runs and Mark Lawless scored twice and knocked in one run for Gorge. Dale Aune was three for three at the plate for the losers, scored two runs and blanked Gorge over the last five innings in a relief pitching role. Jeff Owens was tagged with the loss.

Gorge came up with four double plays and Kubiceks three.

Gorge	310 000 0	4	9 2
Kubiceks	000 201 0	3	7 3

Finley Raps Kuhn for Seaver Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley said Thursday the trade of Tom Seaver by New York Mets to Cincinnati Reds "without a whimper from Bowie Kuhn confirms his perverted, selective and political use of his office to favor his friends and punish his enemies."

Finley, whose sale of pitchers Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi was voided by commissioner Kuhn last summer, told The Associated Press: "Kuhn's irresponsible and selective use of his office is a dishonor to the game of baseball, insulting to the millions of baseball fans and a total betrayal to the once-respected office of the commissioner."

"It is tragic the great game is burdened with such an irrational and vindictive person," said Finley, who has been involved in numerous court battles with the commissioner and has said he will continue his legal fight.

"The similarities between the Seaver deal and my assignment of Vida Blue to New York Yankees are striking," Kuhn said from his Chicago office. "Both deals were made on June 15, the trading deadline. Both involved Cy Young award winning pitchers.

"Kuhn disapproved Oakland's assignment, waving the banner of competitive balance. Yet Seaver has gone to the strongest team in baseball which has won two consecutive world championships and allows them to virtually cinch their third."

The Reds were the busiest traders, sending relief pitcher Rawley Eastwick to St. Louis for Doug Capilla; Cary Nolan to California for minor league infielder Craig Hendrickson and a player to be named later; purchasing infielder Rick Auerbach from Texas and trading pitcher Mike Caldwell to Milwaukee.

In other major deals, the Phillies acquired catcher Barry Foote and pitcher Dan Warthen from Montreal in exchange for pitcher Wayne Twitchell and catcher Tim Blackwell; infielder Mike Phillips was traded by the Mets to St. Louis for outfielder Joel Youngblood; pitcher Steve Hargan went from Oakland to Atlanta for a player to be named later while the A's also obtained outfielder Willie Crawford from Houston, and hard-hitting Cliff Johnson became a Yankee in exchange for a pair of minor leaguers.

In an aftermath to the deal sending slugger Dave Kingman from the Mets to San Diego Padres, Kingman is reported to have asked the Mets to consider signing him in October if he is still a free agent because he still likes New York.

Fishing Is First-Rate From Sooke to Pedder Bay

Waters between Sooke and Pedder Bay have to rate as the hottest spot for salmon fishing around Vancouver Island this weekend.

And the biggest and best was a 56½-pound chinook landed Sunday by Joe Luksic of Cobble Hill off Beechey Head. He was trolling with a flasher, strip, 75 feet of line and 1½ pounds of lead when the lunker struck early in the morning. It took 45 minutes to land.

Another monster — a 49-pounder — was landed by teenager Peter Charles after about a half-hour battle Wednesday. He was using strip, 50 feet of line and 1½ pounds of weight.

Secretary Island and Otter Point waters are yielding some excellent catches. Tom White came in with a 35-pounder Thursday morning from the first spot after trolling with an anchovy and about a pound of lead while George Bevis caught three — 34, nine and five — in the latter area on strip Wednesday.

Hootchies, Squirts and minnows have also been producing at all depths.

Waters between the Pedder Bay kelp bed and Church Island have been hot. Harold White boated a 37¾-pounder Wednesday off the kelp bed on minnow and Andreas Jedinak landed an 84-pound limit (36, 17, 21, 10) Tuesday working toward Church with minnow and anchovies.

In general, the best returns were on 60 to 110 feet of line and up to two pounds of weight.

Oak Bay fishermen are picking up chinooks to 16 pounds on anchovies and strip fished fairly light off The Gap and Trial Island.

Fishermen wielding casting rods equipped with Stingsildas or Buzz Bombs are landing chinooks to 17½ pounds off the James Island powder wharf and Sidney Spit in the very early morning — around 4:30.

A few chinooks to eight pounds are showing off Wain Rock and some slightly larger have been picked up off Bamberton and Cole Bay on minnows and small spoons.

A fair number of limit catches have been made during the afternoon and evening in Finlayson Arm. Chinooks to 13 and coho to five have been landed on deep lines trolling strip or Squirts between Hall's and Stone House.

Catches of chinooks have also picked up at Port Renfrew with some chinooks as heavy as 40 pounds and a few sockeye to 15 taken on strip right in the mouth of the bay.

Chinooks to 25 pounds are providing some good action for moochers and trollers using strip off Bold Bluff and the odd chinook to 21 pounds is starting to show off Entrance Island.

Fishing for chinooks to 18 pounds is excellent in the mouth of Alberni Inlet — providing you're good at dodging the commercial seiners and gillnetters.

All the best spots around Campbell River are yielding chinooks to 20 pounds both on mooched and deeply-trolled herring. The coho in this area are now reaching the seven-pound mark with most taken on bait or hootchies (white, yellow or red) fished at any depth.

Trout fishing seems to have dropped off suddenly after that last hatch of large black ants but should start to pick up this weekend.

NIBBLES: Recreationalists should take note of the high fire hazard prevailing in all Island forests . . . Refrain from smoking and lighting fires . . . A Sooke Combined Fire Organization spokesman advises the gate at Mile-12 on Butler's main haul road and one between the Bear Creek and Diverson reservoirs will be closed this weekend because of the hazard.

Outdoorwise, this provincial government of ours is getting quite unbelievable . . . First Socred party whip George Mussallem sounds off about the desirability of flooding the Skagit Valley . . . When it's quite obvious from reported statements he hasn't actually seen the area in question . . . Then Environment Minister Jim Nielsen introduces legislation that will permit the cabinet to sell off greenbelt land providing it's in the "general public good."

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will hold its monthly meeting starting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Ingraham Hotel . . . Included on the agenda is an address by Ted Oldham, assistant manager of the pollution control branch and a film entitled Nature's Helpers by conservation officer Jack Lenfesty on the Amalgamated Conservation Society's Goldstream projects.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

HERMAN

Quick Getaway Helps Burrards

NEW WESTMINSTER — Vancouver Burrards scored early and late here Thursday to defeat New Westminister Salmonbellies 17-12 in a Western Lacrosse Association game and increase their lead over second-place Victoria Shamrocks to 10 points.

Burrards, who have lost but one game in 13 starts this season, jumped off to a 7-1 lead in the first period, were still on top 12-6 after two but then saw the Salmonbellies score five straight goals starting the third period.

That cut their margin to one goal at 12-11. But just when it seemed the Salmonbellies might get the equalizer, Burrards themselves responded with a five-goal outburst to salt the decision away.

Dave Tasker and Dave Litzenberger each scored four goals for Burrards. Rico Bellusci got two and Bill Rawson, Bryan Ansley, Bob Holmes, Mike Smith, Ron Pinder, Ward Sanderson and Doug Hayes had singles.

Wayne Goss and Bob Tasker each scored four goals to lead New Westminster. Daryl McColl, Walt Weaver, Norm Leuszler and Harvey Olsen had singles. Salmonbellies outshot Burrards 52-47.

Demers Jumps

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Stingers of the World Hockey Association have named Jacques Demers as their head coach for the 1977-78 season.

For the last two seasons, Demers has served as head coach and director of player personnel for Indianapolis Racers of the WHA.

'Vacation' in Oak Bay An Enjoyable Experience

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Jeanie Hopps analyzed the golf schedule before making her holiday plans this year. Her "vacation" in sunny Oak Bay has proven to be "most enjoyable."

Playing in the Victoria women's golf championship for only the second time in nine years, the eight-handicapper from Uplands eliminated two former champions to march into today's final against Doroth DeGirolamo of Gorge Vale.

Miss Hopps, two down after 10 holes, rallied to defeat clubmate Joan Lawson 2 and 1 while Mrs. DeGirolamo, the defending champion, beat Colwood's Pat Derry 3 and 2 in Thursday's semi-finals at Victoria Golf Club.

Jeanie defeated 11-time champion Marg Todd of Victoria in Wednesday's quarter-finals.

A surprise finalist?

Well, Miss Hopps is if you consider her competitive outings in recent years, and she isn't if you study her credentials.

The credentials include a victory in the Edmonton women's tournament, a 72-hole medal test, in 1967.

After moving to Victoria nine years ago, she had to curtail competitive golf.

"I have to work for a living," she explained. "You only get so much time for vacation and you have to give up a week of that to play in this tournament.

"But this year I analyzed the situation. The city tournament was at Oak Bay and the provincial at Uplands. When my boss asked me where I was going on my vacation, I said 'Oak Bay.' "

In her only previous appearance in the city tournament, played at Uplands, Jeanie qualified handily but lost her first-round game — to Mrs. Lawson.

She squared accounts with Thursday's victory. Miss Hopps won four successive holes — from the 14th to the 17th — to win the semi-final match.

'Y' Offers Ocean Awareness Program

The YM-YWCA's John Durkin is offering a new program this summer which should appeal to those wanting to know more about the sea.

Called on ocean awareness program, it will be centred at Camp Thunderbird in Sooke. Exploring the shortlines south and north of Sooke, participants will examine sea life, be taught the safe operation of both power and sail boats, be introduced to fishing, clam digging and the cooking of these and other edible sea foods.

There will also be instruction in tides, weather and stars. Evenings on the beach will end with swapping of sea stories, singing of sea shanties and instruction on knots and the repairing of boats.

There will be two courses. One running from July 13 to 21 will be for those between 14 and 18 years of age. Another for 18-year-olds and older will run from Aug. 14 and 20.

The fee of $100 covers the cost of food, transportation, shelter and boats but participants must take along their own camping gear.

Veteran sailor Dick James is hoping there'll be some Victoria boats at the Border Area Racing Council's third annual sailing regatta to be held July 2-3 at Blaine.

Dick, who helped organize the BARC, reports things will get under way with a long-distance race from Sucia Island on July 2 and there'll be around-the-buoy racing at Blaine the following day. The fee is $10 per boat with a free T-shirt thrown in as a memento. If you want to know mort about this, Dick can be reached at 383-9695.

AROUND OUR SHORES

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club has plenty of activity planned for the weekend. Another around-Discovery Island race will be sailed under the reverse handicap system on Saturday, starting at 1 p.m.

Two races will be sailed on Sunday, starting in the Gonzales Point area at 9:30 and 9:35 a.m. respectively. The first start will be for International Offshore Rule and Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet boats sailing a 27-miler to Race Rocks and back. Cal 20s, Thunderbirds and PHRF boats are eligible for the other, a 14.8-miler to the degaussing buoy and back.

The RVYC will also have series racing again on Wednesday, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The first three Laser sailors this wetk were Dave Richardson, Dave Teece and Marty Watson. In Cal 20s it was George Lewis' Sea Faver, followed by Les Ayre's Acadie and Pat Biden's Pegasus. The top three Thunderbirds were Bob Grundison's Owl, Andy McBride's Crazy Jane and John Booth's Umpka. Leading the PHRF fleet were Dick Readshaw's Massillia II, Soren Isbrand's Danish Pastry and Murray Farmer's Seeker.

For the fourth year in succession Doc Beaudry has won the Royal Channel Islands Yacht Club Trophy for first Sailerette to finish in the annual Roche Harbor race of the Esquimalt's Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Racing with him in Black Hawk on Saturday were his son Mike, Vic Wauthier and Howie Wightman.

Ed Haines had the whole family aboard Lotte, winning the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association Trophy for cruising boats in the same race.

The squadron's cruising boats and Sailerettes have A series racing on Sunday. Start time is 10 a.m. Fireball and 420 sailors will have series racing on Wednesday, beginning at 7 p.m.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club is expecting a good turnout on Saturday for its annual around-Salt Spring Island race. The race starts at 3 p.m. in the vicinity of the government wharf at Sidney.

SHORT TACKS: I'd like to throw both a bouquet and a rock this week, the bouquet going to volunteers of the Thermopylae Club who manned the phones for the biennial west coast race, which was won by veteran campaigner Bill Gardner of Seattle in Lucy Alice.

The rock goes to the ill-mannered commercial fisherman we met in Sansum Narrows on Saturday afternoon. We were under sail in Galenala II and he had lots of room to manoeuvre.

In fact, a fishboat ahead of him altered course slightly to avoid us. Not this guy. Going full pelt, his boat, Able Lady No. 1, was kept on course, going under our bow and missing us by inches. That boat may be able but she's sure no lady.

REDS HOLDING TRYOUT CAMP

The World Series champion Cincinnati Reds of the National League will be conducting a tryout camp for baseball players between 16 and 22 years of age at Nanaimo on Sunday.

The camp will be under the direction of Larry D'Amato, Pacific Northwest scouting supervisor for the Reds. Assisting him will be area scout Jim Seredick of Port Alberni and Ron Elboff, Canadian supervisor for British Columbia.

Players should report to Serauxman Stadium, 3rd Street, Nanaimo, ready to play at 10 a.m. and be prepared to work out until 3:00 p.m. They must furnish their own shoes, uniforms, gloves and personal gear. The Cincinnati Reds will provide the other equipment.

Montreal Olympics Show $126M Profit

PRAGUE (AP) — Who said the Olympic Games were too expensive.

Montreal, last year's host city, proved that given existing stadiums and facilities the Games can be run at a profit.

A final report from Montreal to the 79th session of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) showed that the organizing committee had an excess of revenue over costs of $126 million.

All the debt left by the Montreal Games — estimated at between $200 million and $300 million — is borne by the city of Montreal and the province of Quebec, which undertook the building.

That is cheering news for the IOC, which later this year has to choose a city to play host to the Games of 1984. If the IOC picks a city that has all its facilities in place, the Games can still make a few dollars.

Many IOC members believe the 1984 Games will be in Los Angeles, which has most of the competition sites and enough university buildings to house the athletes.

The U.S. National Olympic Committee still has to confirm Los Angeles as a candidate. Bids for 1984 have to be made to the IOC by Oct. 31 this year.

The Montreal report showed that the organizing committee COJO had operating expenses of $140 million, capital costs of $47 million and a loan for the village of $76 million, a total of $263 million.

Its estimated consolidated revenues were $380 million.

Cosmos Trip Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — New York Cosmos defeated Toronto Metros-Croatia 2-1 at 4:43 of a sudden-death overtime period in a North American Soccer League game before 21,723 at Varsity Stadium Thursday night.

It was the farewell for Pele in Toronto, who will quit the NASL at the end of the season.

The loss lifted the Cosmos eight points ahead of Ft. Lauderdale Strikers in the Eastern Division and dropped Toronto into third place in the Northern Division.

A 'SLEW' OF TICKETS FOR SALE

Mark and Dave Mitchell say they have "thousands of tickets" from the Kentucky Derby and as many as 1700 tickets from Belmont.

So far they have only 900 winning tickets from Preakness, but once they have more they plan to sell the set of three, suitably framed, for $500 apiece.

Of course they don't expect to sell many sets right away.

"We'll just rathole them for five or six years," then bring them out," said Mark.

Softball Teams On Go

Central Park, the site of most Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League games, will have a strangely deserted look this weekend.

(All games scheduled for tonight, Saturday and Sunday have been postponed because most Stuffy teams will be attending tournaments.

Ingraham Hotel and Sooke Merchants will play in a tournament at Campbell River and Molsons are slated to attend another tourney in Seattle.

Colony Inn and Seaboard Construction have league games in Port Angeles.

Athletics weren't idle Thursday night, however, and chalked up a 7-1 decision over Seaboard at Central Park.

Dennis Eckert led Athletics with a two-run homer, a single and a double during three trips to the plate to score twice and drive in four runs.

Seaboard ended a scoring famine after 23 2-3 innings when first baseman Wayne Forland smacked a double to drive in relief pitcher Barry Wilkin in the third frame.

But their hitting still leaves a lot to be desired. Seaboard batters have only averaged three hits per game in their last four games.

At Hyacinth Park, Diane Daniels smacked a grand slam home run to lead CJVI Vicettes to a 20-3 victory over MacDonalds Furniture and into a share of first place with GSV Combos in the Victoria Senior Women's League.

In the other game, Rene O'Connell cracked a two-run homer in the third innig to lead Hygrade Radio to a 5-2 win over Butler Brothers.

In Sidney Men's League play, Mike Kirby picked up the mound victory and hit a solo home run to lead first-place Seaboard Properties to a 5-0 shutout over KOA Kampgrounds, at Sanscha Park.

At Keywood Avenue Park, Castle Properties scored two runs on a pair of singles at the top of the seventh inning to nudge Century Inn 2-1 and remain unbeaten in the Heywood Men's League.

In Macdonald Men's League play, first-place Victoria Athletics bounced Cliff MacKay Ltd. 5-2, Strathcona Hotel topped Mayfair Insurance 9-3 and Davidson Cement scored a 6-1 win over Trafalgar Legion.

Victoria Bate, reigning Canadian champions and the only senior "A" team in the Capital City, will also be on the road this weekend with exhibition games in Port Alberni and Parksville.

Stingers Run Streak To Seven

Mark Schoor helped Victoria Strathcona Stingers keep the record straight Thursday night with a 13-9 victory over Saanich E. J. Hunter Construction in a Vancouver Island Junior "B" Lacrosse League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Schoor fired five goals to lead the scoring attack as Stingers chalked up a seventh straight victory in an unbeaten season and extended a lead over runner-up Saanich to five points.

Dwayne Ferguson added two goals and six assists while single tallies were recorded by George Bridges, Steve Croucher, Ravi Pallan, Forrest Owens, Cleve Dheensaw and Mike Kilpatrick.

Jerry Bell, Paul Sharples and Terry Gibbard counted two goals each for Saanich while Pete McCreesh, Kep Margetish and Greg McGinnis notched singles.

Australians Take Charge

LONDON (Reuter) — Australia took an early grip on the first cricket Test against England by dismissing its opponents 216 all out Thursday.

Bob Woolmer (79) and Derek Randall (53) were the only English batsmen to cope with a lively Australian pace attack spearheaded by Jeff Thomson.

Thomson, whose career has been threatened by a serious shoulder injury, skittled out opening pair Dennis Amiss and Mike Brearley with only 13 runs on the board.

And it was Thomson who cleaned up the innings 10 minutes before the scheduled close by bowling fellow fast bowler Bob Willis to complete his figures of four for 41.

Interest Hits a High For Foursomes Play

Interest in the Centennial Foursome golf tournament, which waned slightly a few years ago, is back at a high peak.

A record 118 teams — 236 golfers — are set to tee off Sunday at Victoria Golf Club in the 19th annual hunt for the Rose Bowls.

Golfers play off half of their combined handicaps and hit alternate shots in the 18-hole medal test.

U.S. Big Cars Sell Out Fast

In fact, they are going out of style and demand for the last of the big cars is a major reason for the industry's record performance in early June, when new car sales topped last year's by 11 per cent to shatter a five-year-old record.

It was the big-car divisions such as Cadillac, Buick and Lincoln-Mercury that led the sales charts with new records.

The standard-sized Ford and the Big Chevrolet were the top sellers both for Ford and General Motors, which paced the industry in the June 1-10 period.

GM sales were up 18 per cent, Ford increased 12 per cent, American Motors topped last year by three per cent and Chrysler, alone among the U.S. companies, dropped 12 per cent.

It was the second consecutive period in which AMC sales topped year-ago levels, a feat the slumping small-car auto company hasn't been able to accomplish since late March in 1976.

"The big-car sales aren't dying. That's for sure," one industry analyst noted following Tuesday's 10-day sales report. "What we're seeing is some strengthening in demand for our small cars and a lot of people trying to get what they think are the last of the big ones."

Interest in small cars has increased since Preisdent Carter's mid-April energy crisis message but most of the demand has been for imports, which have set sales records in each of the past three months. Domestic automakers, however, said their small car sales are increasing.

But mid-sized and larger models, both the downsized versions offered by GM and the carryover models from Ford and Chrysler, showed the most sales strength.

U.S., Soviet Views Split Over Helsinki Accords

BELGRADE (WP) — Fundamental differences emerged here Thursday in U.S. and Soviet approaches to reviewing how well nations have carried out the far-reaching pledges on European security, economic co-operation and human rights signed by 35 countries at Helsinki in 1975.

The differences became clear here in the second day of a 35-nation preparatory conference meant to lay the groundwork for a full-scale review of the Helsinki accords this fall.

But he said the emphasis should be on "summarizing the positive accomplishments" since the accords were signed and in "looking toward the future" with respect to new proposals.

In that way, Voronteov said, the conference would "contribute to the general improvement of the political climate."

In effect, the Soviets are asking the participants not to criticize each other or examine in detail the failure of individual countries to live up to the spirit of some of the pledges made at Helsinki.

Those pledges, however, inspired an upsurge of demands for individual freedoms and human rights throughout Eastern Eufope, and the Carter administration has undertaken a major campaign of pressing the Soviets on this issue and openly criticizing them for a "disappointing" performance in the two years since the Helsinki agreement was signed.

The U.S. delegation here is arguing for the thorough and complete review of implementation of all parts of the accords that is called for in the final act of the Helsinki agreements.

The United States, backed by most West European countries, is pressing for basically an open-ended debate beginning next fall that will not end until all points are examined and that would include working committees as well as full conference groups so that detailed assessments can be made.

Women Troops In Next War?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Population changes may increase pressures to use women in combat in future wars, a Pentagon officer told a military symposium.

The declining birthrate and the "reduced recruiting pool" of fighting age youths may become a factor in deciding whether to end the current ban against military women taking part n combat, said Army Col. Henry L. Taylor.

The Army policy could change and "the Navy is already studying the supply and demand there will be" for manpower in coming years, said Taylor, a staff officer with the director of defence research and engineering.

Sleepwear May Be Exported

NEW YORK (WP) — The Consumer Products Safety Commission is considering allowing U.S. manufacturers to export millions of children's sleepwear garments that have been banned in the United States because they contain the flame-retardant chemical Tris, which has been found to cause kidney cancer.

Meanwhile, jobbers and exporters in New York's garment district have been trying to buy up huge quantities of Tris-treated children's garments at cut-rate prices in anticipation of a ruling by the federal government that they can be sold abroad.

The Consumer Product officials, already under criticism for mishandling the Tris ban last year and possibly causing the insolvency of half the nation's small manufacturers of children's sleepwear, suddenly has found itself between a rock and a hard place.

The commission can rule, in effect, that a fabric containing a cancer-causing substance is not suitable for use by American infants but is suitable for use in foreign countries.

Another option would be to ban exports of the chemically treated material and inflict further hardship on the beleaguered sleepwear industry, which already has engaged the government in a series of lawsuits and claims for damages.

The commission is scheduled to meet Friday to hear arguments about the export proposal.

Cuba Planned Nixon Raid —Columnist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro developed a secret plan in 1969 to have underwater raiders blow up then-President Richard Nixon's winter home at Key Biscanye, Fla., columnist Jack Anderson reports.

Anderson says the raid was a contingency plan and that there was no known attempt to carry it out. He also says he does not know whether the plans included an attempt on Nixon's life.

But he says a Cuban official at the United Nations was expelled from the United States in connection with the plan.

Anderson says the diplomat, Lazara Eddy Espinosa Bonet, tried to recruit a Cuban-American servant working inside Nixon's Key Biscayne compound to provide blueprints of security arrangements. The servant, who was told that harm would come to him and to relatives in Cuba if he did not agree to help in the plan, instead told U.S. officials about it, Anderson says.

Anderson's account says the blueprints were to be used to guide frogmen in an attack on the Nixon home.

VANCE SEES IMPROVED SOVIET TRADE

ST. GEORGES, Grenada (WP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Thursday that he hopes for congressional repeal of the amendment that limits U.S. trade with the Soviet Union until the Soviets allow More Jews to emigrate.

The move, apparently a trial balloon, came at a press conference ending Vance's three-day visit to the Organization of American States General Assembly here. He said repeal of the amendment was "not likely in the near future," considering the current "climate" in Congress.

"However, I would hope that in the time this could be done," he said.

Cyprus Forces Warning Given

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canadian Ambassador William Barton told the UN Security Council late Thursday that peacekeeping forces cannot remain in Cyprus indefinitely.

Barton, president of the council for June, urged the rival Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot communities to reach an accommodation that would enable the UN Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) to end the costly peacekeeping operation that began 13 years ago.

The council voted 14 to 0 shortly before the midnight Wednesday night deadline to extend the Cyprus peacekeeping mandate for six more months, but negotiations were difficult, Barton said.

The council debated the Cyprus issue for four hours Thursday and invited Greece and Turkey-non-members-as well as the Cypriots to speak. Most of the council members also spoke.

About the only thing the opposing Greek and Turkish sides agreed on was that UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's peace-seeking mission is worthwhile and should be continued.

However, ambassador Jorge Illueca of Panama — a council member — swept aside many of the arguments when he noted that a 1975 council resolution had urged everyone to refrain from any action deterimental to the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of Cyprus.

He said the case of Cyprus must be solved on the basis of the interests of the Cyriots, not on the basis of the interests of any military power.

Barton said all the efforts by the UN thus far have not led to relief of the underlying political tensions on the Mediterranean island.

"In a case like this," he said, "one cannot help but be concerned that the two communities have not used the presence of the UN peacekeeping force as an opportunity for them to resolve their differences and live amicably together."

6.3% Pay Hike

BURNABY (CP) — Professors at Simon Fraser University have agreed to a one-year, 6.3 per cent wage increase with an additional 3.7 per cent to be set aside for career programs or promotion. Last year professors agreed to a 4.5 per cent increase.

ESKIMO PARLEY TACKLES VARIED PROBLEMS

BARROW, Alaska (UPI) — Eskimo leaders from six nations are working toward establishing an international Eskimo organization to protect the fragile Arctic land and sea environment.

Delegates from Alaska, Canada, Greenland, Finland, Sweden and Norway divided into workshops Thursday to develop positions on four basic issues — circumpolar Arctic policy and Arctic conservation; land, economies and government relations; education and mutual exchanges, and health and village development.

The two big issues the conference must deal with in its final two days are land claims by Canadian and Greenland Eskimos and a circumpolar resource policy.

While striving to form an international Eskimo organization, the delegates operated under a temporary resolution adopted Wednesday.

The conference was organized by Eben Hopson, mayor of Alaska's North Slope Burrough, who has been concerned that the Arctic environment will be ruined by offshore exploration for oil and gas in the Beaufort Sea and other Arctic waters.

U.S.-German Rocket Pioneer Von Braun Dead at 65 of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German-born rocket pioneer whose talents helped the United States put men on the moon, died Thursday after a long bout with cancer. He was 65.

Von Braun underwent surgery in 1975 for removal of a malignant liver tumor and had maintained a sharply curtailed schedule since then. He died at Alexandria Hospital in suburban Virginia.

Last year, he had a recurrence of cancer, coupled with an infection that developed following surgery. He spent long stretches in the hospital, including a final stay beginning last October.

Even while in hospital he continued limited work on his job as vice-president of engineering and development for Fairchild Industries. He joined Fairchild in 1972 and worked mainly on space projects until he retired last Jan. 1.

Once bitterly hated by the free world, von Braun became its top rocket expert after he and 129 other German rocket experts surrendered to the United States shortly before the end of the Second World War.

The man who once helped design the V-2 rocket for Adolf Hitler designed the United States Army's Jupiter-C rocket that allowed his new country to recoup some of the prestige lost when the Soviet Union launched the first spoce satellite in 1957.

Von Braun told President Dwight Eisenhower well before the Soviet Sputnik launching that his team had the capability of putting a satellite into orbit around the earth. But Eisenhower wanted to use a rocket developed for non-military uses for the first effort to emphasize the peaceful uses of space and von Braun was turned down.

Sputnik and the subsequent failure of the Vanguard rocket, the much-publicized U.S. first attempt to rocket a satellite into space, forced Eisenhower to turn to von Braun.

On Jan. 31, 1958, the Jupiter-C lifted off, carrying a 30-pound satellite called Explorer into an elliptical orbit and giving the U.S. program its first success.

Von Braun also was instrumental in designing a longer-range Jupiter rocket, the Saturn-1 booster and the huge Saturn-5 rocket that powered men beyond the earth's gravity and sent them to a "soft" landing on the lunar surface.

Von Braun came to the United States in September, 1945, under contract to the U.S. Army. He and his men spent five years at Fort Bliss, Tex., working on the V-2 rocket they had developed in Germany. They were transferred to the army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., in 1950 to develop the Redstone missile, the forerunner of the Jupiter-C.

In 1955, von Braun became a U.S. citizen. He and his team, now grown to 4,000 engineers and technicians, were transferred from the army in 1960 to the newly-formed National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

He finally left his laboratories in 1970 to come to Washington as NASA's deputy assistant director for planning. Two years later, he resigned his government job to join Fairchild Industries, a private firm that was developing scientific satellites, as a vice-president for engineering.

He was instrumental in forming the National Space Institute, a non-profit organization that promoted the peaceful use of space as a tool to help all mankind.

Von Braun was born in Wiersitz, Germany, the son of Baron Magnus von Braun, agriculture secretary under German President Paul von Hindenburg. He attended the Institutes of Technology in Berlin and Zurich and did advance work in mechanical engineering and physics at the University of Berlin.

He started his rocket experiments before going to college even though his father believed this was just a passing phase of his boyhood. His laboratory was a municipal dump and his first rocket—pressurized with a bicycle pump—failed to fly.

But the German government took an interest in von Braun and his ideas.

He was only 20 when the preHitler government put him in charge of the entire rocket program at the Kummersdorf experiment station. He was 25 when made technical director of the German rocket centre at Peenemunde.

He and his wife, the former Maria von Quistorp, had three children.

A private funeral service was held Thursday and public announcement of the death was delayed until today.

CLUB MARKING 50 YEARS THIS WEEKEND

Doctors, Lawyers, Laborers —All Hooked on Motorcycles

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Once you've been a keen motorcyclist, you're hooked for life, says Reg Shanks.

He should know.

"Going on 72," he was among members of the Victoria Motorcycle Club that "were stunting on the beach at the Oak Bay tea party," he reports.

The oldest active member of the club, Shanks is a director and general chairman for this weekend's golden jubilee celebrations. Members and ex-members will have a get-together at the Lambrick Park hall on Friday evening. "We'll be comparing notes and swapping lies," he says with a grin.

As Shanks reels off the names of those who were active members of the VMC in 1927, it begins to sound like a businessmen's directory.

Among them were Bill Dillabough of Dillabough and Luney, Keith Dorman of Dorman's Clothes and the Norrington brothers of Norrington bakery.

Then, of course, there were the Shanks — Reg, his brother Bob, who until recently operated Shanks' Saddlery, and their father, the late Pop Shanks who started Brooklands Motorcycle Sales and Service Ltd. on Fort back in 1913.

Reg, who carries on the family business, said although the VMC is officially 50 years of age the beginnings go back much farther.

"The roots go back to 1908 when there was a combination car and motorcycle club — seven or eight cars and four or five motorcycles," he reported. The VMC started as an entity in 1912 but was brought to an end by the First World War.

"When the war broke out the club was practically decimated with everybody joining up," he explained. "In 1919, there were a few stragglers around but in 1927 we really got together and we've never looked back."

Riding their machines in formation, members of the VMC have become an integral part of the Victoria Day Parade over the years. They've led the Pacific National Parades in Vancouver and gone through their paces for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip when the royal couple visited Victoria.

But it's not the pageantry that keeps the members together.

One of the best known of these is the annual Mt. Douglas hill climb. "It's probably the oldest athletic sporting event in Victoria," Shanks said, adding he saw his first one in 1921. Among the many pictures in Shanks' collection of mementoes is one of Newton Cameron, president of Victoria Plywood, winning the hill climb in 1951.

Another two events, eagerly looked forward to by members, first were run in 1933. They are the club's full-day and half-day cross-country trials.

But there's no limit to the type of events. "It's a very varied game with various forms of activity," Shanks said.

A few years back, the club acquired its own property, 173 acres in Metchosin in the vicinity of Mount Blinkhorn where it stages many of its trials and events.

Shanks says motorcycling appeals to people of all walks of life. Among the 110 to 120 VMC members you can take your pick from laborers, policemen, lawyers, dentists and doctors.

Is the sport waning?

"No," says Shanks, "it's even more popular than it was before. There are more machines around and they're making them more sophisticated."

There's another dividend.

"It's the very finest road experience a youngster can get. You soon learn about defensive driving and end up two years ahead of anyone else."

TOWN TALK

Devotees of osculatory rhythm will be gratified to learn that there will be a presentation of this form of entertainment at the Memorial Arena on July 25.

City recreation manager Jack Morgan confirms that the hard rock group is definitely booked for the arena on that date, bringing with them 11 trailerloads of equipment including their own stage.

Because of all that gear Morgan says capacity has been cut by 2,200 to a maximum of 5,000, which means the show will probably be the most expensive ever to be staged in Victoria.

The mighty Bate fastball team will meet the Victoria police in an exhibition match Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park.

But the world champions Bate players are going to have to modify their game somewhat. They won't for instance, be able to steal any bases . . . not with the police looking on.

This game will be strictly slow pitch and under those rules players can't bunt or steal, and once a team gets five runs in an inning it must give the other team a whack.

Police are reportedly negotiating to be allowed to send fielders outside the fence line. Fine idea: They can direct traffic between catches.

The game gets under way at 6:30 p.m. and admission will be a donation with all proceeds going to the B.C. Heart Fund.

This year's graduating class may be facing the highest unemployment rate in years but there's one occupation where few grads will be looking for work — politics.

Victoria MLA Charles Barber gave the commencement address to Victoria high school's Grade 12 class last week.

He asked the students how many of them thought all politicians were crooks. Fully a third raised their hands.

New Apartments Stalled

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The soaring vacancy rate is forcing local builders to shelve plans for new apartment construction for at least one year, Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association manager Clayton Warren said today.

"I can't believe anyone will begin a new project for at least one year after the buildings now under construction are completed."

Of 17,089 apartment units in the Victoria area, 530 were empty in April for a vacancy rate of 3.1 per cent. The percentage figure had been announced earlier.

However, today's report elaborates on the earlier announcement and shows an additional 1,397 Victoria units were not included in the survey because they are less than six months old.

The national survey excludes these units because CMHC believes it takes up to six months for new units to be fully absorbed.

The new Victoria units are being taken up very slowly. A survey by the Victoria branch of CMHC shows 375 of these 1,397 new units are empty for a vacancy rate of 26.8 per cent in new apartment suites.

In addition to these units, an additional 1,320 apartment suites are under construction and will be finished by the time of the next survey in October.

Warren said there is no reason to hope that the demand is high enough to fill all the suites and the vacancy rate will grow, possibly to 10 or even 12 per cent by spring.

After that, said Warren, the vacancy rate will begin to taper off because of the pause in construction.

The CMHC survey shows the highest vacancy rate is in Esquimalt. Here the rate is already at 5 per cent. Second is Saanich at 4 per cent.

In Victoria, the highest vacancy rate is in James Bay but at 2.4 per cent it is below the district average of 3.1 per cent.

The rate was only 1.1 per cent in the Fort Street area and less than one per cent (0.6) in the Cook Street area.

The vacancy rate in Oak Bay was 1.1 per cent, unusually high for the area.

The Sidney rate was 1.7 per cent and there were no measurable vacancies in the outlying districts.

The survey does not look at buildings with less than six rental units; 50 duplexes, row housing, mobile homes and condominiums are excluded. The irony of the condominium exclusion is there could be 10 or 15 units for rent in a large condominium building but this is considered to be less than six (and therefore excluded from the rental survey) because each unit is individually owned.

Warren said the vacancy rate is really much higher than shown in the survey because of the condominiums and new apartments.

A survey conducted in May by the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association showed the vacancy rate in Esquimalt is over 13 per cent (CMHC shows 5 per cent) while in Victoria it is 5.8 per cent. (CMHC does not have a Victoria figure but it shows subtotals of James Bay 2.4, Fort Street 1.1 and Cook Street 0.6 per cent.)

Warren said the landlords' survey of vacancy rates was close to the CMHC total for Saanich. They showed about 3 per cent, compared with 4 per cent in the CMHC survey.

Warren said the association believes there is no reason to continue rent controls in light of the new figures. He repeated an earlier statement from the association that rent controls "no longer serve a useful function in light of market conditions."

He said rents are levelling off and in some cases decreasing because of the high vacancy rate.

The one area where there might be a shortage is in low-rent units. Of 1,331 units constructed for low-income families, senior citizens and other groups on limited incomes, only three were unoccupied for a vacancy rate of virtually nil. Another 410 of these units are under construction and the demand continues to be high.

JANITOR FIRM DRAWS BEEFS

Victoria's legal committee Thursday recommended that the city seek an injunction to shut down a janitorial business operating illegally from a duplex premises at 435 Springfield Road.

The action arises out of a petition of complaint signed by 11 neighbors.

Officials who investigated said in a report to aldermen that the owner of the janitorial business, Chuck Mowbray, 4295 Cedar Hill Road, was contravening the zoning bylaw and also operating without a trades licence from the city.

Nearby residents claimed the round-the-clock service resulted in the loading and unloading vehicles at all hours of the day and night, with attendant noise and parking problems.

The committee also authorized city solicitor Jakob de Villiers to seek an injunction to close down a restaurant operating illegally at 327 Belleville Street, although de Villiers said the owner, H. B. Plasterer, has indicated the restaurant would be closed down and the staff dismissed.

SAANICH police today released this artist's sketch of the suspect wanted in connection with Tuesday's $1,905 robbery of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Shelbourne Plaza. Anyone recognizing the man is asked to contact Saanich detectives at 388-4321.

Short Outfall Eyed As Political Solution

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Will the pollution control branch feel political pressure when it weighs the merits of a controversial sewage proposal at McMicking Point?

The provincial agency, which sets standards in such matters as sewage disposal, has established a policy of approving long ocean outfalls, such as the existing one at Macaulay Point and the one to be built at Clover Point.

But it is going to be asked to approve a short outfall extension at McMicking Point, at least on an interim basis, as a way around a hot political controversy.

Mayors Mike Young of Victoria, Ed Lum of Saanich and Brian Smith of Oak Bay, the partner municipalities in the project, met with Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis and Environment Minister Jim Nielsen on the subject earlier this week.

Young said today the mayors had been instructed by the regional board earlier to promote their case with the ministers and they wouldn't be doing their duty to have acted otherwise.

But the fact remains that approval of the McMicking short outfall plan lies with the PCB and is not supposed to be a political decision.

Appeals on any board decision could eventually make it an issue for the cabinet to decide.

The original plan to eliminate shoreline dumping of raw sewage at McMicking and Clover Points was to have it all go out a 6,400-foot outfall off Clover Point.

But construction of a big sewage pumping station at Shoal Bay, part of that plan, was so vigorously opposed by neighbors and Oak Bay council it led to the idea of trying a short outfall into Enterprise Channel off McMicking Point. The hope is that strong tidal flows between McMicking and Trial Island will effectively disperse the sewage. But the extention of 500 feet or so is just a fraction of the long outfalls the PCB has approved along the same shoreline.

Young said the compromise plan requires amending the regional board's letters patent and that was another reason for meeting with the cabinet ministers and asking their co-operation.

MS Treatment Rallies

Proponents of the megavitamin treatment of multiple sclerosis will take their case to the provincial government next week with mass rallies planned in front of the Legislature on Monday and Tuesday.

Dale Humpherys, spokesman for the B.C. Committee for Orthomolecular Medicine, said the group will petition the government to pay for the vitamin therapy program under the Pharmacare Plan.

The government ruled on April 1 that all over-the-counter drugs, including vitamins, would no longer be paid under the plan.

Humpherys said when the plan was announced that Premier Bennett promised it would protect persons against catastrophic drug expenses and was specifically aimed at the chronically ill.

But, Humpherys said, MS victims taking the megavitamin therapy pay up to $114 a month for the controversial treatment.

He complained that Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm is using a difference of opinion within the medical profession on vitamin treatment as an excuse to deny MS victims "the only treatment available to them."

FIRE RISK UP, ACCESS CLOSED

Open fire permits have been cancelled until further notice in the Colwood-Sooke fire district while access on two main roads in the Sooke Hills will be closed this weekend.

The Goldstream ranger station reports the fire rating as high with a risk of it rising to extreme if the hot, dry weather continues.

Gates on the Butler main road and the Bear Creek-Jordon River diversion are padlocked and fire permits will not be reinstated until there is significant rainfall.

The Bridge Expert

The theme of today's deal is of a recurring type, as all bridge players will attest to: the taking of a needless finesse. The deal came up in a rubber-bridge game.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

West's opening spade lead was captured by South's king, after which the ace and king of trumps were cashed, picking up the outstanding pieces. As declarer viewed the setup, his prospects were excellent if West possessed either the ace or queen of clubs, then a club winner could be developed out of dummy's king or jack. And if this were accomplished, declarer's only losers would be two clubs and one diamond.

After drawing trumps, South led the deuce of clubs and inserted Dummy's jack when West played the seven-spot. Upon winning with the queen, East returned a low spade to dummy's ace. Dummy's remaining spade was then ruffed by South. Next came another club, dummy's king being put up. East took this with his ace, cashed the club ten, and exited with a diamond. Declarer eventually had to lose a diamond trick, to incur a one-trick set.

In a sense, declarer was unlucky, for West rated to have either the queen or ace of clubs. But declarer's demise was strictly his own fault.

After drawing trumps, declarer should have led a spade to the board's ace, after which dummy's remaining spade would be ruffed. Spades would now have been eliminated from both the North and South hands. Next would come a diamond to dummy's king, and this would be followed by a diamond to South's ace. Now a third diamond lead would be made, eliminating diamonds from both the North and South hands.

Assuming that West won the third diamond lead (if East did, the end result would be the same), he would play back the nine of clubs. This would be covered by dummy's jack and taken by East's queen.

East would now be the victim of an end play. A club return would make a winner out of the board's king, while either a spade or a diamond (in theory) would enable declarer to discard a club from his own hand as he ruffed the trick in dummy. Mission accomplished.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, June 18...

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Individual close to you expresses doubts, fears. Key is to be practical. Money and love could be involved. Be thorough — check details, take nothing for granted. Contractual obligation could be revised or upset. Know it and tread lightly. Outlook soon will be more optimistic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Personal investigation is necessary, works to your advantage. Means find out why persons act the way they do. Check sources. Gemini, Virgo and Libra figure prominently. Relative talks about work — and health.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Financial activity is stressed. Costs, credits, debits come into sharp focus. Taurus, Libra individuals figure prominently and so does the number "6." Domestic conditions improve: surroundings are more beautiful. Vacation or holiday spirit prevails.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You gain rare insights: you sense the importance of actions, responses. Pisces, Virgo play key roles in scenario. Unorthodox procedures need not create panic. Actually, you benefit from element of surprise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Strive to comprehend "hidden elements." Organize, bring priorities into focus. Relationship intensifies. You are summoned to home or hospital by one temporarily incapacitated. Cancer, Capricorn persons are in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Follow through on hunch. Learn by process of teaching. Aquarius, Cancer and Leo figure prominently. Don't mix money and friendship — otherwise, you could lose both. Status is elevated as you find better means of display, distribution.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Status quo gets shakeup: you are direct beneficiary. Be ready for added independence, new starts in new directions. Your creative abilities are tested — and not found wanting. Love is also very much a factor!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Long-range view is most constructive — collect, plant seeds for future, make contact through written word. Aquarian figures prominently. Person out of your past makes reappearance. Misunderstanding is erased and you feel good as result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Highlight versatility; welcome break from routine. Accent social, recreational activity. Gemini is in picture. Sense of humor is your ally. Individual who attempts to intimidate you can be "demolished" by laughter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get what you want — eventually. Meantime, go slow, check with partner or mate. Friend in position of authority may be victim of a misunderstanding. Know it and avoid rushing to judgment. Aquarius, Leo and Taurus figure in picture — so does number "4."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Make necessary changes, revisions based on additional information. Member of opposite sex will play key role. Yes, your ideas, suggestions are being headed. Gemini, Virgo persons are featured.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on significance of message, your capability when it comes to persuasion, convincing and expressing convictions. Yes, you will get to heart of matters. No, you won't change a thing overnight.

IF JUNE 18th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you can be mercurial, martian — and this means you are an intellectual who can do physical combat when necessary. Aries, Leo and Libra persons play important roles in your life. You get chance for new start in July. You'll be vindicated and have opportunity for greater self-expression.

MONTY'S SWORD SOLD

LONDON (AP) — The sword that Field Marshal Lord Montgomery carried in the First World War was sold for $595 at an auction in London Wednesday. Montgomery, British army commander in the Second World War, who died last year, gave the sword to his brother in 1923 when he was commissioned and needed a sword. It was bought privately at the Christie's sale.

Brain Wired To Curb Anger

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mental patients once considered hopelessly ill are on the road to recovery with brain pacemakers implanted in their skulls, doctors at Tulane University said Wednesday.

"It's like I'm living in a calm after a storm has ended," said one patient describing the change in her condition after surgery. That patient and two others appeared in a videotaped interview shown at a news conference Wednesday.

Ten of 11 patients who voluntarily underwent the operation have shown considerable improvement, some within a matter of days, Dr. Robert Heath, chairman of the psychiatry and neurology department at Tulane's School of Medicine, said at the news conference.

The surgically-implanted pacemaker sends a tiny current into areas of the brain associated with pleasurable feelings. The current can not be felt by the patient, but Heath said it stimulates the so-called "pleasure circuit," which inhibits the unhappy and angry feelings associated with psychosis.

Schizophrenic, neurotic and uncontrollably violent persons who had been under heavy medication for years were able to leave the hospital and live nearly normal lives after the operation, he said.

Heath, who said he delayed performing his first human brain pacemaker operation for two years because of fear of criticism, held the news conference to respond to a published report which accused him of Nazi-type medical practice.

He said he does not believe the device could be misused and that "I don't think I could control anyone's mind by doing this."

The only surgery which failed among the 11 initial operations was on a patient who had prior brain damage at the area where the electrodes are placed, Heath said.

All operations thus far have been performed on patients who showed no response to psychoactive drugs, shock treatment and other forms of therapy for extreme cases, Heath said.

"But I think it's indicated now that we should maybe use the operation a little early, as soon as it is clear all drugs will fail," he said. "The less time these patients spend in that dream world out of contact, the better their responses after the operation."

PUPPETS Binkly, Sniffer and Doinkel are making the rounds of Victoria and Up-Island nursery schools and playgrounds and Wednesday visited the Gingerbread, Greater Victoria and Bishop Cridge day care centres. Puppeteers Valerie Wood and Neil Crofton are employed by Consumer and Corporate Affairs to warn children about hazardous products.

Microwave Tower For Harbor Road

Permission for CP Telecommunications to erect a 200-foot microwave tower on property at Harbor Road, near the Smith's Cedar Products plant, was recommended Thursday by Victoria's public works committee.

Two previous locations requested by the company, at Fort and Langley in the downtown area and at Tyee and Esquimalt, had been rejected earlier.

CP's letter suggesting the Harbor Road site said the tower will be triangular in cross-section with a base width of about 26 feet, supporting a microwave antenna about eight feet in diameter.

The letter promised the site would be kept clean and in good condition, adding: "With this policy of good housekeeping, this installation should remain functional and be an asset to the community."

City engineer John Sansom said the company would be asked to ensure that the tower's design is as tasteful as possible.

"It's a good place for it," commented Ald. Frank Carson.

Policemen Remanded

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two city police constables charged with beating up an undercover RCMP officer were remanded in Vancouver Provincial Court to June 27 for a preliminary hearing.

City motorcycle policemen Michael Carpenter and Mervin Morrison are charged with assaulting RCMP Cons. Barry Milewski.

Milewski was posing as a scruffy drug dealer April 13 when he ran across a downtown street and was stopped by a city policeman for jaywalking.

Milewski fled but was caught by two policemen. He was later treated for a gash above the eye that required five stitches.

Audience Cheers Comic Climax to Belfry Play

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

This is the season for being silly and light-headed in the sun and folly rather than Freudian discourse when the sun goes behind the hill and nightlife beckons.

There'll be ample entertainment of the weightless kind this summer and of enough versatility to please all comers. But first on the scene and most assuredly wildest, is The Belfry's incurable revue, El Grane de Coca Cola.

It opened Thursday at the Gladstone Avenue centre to a reaction that was spotty but now and then hysterical, and after one hour and 45 minutes ended on a flood tide of laughter and applause having gone from strength to strength in the second half.

The audience has to imagine itself present in a run-down nightclub in a small Honduras town. Don Pepe Hernandez has taken it over temporarily on money borrowed from his uncle who manages the local Coca Cola Bottling works.

He flamboyantly announces a series of acts by international cabaret stars but they are actually all his relatives and all uniformly awful.

The major problem with a show of this kind is that professional actors have to create the illusion of being thorough hams but somehow beneath it maintain a professional standard visible only in the clarity and precision with which the non-talent, non-technique performance is projected.

A first rate performance comes from John Hamelin as Don Pepe. This actor uses everything — voice, face, eyes, hands, body — in portraying an ingratiating, loveable, nimble scamp perpetrating a gigantic fraud on a gullible audience.

His is a non-stop, fast-paced performance that fairly crackles with energy and is worth the price of admission without anything else.

The gyrating Spanish-French-Italian-German language of the play is no problem — even though fractured — in fact it is a delight. Especially Don Pepe's Shakespeare, a high point of the production, done in "Ingleese".

"Friends, Romanos, contreemen, lend to me your earos."

And even when the language is a bit much, there is plenty of action to provide the broadest possible illustration of the text. El Grande reaches its comic climax after the intermission with the production by "artiests from Parees" of a play about Toulouse-Lautrec.

This is Marx Brothers stuff and well handled by the whole company, with good creative comedy popping out all over.

Director Pat Armstrong has put her stamp of vitality on the production of this nonsensical piece. She never lets it drop but keeps the pace flying and the ideas coming. It is at its least effective in the first act — or was so on opening night. The actors seemed not to have a firm grip on the material and the effect was of a hectic scramble lacking the definition that came later in part two.

Set design by Ken MacDonald and lighting by Giles Hogya provide satisfactory visual effects. The show is to run Tuesday through Sunday until July 2. There are two performance Fridays and Saturdays at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m.

OAPs Demand $200 Monthly

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's old age pensioners voted Thursday to ask the federal government for a basic old age security pension of $200 a month plus indexed cost of living benefits.

About 180 delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Old Age Pensioners' Organization voted to demand a $52.95 a month increase over the $147.05 they will receive in July.

The delegates, representing 18,000 pensioners in 133 branches throughout the province, also voted to call on the provincial government to roll back ambulance charges to a $5 flat rate from the current level of $25 for the first five miles.

The delegates called for better supervision of nursing homes, including spot inspections without warning.

"Health inspectors do visit nursing homes," said spokesman W. E. Anderson, "but the staff always seems to know they are coming and everything is spic and span."

The convention's recommendations will be incorporated into a brief by the National Pensioners' Federation for presentation to Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 27-year-old man who would have been released from jail Thursday changed his story during a trial in Victoria provincial court and admitted stealing a nurse's wallet which contained five pennies.

Arnold Clifford Stewart, who had completed a 20-month prison term at Wilkinson Road jail, was found guilty of theft under $200 and sentenced to a further six months in jail.

During the brief trial, testimony by witnesses for crown counsel Robert Mulligan was that Stewart, on the afternoon of May 27, entered a predelivery room on the fourth floor of Victoria General Hospital and took a wallet from a purse belonging to nurse Elizabeth Shergold.

He was spotted coming out of the room by another nurse, who grew suspicious, checked the room and found the purse at the foot of a closet and that it had been opened.

Court was told Stewart had been given a temporary absence pass from Wilkinson Road jail to visit his common-law wife, who had recently given birth to a child.

Mrs. Shergold, who said the wallet contained five pennies, personal papers and pictures of her children, testified that she confronted Stewart about the wallet and that he apologized to her twice for taking it after he requested that they discuss the matter in the room where the theft took place.

However, when Stewart was called to the witness box by defence lawyer Gary Casilio, the story was that Stewart stepped into the wrong room while looking for the kitchen and stepped right back out again, never getting more than two feet inside.

He said he asked Mrs. Shergold to go into the predelivery room with him because he was "embarrassed" and that, once inside, the wallet was lying on top of a desk in the room. He said he apologized at that time for not having the wallet.

Mulligan began his cross-examination by asking Stewart if he knew he was under oath to tell the truth and the accused man maintained his story for a short while before admitting the theft.

Judge William Ostler said Stewart's story was "one of the most absurd I've had the misfortune to listen to" and said he didn't believe "a word" of Stewart's testimony.

Speaking to sentence, Casilio said Stewart had been on a work-release program at Wilkinson Road since January and informed the judge that his client was on the verge of becoming institutionalized.

Before passing sentence, Ostler said Stewart gave the work-release program a black eye.

Ostler suggested to a 17-year-old youth he should identify more with his peers than with automobiles before handing him a $250 fine and a four-month suspension of his driver's licence.

Dean Walter Yole, of 1155 Vista Heights, had pleaded guilty June 9 to theft of a tachometer valued at $68.88.

At that time, Mulligan informed the court, the offence took place May 30 at an automobile accessories store, about seven months after another shoplifting incident at the same store.

In the October incident, Mulligan said, Yole was convicted of two counts of theft under $200 and was given a suspended sentence and a one-year probation.

Calling it a "disturbing case," Ostler warned Yole that unless he discontinued his course of conduct, "you'll simply have to go to jail."

The judge imposed another one-year probation term on Yole, who informed Ostler he had sold his vehicle.

Two 17-year-old youths, who pleaded guilty to theft of a tape deck and cassette tapes from a car, were remanded until July 8 for a pre-sentence report.

Robert Richard Gorst, of 6380 Conconi Place, was jointly charged with Marshall in connection with only the theft.

Court was told Marshall took the car from a Central Saanich driveway and drove it a short distance before parking it.

The two teenagers were spotted by police leaving the parked car, court was told.

Barry Robert Morgan, 17, was sentenced by different judges in two different courtrooms Thursday.

Appearing first before Judge Blake Allan, Morgan received a sentence of nine months definite and three months indeterminate for a May 11 breaking and entering. Allan recommended that Morgan serve part of his sentence at the Boulder Bay prison camp.

Later, Ostler handed Morgan two sentences of nine months definite and five months indeterminate on charges of possession of stolen books and a Wednesday break-in at Cloverdale Paints, 2644 Quadra, and a one-day sentence for being a minor in possession of liquor. Ostler told defence lawyer Robert Johnston that he took into consideration Johnston's statement that this was a "make or break" situation for Morgan.

A 38-year-old man who pleaded guilty to three counts of false pretences was given a suspended sentence, placed on six months probation, ordered to perform 40 hours of community service work and to repay $99.10 to Woolco within three months.

Walter Roland Sawatzky, of 724 Sea Terrace, pleaded guilty to passing three worthless cheques on Dec. 21 and 22.

William Ehrcke, a University of Victoria law student representing Sawatzky, said his client was a devorced man who had custody of children aged 5 and 12 and was on welfare. Ehrcke also said the cheques were written to buy Christmas presents.

Douglas Gordon Gee, 26, of 6588 Sooke was fined $500 and $35 after he pleaded guilty to driving June 4 with a blood-alcohol level in excess of .08 and without a licence, respectively.

Walter Settler, 36, of Cowichan Station was fined $400 for an impaired driving offence and an additional $150 for refusal to take a breathalyser test following a June 9 incident on the Trans-Canada Highway in Colwood.

WATER COP EYES WASTE

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — When Willie Villa drives his three-wheel cart through the streets of this movie star mecca, water wasters turn down their hoses. Beverly Hills has discovered the drought, and Villa is its watercop.

Villa's title is environmental inspector for the Beverly Hills water department, but his job is more policeman than bureaucrat.

Villa stops residents and gardeners who are sprinkling their lawns or washing down their courtyards or driveways, or using their hoses to sweep leaves and other debris into the gutter.

Radical Drug Control Eyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's newly-appointed deputy attorney-general says the province needs new, radical approaches to control drug traffic rather than a stepped-up police force.

Richard Hunter Vogel said in an interview the solution to the problem lies in education.

Vogel, a lawyer and member of the Vancouver Police Board, said he will concentrate on learning rather than talking when he takes office Aug. 1.

"It's a challenge," he said. "There will be challenges in the impending changes in the federal-provincial scene. And there will be challenges in augmenting and completing the administrative changes David (outgoing Deputy Attorney-General David Vickers) and the attorney-general have begun."

Among those changes, he said was the establishment of the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit (CLEU) and the Justice Development Commission, the increase in the size of the police force.

Margaret and Sons Greet Trudeau

OTTAWA — With laughter, hugs and kisses, Prime Minister Trudeau was welcomed home from London by his three sons Thursday while Margaret stood by quietly in their first appearance together since they separated.

The prime minister appeared surprised to be greeted by his entire family on his return from the Commonwealth Prime Minister's Conference. The estranged couple exchanged only a few words on the airport tarmac.

Trudeau had already met the official welcoming party headed by External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson when he noticed his family.

He strode quickly toward them and swept his three young sons up in his arms.

Justin, 5, Sacha, 3, and one-year-old Michel, clutching a frilly, white pillow, gave their delighted father a warm greeting, hugging and kissing him amid much laughter.

Margaret stood quietly a few feet away.

It was the first time the couple had appeared in public together since they announced their legal separation May 27.

Margaret, 28, and Trudeau, 57, agreed to live apart so she could actively pursue a career in photography. Mrs. Trudeau has been living in New York City, but she stayed with the children while Trudeau was abroad.

Mrs. Trudeau drove the children to Uplands Military Base, but she parked her red Volkswagen Rabbit at the wrong spot and was whisked over to Hangar 11 in a government staation wagon.

Dressed casually in a short-sleeved, seersucker matching skirt and blouse and with her hair pulled back in a bun, Margaret stood quietly but smiling nearby, as Trudeau held the noisy reunion with his three sons.

Trudeau offered his wife a ride back to her car. After first declining, Margaret joined the rest of the family in the back of the silver gray Cadillac limousine. She directed the chauffeur to where her own car was parked.

Margaret pulled out behind the official entrourage as it left the airport. But she did not follow them all the way to the prime minister's official residence at 24 Sussex Drive.

'THE LAST BIG BASH'

WASHINGTON — The garden party at the British embassy was an affair worthy of the empire and the princess who held court there for the nobility of Washington.

But it also seemed the final revel of an era.

To David Walker, an embassy spokesman, Thursday's celebration of the Queen's anniversary attended by 1,500 people was "the last big bash."

Walker said the party, attended by Princess Anne was the last big celebration at any British diplomatic mission to mark the Queen's 25th year on the throne.

Vigoda Protests Lost Role

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Actor Abe Vigoda says his producer must repay him $50,000 for a role he lost or he will not report for work on the television series Barney Miller and Fish.

Vigoda contended Thursday that executive producer Danny Arnold made a last-minute schedule change in the July and August taping dates of the two ABC series which prevented him from starring in NBC's 79 Park Avenue. Vigoda stars in Fish and has a featured role in Barney Miller.

He said he has an agreement with Jordan Davis, associate producer of Barney Miller and Fish, to appear in the mini-series without a schedule conflict with his own shows.

Arnold and Davis, on vacation, could not be reached for comment.

Vigoda said he was told he is being dropped from 79 Park Avenue the day before he was to report at Universal Studios last Tuesday.

MPs HONOR DIEFENBAKER

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs paid tribute to former prime minister John Diefenbaker Thursday by hanging a bronze plate inscribed with the 1960 Bill of Rights in the Opposition lobby outside the Commons chamber.

Diefenbaker, author of the bill which sets out basic rights for Canadians, was led into the lobby by a bagpipe player and, after short speeches by Opposition Leader Joe Clark and Commons Speaker James Jerome, told MPs that "in all the years I've been here, and a repository for significant nothing has touched me more than this.

Wedding for Charles? Everybody Says No

LUXEMBOURG — A spokesman for the Luxembourg government today described as groundless speculation a published report in a London newspaper that Prince Charles is to marry Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg.

The spokesman said there is no truth in the report and that no impending news conference has been planned by the princess' father, Luxembourg ruler Grand-Duke Jean.

The grand duke will have an informal reception with local journalists and publishers Monday. The reception, which has been scheduled for some time, is part of the duke's regular contacts with the dukedom's news media.

In London, The Daily Express newspaper's report that Prince Charles is to marry Princess Marie-Astrid also was denied by Buckingham Palace.

But, a palace spokesman said, "It is certainly not official from us."

He added: "I know of no plans for any announcement on Monday or at any other time."

The spokesman also denied there has ever been any substantial contact between Charles and the princess.

The Queen's press secretary, Ronald Allison, said he was authorized by Charles to state: "There is no truth at all in the report that there is to be an anouncement of an engagement of the Prince of Wales to Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg."

Toth Forecasts Difficult Time

MOSCOW — Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert Toth predicted difficult times ahead for Western journalists in Moscow as he and his family prepared to leave the Soviet Union today.

"I think after we leave there will be press articles pretending I was a spy or that I was collecting secret information from dissidents," said the 48-year-old reporter, who was interrogated by KGB Soviet security police for more than 12 hours before a ban on his departure from the country was lifted.

Toth said none of the information he collected was secret, and the decision to end the interrogation amounted to "an admission that this was all a frameup, or worse."

He added: "I think this is a terrible message to correspondents who are going to remain that they may face the same kind of harassment any time the Soviets choose. And to the dissidents, that they're not immune from anything at all.

"The point they made to me over and over again is that spondents who are going to laws, that I can get tossed in the can at any time."

Toth had planned to leave Moscow today after completion of a three-year assignment in the Soviet Union and to take his family home via the Trans-Siberian Railway and the Pacific. Instead, he booked seats on an afternoon flight for London and said he would write about his experiences there.

The KGB picked up Toth last Saturday as a Soviet scientist was handing him an article the scientist had written about research in extrasensory perception.

On Tuesday, the government told the U.S. embassy Toth had collected secret information of a political and military character and should not leave Moscow until the end of the investigation. The KGB told him Thursday to say he was no longer needed and may leave the country.

A. E. GIBSON DIES AT 68

VANCOUVER — Albert Earson Gibson, 68, the youngest of four brothers who became major figures in the British Columbia lumber industry, died of a heart attack here Thursday.

Gibson was the brother of Clarke, Gordon and Jack, and a partner in the family company Gibson Brothers Industries Ltd.

He was the first president of Lions Broadcasting Co., founded in 1954, which established radio station CKLG; a past president of the Truck Loggers Association; past chairman of the board of cliff-side school for boys, at Shawnigan Lake and past-president of the Terminal City Club.

Sask. Launches Inquiry Into Controversial Camps

REGINA (CP) — In an effort to find out what went on in wilderness camps for delinquent boys last year and how to prevent problems in the future, the Saskatchewan government has announced a public inquiry into charges that youngsters at the camps were brutalized by camp staff.

District court Judge J. H. Maher of Saskatoon will conduct the one-man probe into Wilderness Challenge Camps operated in northern Saskatchewan by the Ranch Ehrlo Society of Regina. The society is a non-profit organization specializing in helping disturbed children.

The inquiry was billed as a probe into the concept and operation of the camps, but clearly it was sparked by the brutality charges.

The camps came to public attention earlier this year with reports that staff members were handing out severe punishment to the boys at the camps, some as young as 12. The boys were offered the chance to go to the camps or face jail terms.

The camps were closed by the department of northern Saskatchewan in early March and have remained closed since. A similar operation in the north, Kamp Klahanie, was forced earlier to operate on a provisional licence after reports that one boy there committed suicide and another disappeared last fall and has not been found since.

Kamp Klahanie comes up for a permanent licence July 1. Attorney-General Roy Romanow told a news conference Judge Maher will have the power to investigate the situation at Kamp Klahanie, but is expected to concentrate on the two Ranch Ehrlo Camps at Norbert Lake and Flinthead.

The Ranch Ehrlo camps became a political issue during the spring session of the legislature when the Progressive Conservatives released an RCMP investigation report on the camps and notes made by government staff who visited the camps.

The RCMP document said the police first leanred of a problem in the camps in November, 1976, when a youth was arrested in Buffalo Narrows, Sask. The youth had been a prisoner at the camps and related stories of beatings. The police investigated and concluded that while enough force had been used to the point of assault, charges would be difficult to lay because of the credibility and availability of the witnesses.

Romanow said Tuesday his department had reached the same conclusion.

The more dramatic document was the notes by government staff which said the boys were beaten, forced to work long hours without food, one boy was made to eat his own vomit and another forced to consume a small bird he had caught. The notes related stories of boys being scared by beatings, having toes amputated from frostbite after being isolated and a boy being forced to strip in front of women visiting the camp.

Ranch Ehrlo director Geoff Pawson has said the charges made in the legislature were wildly exaggerated and much of what was said during the lengthy debate was simply nonsense.

A spokesman for the society Tuesday welcomed the inquiry and said the group would likely make a submission to it. He said he hoped the inquiry would clear up some of the "grossly exaggerated" allegations. He said no consideration will be given to re-opening the camps until after the inquiry is finished.

Romanow told Tuesday's news conference that in the absence of criminal charges being laid, it was important that all information about the camps be publically aired.

"Basically, the order-in-council asks him (Judge Maher) to inquire into the concept and operation of the Ranch Ehrlo Wilderness Challenge Camps, the ones that were subject to the publicity," Romanow said.

Pain Concept Studied

EDMONTON (CP) — Enormous strides have been made in the last decade in scientific understanding of pain, an internationally-recognized researcher said Wednesday.

"In the last 10 years we have developed a whole new concept of pain," said Dr. Ronald Melzack, director of the pain clinic at Montreal General Hospital.

"It looks like nature has built into the brain a self-limiting mechanism for pain."

Melzack, professor of psychology at McGill University, was addressing about 370 delegates at the annual Canadian Physiotherapy Association Congress.

Until recently, western medical scientists felt pain was simply relayed to the brain through nerve impulses on a one-to-one basis, in much the same way a telephone switchboard processes signals, he said.

But partially through study of acupuncture, western medicine has recently gained a better grasp of the complexity of pain transmission.

"We now think that pain is due to a particular pattern of nerve impulses," said Melzack.

Therefore the emphasis in pain research has shifted to methods of changing that pattern, such as applying local anesthetic to block of nerves and electrical stimulation of the skin.

Charles Invited

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prince Charles, named colonel-in-chief of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles in the Queen's Silver Jubilee honors list, has been invited to attend the unit's 94th birthday celebrations, to be held here Nov. 9.

Peace River Rainfall Causing Seeding Delay

HIGH PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP) — Alberta Agriculture Minister Marvin Moore will be asked to do something about heavy rains which have caused seeding delays in several areas of the Peace River region in northwestern Alberta.

Moore, MLA for Smoky River, will be asked to look into the situation by Edmo Peyre, chairman of the high prairie agricultural development committee.

Peyre said he has sent a letter to Moore asking him to inspect the area. He said it is the wettest spring he has seen in his 62 years in High Prairie, and several area farmers haven't got an acre seeded.

Help Lacking

SASKATOON (CP) — Social Services Minister Herman Rolfes says the provincial government has not done enough to help the physically disabled.

He told the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Paraplegic Association the government has been weak in its attempts to provide them with meaningful employment.

Move 'Deplored'

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta-Northwest Territories command of the Royal Canadian Legion has passed a resolution "deploring" the move this summer of the Canadian Airborne Regiment from Edmonton to Petawawa, Ont.

Employee an Aide

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer has admitted in the legislature that a senior government employee has been assigned to the premier's constituency office for several days a week.

While showing some embarrassment over the matter, Schreyer contended he needed the help because he has one of the smallest staffs of any Canadian premier.

Commonwlth. Games Require Promotion

EDMONTON (CP) — The 1978 Commonwealth Games in Edmonton needs more aggressive promotion overseas, says Ron Hayter, a city alderman and chairman of the Media '78 division of the Commonwealth Games Foundation.

Hayter and Bill McLean, a foundation director, went to Singapore and Hong Kong recently.

He said in an interview that although both have accepted invitations to take part in the games, their sporting circles and public in general do not seem to know too much about the games or the city of Edmonton.

"We were quite amazed to see how little they knew about Canada or Edmonton. We'll have to do a better promoting job on the games."

Hayter said he and McLean met newspaper editors in Singapore and Hong Kong "to acquaint them with what we have planned here."

But "it was appalling that very few, if any, knew where the games are going to be held."

Tax Relief Suggested

WINNIPEG (CP) — Firms constructing high-rise apartment buildings in the downtown area should be exempted for five years from realty taxes, says a report to city council.

The report, released by council's committee on downtown alternatives, said erecting more apartment buildings downtown is a key to revitalizing the area.

The report said the suggested tax exemption would apply only to blocks in the area bounded by Kennedy Street, Graham Avenue, Main Street and Broadway Avenue.

ANYONE SEEN A MILLIONAIRE?

EDMONTON (CP) — The Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Parish of St. John Sachava has less than four months to find a Texas oil rig worker and tell him he is a quarter-millionaire.

The man bought a ticket from the parish group and won the Western Canada Lottery draw, worth $250,000, last October.

The group's only information about him is that he spoke English with an Hungarian accent and was an oil rig worker from Armarillo, Texas.

Attempts to find him so far —including two stories in the Edmonton Journal and one in Houston Post—have failed.

If he can be found before October—a year after the draw—he can claim his prize. Otherwise the prize will be forfeited.

Fur's the Rage in Fashion Salons family

By ANGELA TAYLOR
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK — The embarrassment of riches at the fur shows makes one almost wish for snow in June. With several successful years behind them, and anticipating that 1977 will be a record year, furriers seem to have lost their will-it-sell jitters and gone overboard on luxury furs.

They are not copying the couture, there are few befurred peasants or fur balloons. Instead of messing around with tricky silhouettes, designers are giving women what they've always wanted: coats that can be worn over a wardrobe of anything from pants to evening dresses.

The splash is on the furs themselves: new ones like squirrel or raccoon from the Soviet Union or a neew chestnut-colored mink. New techniques add to the furriers' euphoria. Double-faced furs — meaning fur both inside and outside of a coat — gingerly made a debut last year, but now show up in most collections. Look for quilted furs that reverse to suede or fabric. For an unrestrained piling on of pelts; a fur vest over a fur coat, for instance, or smothering a long-haired coat in scarves made of whole pelts.

Long-hairs are still the most wanted furs, despite rising prices. There's enough lynx, fox, coyote and feathered raccoon to drown in. Dark sable is everywhere, and the golden variety is now a prettier, amber color. Of course, there's plenty of mink (the richest is the black variety). Whatever the fur, expect prices to be 20 to 30 per cent higher.

Geoffrey Beene for H.B.A.: Whether he's working in cloth or fur, Geoffrey (as everybody calls him) is the current fair-haired boy in fashion. He applies the same easy chic to furs as he does to sportswear. This year, he adds knitted touches wherever he can, even putting a knitted vest on a black mink coat. There are a dozen or so fur sweaters in the collection, also little fur vests that reverse to suede.

The double-faced fur here is squirrel on one side, mink on the other. Civet (skunk) and zorino (South American skunk) make handsomely patterned coats. Raincoats are special: a brown silk one reversing to stone marten, a poplin coat lined in quilted lamb.

Ralph Lauren for Tepper: The designer did a mini-collection for this house last year, now he's been let loose on an entire collection. Look for jogging shirts made of ermine. A perfect greatcoat of golden sable. A Russian raccoon coat — longer haired and warmer in color than the local animal. Mongolian kit fox, a very pretty new fur with a good deal of white in it. A tweed coat lined in beaver or raincoats lined with mink.

Pierre Cardin for Michael Forrest: Tons of raccoon, some clipped to resemble feathers, several equipped with hoods, others reversing to raincoat poplin. Tweed-pattern minks. Fox dyed to look like lynx and raccoon dyed to look like fisher. Fisher — the real thing — from Canada. Dark mink coats, straight and uncluttered, often with slits at the sides.

She's a Student at 68

The 68-year-old woman became a student after retiring as head of the science department at Nickel District Collegiate Institute in Sudbury, Ont., in 1974.

She registered in a master of science course at Laurentian University in Sudbury and later decided to try for her PhD.

She came to Canada from Java, Indonesia, in 1928 and graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph in 1935.

She moved to Sudbury in the 1930s, where she raised chickens and sold eggs door to door to survive the Depression. She and her farmer husband also raised five children.

"After 24 years I became bored with farming and took a job teaching in a one-room school—29 pupils in nine grades," she said. "After that I became head of science at the collegiate."

Summer vacations were spent in Waterloo, where she gained 66 honor credits before retiring.

"Frankly, I might have gone on teaching for a couple more years but I wanted to get into research."

She began applying to universities and was accepted at several. She was offered a scholarship at Cincinnati University in Ohio, "but my husband died and I wanted something nearer home."

Mrs. Waern chose Guelph because of the school's scientific equipment and because it was close to her home in Sudbury.

The idea for her PhD thesis came to her in 1959 after someone sprayed weed killer along the roadside. Some of the killer drifted up to the farmhouse and her geraniums died.

"I suspected mutagenic side effects," she said. "Since I believe that all plants and animals are basically the same in terms of fundamental cell structure, it seemed worth investigating."

She is studying the side effects of weed killer on plants.

"My supervisor says if I finish in 10 years I shall be doing well. After that, I have an offer to go to Cincinnati U."

The Formula

By NORMAN H. STARK

In the days before the automobile, the surrey, pulled by a team of "high-stepping strutters," was a common sight. My father used to tell me that a rig like this was just as much a prized possession as an automobile is to some people today. And the better rigs had windshields, just as cars now have.

This formula is intended to be used in the windshield washer container under the hood. All you need is two quarts of ISOPROPYL ALCOHOL and two quarts of WATER. While it serves no practical purpose, you can put in a few drops of blue food coloring if you want to make it look like the high-priced product. Mix the ingredients together and transfer to your windshield washer tank. Store excess in glass or plastic bottle.

Besides the datisfaction you get by making your own products for personal or home care, most formulas are real money-savers that enable you to beat the prices of store-bought items.

(Like any chemical product you use at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of reach of children.)

'Job Finders' Prey on the Desperate

By LYNNE GORDON

Many people are desperate because of unemployment and will cling to any hope of getting a job. As a result, many "job-finding" companies have sprung up — and they're making a lot of money off people needing work.

But watch out. Although some firms promote themselves as research companies of resume-writing business, they still may use subtle hints and innuendoes to raise expectations that they can find you a job. They will point out that they are not employment agencies and can't promise jobs, but a desperate applicant may be led to believe differently.

Some of these companies may use soft lights and music, and a "pitch" dealing with the incredible financial benefits of an overseas job. A job in another country may indeed be delightful, but some of the companies that use these kinds of tactics are not acting as "agents" of foreign firms.

One curious consumer called me about a $150 fee he would have to lay out for this service. If you read the contract of this particular company, you'll see that the fee only buys you a re-written resume and the name of 10 companies and 10 envelopes. Why pay this sum when a resume can be written for between $10 and $30 elsewhere. And the names and addresses of foreign-based firms? — available in any library.

dear abby

Promiscuous Love, Not Sex, Okay

DEAR ABBY: I never miss your column and believe that more people read Dear Abby than any other part of the paper.

Here is a throny question I have never known you to comment on.

Love: Are the millions of unmarried, widowed and divorced people supposed to do without it?

We are taught to share everything else, so what is so wrong with sharing love with some needy person?

And can you separate love and sex? — M.R.

DEAR M.R.: Sex for sex's sake means anyone will do. Love is selective. Only a certain somebody can fill a need for love.

The need for "sex" rarely leads to love, but the need for "love" usually leads to sex. Promiscuous love? Si! Promiscuous sex? No!

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago I was depressed for a period of time, and since I considered myself an enlightened person, I went of a private psychiatrist. He assured me that there was nothing seriously wrong, that I didn't need prolonged treatment, and after a few more appointments, he dismissed me. That was the sum and total of my "psychiatric treatment."

A year ago I applied for a position. I was asked, "Have you ever had psychiatric treatment?" Seeing no reason not to tell the truth, I mentioned my experience.

In case you don't know this, there are many government positions (and private ones) that cannot be hled by anyone with a "history" of psychiatric treatment.

Abby, a person can be nuttier than a pecan plantation, but if he's never been to a psychiatrist, he's considered mentally stable.

I'd appreciate your comments. — STABLE BUT LABELLED

DEAR LABELLED: There are still in existence a number of laws, rules, regulations, traditions and precedents that are unjust, archiaic, senseless and plain idiotic.

If a single session (or a hundred) with a psychiatrist makes one a "mental case," then all psychoanalysts are "mental cases," because in order to become a psychoanalyst one must himself be psychoanalyzed.

Steering clear of a psychiatrist's office does not necessarily affirm one's good mental health. The person who boasts that he's never been to a psychiatrist can be a lot sicker than those who have.

Don't Neglect Hunger Pangs

By LESTER COLEMAN, MD

I get hunger pains in the middle of the day. Does this mean that I have an ulcer? — Mr. T.Y.

Dear Mr. Y:

Occasional hunger pains, even those that are relieved by food, do not necessarily mean that you have a stomach ulcer. Hunger pains, in most instances, are due to the fact that the stomach is empty. With nothing in the stomach, the muscles have nothing to contract down on. It is for this reason that most hunger pains are relieved by eating something.

Doctors do consider the periodic "cyclic" hunger pains as a possible indication of a peptic ulcer of the stomach or the small intestine (duodenum).

The fact that eating relieves hunger pains is very significant as a diagnostic sign. When such a history is given to a doctor, he follows through with X-ray studies of the stomach and intestines. This, of course, is the positive way to determine if someone has an ulcer.

It has always been said that the stomach is a very sympathetic neighbor. Problems in the gall bladder or in the pancreas may reflect themselves with vague gnawing sensations. Repeated bouts of hunger pains should not be neglected.

Can syphilis occur in the elderly as well as in the young? — Mrs. D.W.

Dear Mrs. W.:

When direct contact is made with a person who is infected with syphilis the germ can infect anyone. There is no sex, no age, no social or economic level and no race that can be considered immune to syphilis.

Despite all educational campaigns, syphilis still remains one of the great plagues of mankind. Present-day sexual promiscuity is responsible for the fact that syphilis now exists in epidemic and pandemic (everywhere) proportions.

Unfortunately, many irresponsible people fail to bring a venereal infection to the attention of their doctor. Young people, especially, are fearful of parental reactions, and hide this serious problem.

Even more unfortunate is the fact that the initial sore, or "chancre" of the genitals and the mouth, may disappear after a few days, even without treatment. The consequent result is that many of those who have been exposed to syphilis and might have been cured by early treatment forget about it only to come to a later realization that the disease did NOT disappear.

Secondary complications of syphilis are serious and can be very destructive.

Building a Home Out of Firewood

Is it possible to build a comfortable house for only $10,000? You bet it is. Mother reader Jack Henstridge of Oromocto, New Brunswick, had to.

Times were tough for my family three years ago. I lost my job, my house burned down and my van swallowed a valve.

On the bright side, though, I collected $8,000 in fire insurance money, and I had plenty of time to design and build a replacement for my home.

Whether I could buy food for my family and still have enough money for a decent home was another question, however.

With this in mind, I decided the best thing would be to build a home out of logs.

I began to research materials and methods of log-dwelling construction, even visiting log buildings in the area. After some careful study, I decided my log dwelling would have a gambrel roof and to construct my new house on a concrete slab foundation.

What I wanted to do was create a modernistic dwelling using old methods of construction. Also, I wanted the house to tell a story to serve as sort of a live-aboard sculpture.

Because of my interest in sailing and aviation, I decided to design a ship with wings. The central living area of the house would have the floor plan of a ship, except the ship would be upside down with its keel serving as the roof. To each side of the inverted bessel, I'd attach wing-like extensions containing the bedrooms, baths, kitchen, study and utility area.

Rather than the conventional log cabin-type structure, I decided to erect a "stackwood wall" house, which involved nothing more than stacking firewood-sized sections of logs on their sides in a mortar matrix.

—Simplicity. Anyone who can cut and stack wood can build a stackwall house.

—Low cost. Windfalls, trees that are badly bowed or twisted, "waste" lumber — almost any kind of wood can be used, as long as it's dry.

—Soundproof design. Because the finished walls are so thick, the inside of the house is unusually quiet, regardless of what's going on outside.

On the minus side, though, the stackwood walls have very poor insulating properties, mainly because lime mortar passes heat like a sieve. I solved this problem, however, by making the walls fairly thick (nine inches) and by sandwiching chunks of Styrofoam into the mortar.

Although the house isn't complete yet (one whole wing of the dwelling isn't finished on the inside), I've decided that I could hardly have chosen a more comfortable, attractive and economical-to-build structure. I figure that when the house is finished, its total cost will be about $10,000.

That's a lot better than $75,000 to have a more conventional home built by someone else.

ULTRA-VIOLET TUBES CLEAN 'USED' AIR

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Packs of ultra-violet light tubes installed in central air conditioner systems are the cheapest and most effective way to disinfect recirculated air, says Dr. Richard Riley of Medicine, Baltimore.

"With the energy situation as it is today, it's quite clear that modern buildings like hospitals, schools, businesses and hotels have to recirculate a lot of air for energy conservation purposes," he told the annual meeting of the Canadian Lung Association.

"But it is an urgent matter — the recirculated air should be disinfected."

Dr. Riley, who is president of the American Thoracic Society, presented a study carried out on a measles epidemic in a New York school in 1974 where 60 children of 868 were infected.

A dominant factor in the spread of the infection was the recirculation of air in the air-conditioning system during the incubation period, he said.

Hawaiian Stuffing

This stuffing has a lovely fruity flavor which roasts through the bird.

So special is this stuffing, that it deserves two fresh plump market chickens, but it is also suitable for two average size ducks or a small turkey.

¾ cup butter or margarine
1 cup of onions, finely chopped
1 clove of garlic (crushed but unpeeled)
1 cup of celery, finely diced
1 fresh pineapple, peeled, cored and diced
1 cup of peeled, diced apple
1 papaya, seeded, peeled and diced
7 cups of white bread cubes (egg bread is also good) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 oranges

Melt butter in large skillet, saute onions, celery and garlic. Remove garlic. Combine fruit, bread and seasonings. (Moisten slightly if too dry).

Stuff dry bird and roast in traditional manner. Add grated orange peel and juice to pan drippings when basting.

OFF THE WALL

Louise DeGrave

I don't think psychologists have paid enough attention to the intense psychic trauma that can be inflicted by a haircut.

I mean, I have more friends who've gone in for a new hairdo to perk up their spirits, and walked out two hours later practically suicidal.

Now, I am not suggesting in any way that this is the fault of the hairdresser. OK, so occasionally you do get a really rotten cut. (I once had one, for example, at this really expensive place and afterwards everyone I ran into said, "You let Ralph cut your hair!". Very depressing. Even my husband, Ralph, looked at it and inquired, "Do you think he was trying to be artsy or hostile?"

But most haircuts (frosting jobs, permanents, etc.) are done quite competently. So why do people get so unhinged about them?

Well, from my own experience, I have to admit that I think there is a tendency toward undue expectations of a haircut. You think you've been impervious to advertising, but deep in your heart, you really think it's going to work all kinds of miracles for you. Cure your depression. Jazz up your social life. Kill germs on contact.

Now, one of the worst kinds of expectations to have (and prbably the one that drives more hairdressers into alcoholism) is to hand the poor stylist a picture of a gorgeous model from a magazine and insist on a cut just like that.

For about two years the guy who cut my hair would practically get down on his knees and implore me to understand that this was not the hairstyle of choice for someone with a long, thin face and hair like a mattress. But I was adamant. (I was also usually despondent when I saw the results.)

Alas, it was a long time before I finally grasped the concept that if you take a beautiful model's wedge haircut and put it on Quasimodo, you do not transform him into a beautiful model. You just have Quasimodo with a wedge.

Of course, the second reason people react so strongly to a new hairstyle is that you get used to how you look. Any dramatic change in your appearance makes you not look like you anymore.

Now, hair is something you notice right away in a person, particularly—if they don't seem to have any all of a sudden. So even your friends don't know how to react to the new you. Most of them, taken by surprise, find themselves blurting out the obvious: "You got your hair cut!" Then while the scalpee (you) stands there with a semi-hysterical glazed smile trying to put up a brave front, the friend stutters and mumbles a lot and finally proclaims, "I mean, it looks really CUTE."

All this fumbling around doesn't mean that they think the style is unflattering to you (even though at first glance it seems to make your head look like a coconut). It just means they aren't used to it.

I don't know. Maybe the reason nobody ever paid much attention to the haircut-induced trauma is because the problem always corrects itself. Hair grows, of course, but it's more than that.

I remember when I had my first really short haircut three years ago, after always having had long hair.

"I guess a dramatically different haircut really forces you to adjust your self-image," husband Ralph observed at the time. "Sort of like a mini-identity crisis."

"What's so mini about it?" I said, tearfully cancelling all my engagements for the next six months.

In three years, I'd forgotten I ever looked any different.

Japanese Women Fight Toward Top

TOKYO (Reuter) — Male chauvinism in Japan will have difficulties if the country's first political party completely composed of women wins just a few seats in July's upper house elections.

Misako Enoki, who founded the Japan Women's Party in March, has said her candidates will learn karate to deal with unsympathetic parliamentarians of the opposite sex.

Mrs. Enoki has led her party members, nicknamed the pink helmets, against the offices of errant husbands to force them to pay alimony.

She told journalists recently that the party will field about 10 candidates for election to the 252-seat upper house.

HER CHILDREN teasingly call her the "Bionic Woman," but Mrs. Judy Deuel of Edmonton is nothing but enthusiastic about her new hand. At the age of two Mrs. Deuel lost her left hand when it was badly mangled by a lawn mower. Now, her myo-electric hand gives much of the appearance and function of a real hand. The compact electronic device weighs about two pounds, is covered by a cosmetic skin, has a grip force of 20 pounds and contains no straps or harnesses. It works by electrodes which pick up the body's electrical signals from the brain.

"They will inflict karate chops on those who present bills unfavorable to women or who make remarks humiliating to the fair sex," she said.

The Diet (parliament) now has 10 women in the 511-seat lower house and 18 in the upper house, 20 of whom are running for re-election.

Mrs. Enoki, who will not run in the election but will supervise the campaign, said elected pink helmets may forcibly occupy the house president's seat when necessary.

She said the objective of her party was to achieve women's supremacy in Japan by the end of this century, ending Japanese chauvinism which has lasted about 5,000 years.

"Our first task is to get parliamentary seats to revise the civil code to the advantage of women" she said. "We'll eventually grab a majority and take over power, then we'll extend our helping hands to other male-dominated countries. In industrialized society, the power of muscles is no longer a merit. Women have more tenacity and adaptability than men."

To set up the party, Mrs. Enoki persuaded her doctor husband to borrow $56,000 from a bank, using their houses as collateral. Announcing the party's creation last March, she said her husband had agreed to borrow the money on condition that if the debt was not paid by the end of July she would divorce either him or women's liberation.

"If we successfully revise male-orientated laws, a woman will be eligible to accede to the imperial throne, all government employees will be women with men doing part-time jobs and firms whose presidents and executives are women will be exempt from corporate taxes.

"Working women will form an all-woman labor organization. Women will be able to enter the defence academy so that military officers will eventually be women."

Mrs. Enoki formed a pressure group in 1972 calling for the liberalization of abortion laws and the sale of contraceptives.

Abortion, legal in Japan since 1948 under stringent conditions, now is allowed for economic reasons as well as mental and other physical conditions, while the once-banned pill now is available with a prescription.

Mrs. Enoki formed an organization to help destitute wives in 1975.

She said that of 5,000 cases brought to the organization's attention, many were resolved in the wives' favor with the rest still under negotiation.

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

The great interest in indoor plants is nothing new. It's merely been awakened because of the conditions in this world and our need to return to the earth. Plants, trees, flowers and herbs are mysterious as animals, since along with humankind they participate in the phenomena of life and death. Folklore and mythology are facets of the plant experience that can help us to understand more and even add a little fun to the subject.

An area of plant lore that has proven popular is astrology and the relationship of plants to the sun, moon, stars and planets.

In ancient and medieval times a plant's physical appearance was thought to resemble the significance of the planetary sign that governed it. For instance, the sun rules the reddish-orange saffron, camomile, cellandine, marigold, sunflower, angelica, lovage, rosemary, rue centaury, eyebright, storax and walnuts. The moon influences the gourd, mango, melon, pumpkin, opium poppy, orris root, sweet flag, seaweed, watercress, willow, wintergreen, cabbage, cucumber and lettuce.

There are plants relating to Mercury (caraway and carrots), Venus (daisy, periwinkle, primrose), Mars (cacti, hawthorn, garlic), Jupiter (almond, chestnut, currant and fig) and Saturn (barley, comfrey root).

Aries: Cactus, garlic, rosehips, mustard, nettle, onion.

Taurus: lovage, mushroom.

Gemini: moss, vervain.

Cancer: cucumber, lettuce, melon, lemon, honeysuckle, jasmine.

Leo: camomile, celandine, marigold, orange, saffron, peony.

Virgo: barley, oats, rye, wheat.

Libra: apple, cherry primrose, strawberry, white rose.

Scorpio: basil, wormwood.

Sagittarius: oak, beech, elm.

Capricorn: cypress, hemlock, nightshade.

Aquarius: frankincense, myrh.

BAKED SESAME CHICKEN

2 tbsp. soy sauce
3 tbsp. toasted sesame seeds
2 tbsp. all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt (or to taste) and dash pepper
2 tbsp. butter, melted
2 large whole chicken breasts, skinned and halved extra toasted sesame seeds (for garnish) parsley sprigs (for garnish)

Place soy sauce in shallow baking dish. On waxed paper, combine sesame seeds, flour, salt, and pepper. Dip chiken in soy sauce, then dip flesh side in seasoned flour mixture. Arrange chicken in baking dish in a single layer with coated side up. Drizzle melted butter over chicken. Bake in 400 deg. F. oven for approx. 30 minutes or until chicken is tender. Baste with pan drippings once during cooking time. Garnish with extra toasted sesame seeds and parsley sprigs, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition Essential for Begonias

The season for tuberous begonias in flower for outdoor gardens is July and August, with often a good showing continued throughout September if early frosts hold off.

Just now the gardener either has growing tubers which were started indoors in March or is thinking of buying budded plants.

For many years there were local commercial growers of these fine showy plants who made displays at the June flower show in the lower Crystal Garden ballroom, so wonderful that I believe many a "first" color film was dedicated to these blooms by visitors.

What we learned from these specialists was that to get top quality blooms it is first essential to build up a strong plant. Although the color and type of flower depends on the parentage of the tuberous rootstock, the size, texture and life-span is improved by care given the growing plant.

If growing in pots, or when planting into large containers or into ground beds, use a screened mixture of leafmould, garden loam and a little sand. A coarse peatmoss is useful if fiber is lacking.

Abundant fiber (from leafmould, other composted fiber, or very old cow or horse manure) is essential for retaining moisture at root level without constant watering. The roots must never be dry.

The amateur should hold back on fertilizer until the begonias are well budded. If one or two buds appear early on a plant from a mature tuber, remove them to encourage more growth.

As more buds appear, a weak feeding of general fertilizer such as 6-8-6 can be given. The solution advised is one teaspoon of 6-8-6 granules in one gallon of water. Leave the solution overnight to dissolve; stir well in morning and give a cupful to each plant — at the roots.

During July and August while flowering, tuberous begonias can be given this at two-week intervals, especially when plants are in containers having limited soil reserves.

When planted into a bed of well prepared soil, the tubers make masses of fine roots quite capable of foraging for nutrients. With ample soil moisture, the nutrients can be used.

These lovely flowers do especially well here on the coast in the dappled light of trees. This condition provides sunlight and shade in a moving pattern thus encouraging growth yet not scorching the succulent leaves nor bleaching the splendid flower colors.

Rotting stems, mildew on leaves and dropping buds are prevented by providing air space around each plant, watering only in mornings and only when needed, and avoiding dryness at root level. And do not overfeed, for too much fertilizer produces soft growth that succumbs quickly to both rot and mildew.

The largest flowers come when the two smaller ones on the stem are picked off when tiny. They are singles and female, while the really showy double one in central position is male. Sorry, girls, but this is the way it is with begonias.

SOLAR-TECH has a solar heating system that makes sense.

The SOLAR-AIRE SYSTEM can store and maintain storage of BTUs by the millions for many days of heating without sunshine. The system will work well where there are relatively poor sunshine factors.

The SOL-AIRE SYSTEM contains a patented solar collector panel, a patented self-stacking storage tray system (utctic salts) and co-ordinating controls. Heated air from the collectors is absorbed by the trays, which store enough heat for several days. There is minimal maintenance for the system and it is now being installed in over 20 locations in Canada and the United States.

Dealership inquiries welcome. For more information on dealership, write:

QUICK ACTION IS INDICATED ON THIS SACRIFICE SALE

This is one of Broadmead's most distinguished Tudor-style homes. The gracious, spacious living room provides lavish entertainment area and features a magnificent stone fireplace and a minstrel gallery (have you ever seen one?). The kitchen is brimming with feminine appeal and warm "Liveability" also adjoining large family eating area. A formal dining room provides elegant entertaining for family festivities. Bedrooms are 4 in number, one of which is a spacious 17'3x14 master with a 3-piece ensuite. Spiral staircase leads to 2 bedrooms and a 3-piece bathroom on second level. Oh, yes!! Forget to mention floors are beautiful parquiet-hardwood throughout with mostly high quality wall-to-wall on main level. And a lock-up wet bar in the living room. Last but not least, leaded windows!!! What more can I say except — Don;t put off seeing this home or you will pass up a rare buy.

HANDYMAN'S SPECIAL CLOSE TO JUBILEE

What a chance for you to get a 2-bedroom house with stairway to the attic with lots of room for 2 more bedrooms. Main level has dining room with living room with fireplace. Full basement with workshop space and room for another bedroom. Lovely 60x120 lot needs some TLC to make it so pretty exterior is solid stucco that could do with a stucco white dash to make this soarkle. Guess what?!?! You can get into this one for only about $2000 down if you can qualify for a high ration mortgage. I suggest you call Murray of myself to show you how to get a home of your own on reasonable terms. Fix it up in your spare time and then trade your increased equity into another house or duplex. What a location! Hurry on this one. We don't think it will last. Call:

OAK BAY HOME REDUCED TO $67,900 PARKLIKE LOT 75'x120'

This is a wonderful home. 1189 sq. ft. on the main level with a dream kitchen and it opens to large eating area which in turn is adiacent to the dining area, currently used as family area. Brick chimney is exposed with spare room for installing a parlor stove for cosy evenings playing Monopoly or Scrabble with the family. (Like the good old days.) Two bedrooms on the main level with 4-piece bathroom. Basement has 2 very large completely finished heated bedrooms. Also large "rec" area for pool table. Utility area is plumbed for W-D. Drive-in garage is now used as a workshop but would make a fantastic family-music room. Oh, yes, forget to mention that the eating area opens onto a large sundeck. Qualified buyer can get new 7½% mortgage for 1 year at 10% with 25-year amtzn. or 10½% for a 3-to-5-year term. Half block to exciting Carnarvon Park, close to bus and shops. On a very quiet street. This has a roof and outside and much redecoration inside. This is a good buy.

So Lovely!

But not for you UNLESS your family wants a spacious 3-bedroom home with two large self-contained 1-bedroom suites in the lower level.
This beautiful property is located near Victoria University on a gentle slope near the base of Mt. Tolmie among mature trees and shrubs, terraced lawns, flowers and a vegetable garden too. The western exposure, wrap-around deck and secluded patios provide outdoor living and privacy with outstanding views.
The indoor living is equally desirable. Entertain in the 24'x16' living room, a full 16'x10'6" dining room. Completing the picture is a family kitchen with eating area, bathroom, and three fine bedrooms.
All that, and more, yet this is not an impossible old mansion on a small lot, but a warm, easy to maintain carefully planned home, sturdily built in 1957 on a large corner lot.
Bring the family to view this unique property. See it for yourself. There's parking for four or five cars or campers or boats. Let me discuss with you the financing, and the various ways the family can share in this sound investment. Now priced at only $89,900. MLS 24245. Meet me, Marguerite or Al, at:

Dear Maggie,

I'd like a real family home that has three bedrooms, a nice family kitchen, but forget all that! What I really want is a fireplace, in fact if I had my wish I'd have TWO fireplaces, one in the living room and one downstairs where we could toast marshmallows. I haven't much money, but I have a reliable job. Can you help me?
Hector

MONEY

"Monetary Obligations Negotiate Efficient Yields". A laymans translation being: "Now is the TIME to prove your Dollar Value."
Match your dollars to any of these fine offerings:
UNDER $40,000
1. A handymans special on 1 Ac., 3 bdrms., outbuildings, close to schools and store. Offers on $37,500.
2. Seaview, ¾ Ac., now has 2 bdrm. mobile. Creek. A lot of potential for the reasonable asking price of $39,500.
Under $50,000
1. A neat older 2 bdrm. home on a lovely secluded 2 Ac. parcel. First time offered on the market! Asking $44,500.
2. A new (1 yr.) 3 bdrm. full bsmt. home at end of cul-de-sac in area of new homes. Lots of trees give a natural rural atmosphere to this Shawnigan Lake Sub. Vendor has plans which urge her to entertain offers on $49,900.
Under $60,000
1. Excellent for young family — a cozy 3 bdrm. home in heart of Shawnigan. Recreational world's 1 blk. from beach. A double separate garage, berry and fruit trees in a rich garden area complete this half Ac. package. Asking price $52,500.
2. Vendor says SELL "Now". A bargain at this uncompleted stage. It's LOG, it's Unique and it's beautiful! He has artistically blended "log and plaster" decor. A lovely rock fireplace, 3 bdrms. up, 1 down, sliding glass doors to 2 decks, Lg. rumpus room, ¾ Ac. that needs some landscaping and your efforts will be well rewarded on an "offer" on $59,500.
Under $70,000
1. SEAVIEW, Approx. 20 yrs., well built "homey" dwelling on an exceptionally well landscaped approx. half lot. "The view is commanding"! Unique things like the glassed "garden room" make this a property to really consider for its asking price of $67,500. Oh, the vendor. Well he's building the house next door!
2. A Cobntry home, 3 or 4 bdrm., but has the equivalent of a full suite in the basement, with a sep. entrance. On ½ Ac. on paved road. Tenants now out! Vendor anxious to sell. Offers on $62,500.
Under $80,000
1. An exceptionally well built 3 bdrm. home. New and a difficult one to replace! Cedar siding exterior, gyp. and wood int., 1st quality w-w and imported tiles. Lg. feature rock fireplace. Thermopane windows. On 2 Ac. within 1 mi. of Shawnigan Beach. Serious buyers look at this at $79,500.
2. 1800 sq. ft. home, plus enclosed garage, 4 stall barn green house, dog kennell, swimming pool, on 2.57 acres. The driveway is paved; the landscaping is done; and it's waitig for the anxious family to get on with "living", in the Mill Bay area. As vendors sadly have to move to Duncan for business reasons! They have reluctantly lowered their "appraised" asking price of $82,500 and would consider a "solid" $75,000 offer!
3. A brand new listing, 2 yr. old, 2400 sq. ft. of living, 4 bdrm., elec. ht. in area of fine homes, on Shawnigan Lake area. Close to all amenities. Nicely landscaped. Try an offer on the asking price $72,500.
3. An opportunist could use this! It's 3 bdrm. up, 2 ensuite, and a master bath. Plus a 3 bdrm. full suite in bsmt. with separate entrance. Share a utility. Dble carport plus dbl. attached garage, ideal for "home occupation". Sunken gas fuel tank for private use. Distant views. Close to schools and stores, yet secluded. Tenant occupied presently. Offers on $79,500.
Over $100,000
1. WATERFRONT — We just listed this "beautiful retreat for the discriminating buyer". Approx. 4 exceptional acres, nicely sloped, trees, fenced, fruit trees etc. The home is immaculate and extremely comfortable with 2 heatilator fireplaces. A full high basement, lovely patios, landscaped. To be viewed by appt. only! Realistically priced at $135,500.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday calls. Don't allow the reader to speculate

309 IN MEMORIAM

BROOKE — In loving memory of Dear Ted, who died June 16th, 1970.
Time can never take away the love that lies deep in our hearts.
—Ever cherished by Marie and sons Bob, Jack and Ted.

McILWAINE, ETHEL G., a loving mother, wife, nana, and great-grandmother, who passed away June 17, 1976.
We cannot forget her loving ways
Or the joys of happy bygone days.
In our thoughts, in every prayer
Deep in our hearts she's always there.
—Sadly missed — the family.

McILWAINE, ETHEL G.: One year has passed away since you left us June 17th, 1975. Days of sadness will always come. You are with God and at peace.
—YOUR SISTER, DOROTHY AND BILL.

SMITH: In loving memory of Harold Smith, who passed away June 17th, 1976.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—LOVINGLY REMEMBERED by Mumsey and Betty Chadwick.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEAR'S CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Britain Combines Women's, Men's Services

LONDON (CP) — The British Women's Services are celebrating their 60th anniversary this year.

Pay, except for a small combatant allowance, now is the same for men and women and separate training establishments are almost eliminated.

Titles of rank, except for the Women's Royal Naval Service (WRNS) are the same and messes are shared by men and women.

Of course, there are more men than women in any particular job because numbers in the peacetime women's services are small.

There are just under 3,000 in the WRNS, a little over 4,000 in both the Women's Royal Army Corps (WRAC) and the Women's Royal Air Force (WRAF).

The women are highly qualified and good educational standards are needed for entry. There are waiting lists and there may be as many as 14 applicants for a single vacancy in a specialist officer grade.

The range of opportunities is wide. WRAF air loadmasters, commissioned in the general duties (flying) branch, are responsible for the supervision of loading and balance clearance of the aircraft and for supervision of cabin services.

The work of the general duties (ground) branch includes aircraft control, involving a wide range of duties at airfields; and fighter control which deals with aerospace defence systems.

Early in 1917, Dame Helen Gwynne-Vaughan, who had just been appointed chief controller of the newly formed Women's Auxiliary Corps, asked a colonel she knew if his wife would interest herself in the work of the corps.

The colonel was affronted. His wife, he assured Dame Helen, was a truly feminine woman.

The remark remained in her mind, as it expressed a point of view she had to fight against all the time. Men knew what women's work was, and so indeed did most women.

Nurses had been attached to the army since 1881 and were accepted. But uniformed women in other service posts seemed inconceivable when the First World War broke out, and it took two years of carnage for attitudes to change.

It was not until in 1916 that the Women's Auxiliary Corps was proposed, and even though the corps was the largest of the women's services, its 57,000 members did not equal in number the 60,000 casualties of just the first day of the Battle of the Somme.

The WRAF had about 32,000 members and the WRNS with opportunities limited to shore establishments only about 7,000.

In spite of their small numbers and the difficulties they had to contend with, these women's services pioneers did remarkable work.

Cipher clerks, drivers, storewomen, telegraphists, telephonists, dispatch riders performed duties which had been thought to be beyond their capacity.

The quality and reliability of their contribution to the war effort persuaded the government to grant votes to women after the Armistice.

Nevertheless, the women's services could not, it seemed, be used in post-war army, navy and air force and they were disbanded.

But their contribution had not been forgotten and in the crisis year of 1938 the Auxiliary Territorial Service (ATS) for women began recruitment.

During the Second World War its numbers rose to a peak of 215,000 in 1943. These services were prominent in all the theatres of war—and though they remained separate organizations, integration with the men's units had already begun.

Health Cost 'Intolerable Burden'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy says that rapidly-rising health care costs are imposing an intolerable financial burden in B.C.

She told the opening session of the annual convention of the Catholic Health Association of Canada that public hospital costs have increased from $187 million in 1970 to $615 million in the current fiscal year.

Mrs. McCarthy said it is obvious that these rapidly rising costs are imposing a financial burden on government that is threatening the funding of other vital services to people.

She said it is equally obvious that there has to be a change and health care costs must be curtailed over the next few years.

URBAN GRANTS DROP

SASKATOON (CP) — About 75 per cent of Saskatchewan's urban and rural municipalities will receive less than they expected in provincial per-capita grants this year because of a decline in population shown by the 1976 census.

Of more than 800 municipalities listed in the census, 208 show population increases since the last national headcount in 1971.

For the others, the decline in population means a shrinking of the base on which the province calculates some grants to the communities.

A spokesman for the municipal affairs department said this year's per-capita grants will be based on the latest population figures. He said the department has yet to access the effect of the census on the level of grants to municipalities.

Planet-Spawning Disc-Star Discovered in Cygnus

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — A new phenomenon of space, a disc-star, has been discovered in the constellation Cygnus, it was announced today.

The visible image of the flat, disc-shaped, highly luminous stellar object is that of the star when it was only 1,000 years old — extremely young in astronomical terms — and it appears to be in the process of forming planets, a research team said. But the new star actually is much older than it appears.

Because it is 10,000 light years away, the image astronomers now view has taken 10,000 years to reach the earth.

Photographs were made of the star, which has a central core and a disc of intensely-glowing gas with a diameter 20 times that of its center.

Scientists said the luminous disc is believed to be the inner part of a surrounding larger disc of non-luminous gas in which outer planets may already have formed.

"The new star is about 10 times the size and 30 times the mass of our sun, and is expected to live only 100 million years," the researchers said, adding that the calculated life of the earth's sun is 10 billion years.

The discovery was made by a team of astrophysists headed by Dr. Rodger Thompson of the University of Arizona's Steward Observatory.

"Both were needed for the discovery," the scientists said. "Infrared observations were essential to see through the veil of dust shrouding the disc-star."

Announcement of the discovery was made simultaneously at the Ames Research Centre in California and at the American Astronomical Society meeting in Atlanta.

No Plans For Amnesty

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Francis Fox said Thursday night he is not considering amnesty for some prisoners as part of the silver jubilee celebrations for Queen Elizabeth.

The question was raised at a session of the Commons justice committee by Robert Stanbury (L, York-Scarborough), who suggested that non-violent prisoners with not much time left to serve might be released.

"It isn't under consideration," Fox said.

"Maybe you could consider it for the golden jubilee in 2002," suggested Caude-Andre Lachance (L, Montreal-Lafontaine).

New Subdivision Rules Urged

Revised procedures for handling subdivision applications, including for the first time a regular channel of planning advice, were recommended Thursday by Victoria's public works committee.

The main intent of the policy changes is to ensure that any proposal to subdivide property in the city receives thorough evaluation in relation to general planning guidelines for the immediate neighborhood, esthetic considerations and the subdivision's potential impact on adjacent properties.

If the new system is adopted by city council, all subdivision applications will have to conform not only with a set of technical standards and requirements, but with value judgments aimed at protecting the public's interest.

Such applications will be referred automatically to the city planning director for his advice, and if necessary will also be considered by the city's Advisory Planning Commission before appropriate action is recommended by the public works committee and approved by council.

The revision of procedures follows complaints by council members as well as community groups and individuals, who were concerned that in the past subdivisions were often approved merely on the basis of the "numbers game."

In other words, the tendency was to assess them against a set of technical requirements, including lot size, access and services, while ignoring broader planning implications.

Bombs Herald Brezhnev Visit

PARIS (Reuter) — A self-styled Solidarity Resistance Group protesting next week's state visit to France by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev claimed responsibility today for two overnight bomb attacks which caused slight damage to two Soviet-owned buildings. A group spokesman said the bombs were planted to protest Brezhnev's visit because the people of Eastern Europe are "under the yoke of the Red Army."

VILLAGE LOSES NURSE

Resignation of the public health nurse at Port Renfrew will leave that community and part of the west coast fishing fleet without ready access to medical help.

Claire Coombs, who has served public health requirements at the West Coat port for the past four years, is leaving the district at the end of June to live in Duncan.

Dr. John Etherington, of Sooke, will continue to make weekly visits to Port Renfrew, a community of some 400 persons, mainly the families of B.C. Forest Products loggers.

The nearest other settlement is Jordan River, which has no resident nurse or physician.

Sooke, which has a public health clinic besides private practising doctors, is about 36 miles from Port Renfrew.

Regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil will meet Monday in Port Renfrew with community representatives including BCFP and department of Indian affairs in an effort to reach agreement on cost-sharing for a full-time replacement nurse.

Body Found In River

DUNCAN — RCMP here are unable to identify the body of a young man found floating face down in the Cowichan River Thursday morning.

"We have not as yet identified the partly-decomposed body," a police spokesman said. The body was found about five blocks below the Silver Bridge just east of Duncan.

Police described the victim as a male in his mid-20s, about six feet tall weighing 160 pounds with collar-length reddish-tinged hair, clean-shaven with no visible scars or other identifying marks on his body.

The victim was wearing blue jeans with a stretch-type red, white and blue belt, a T-shirt with a picture of a roadrunner on it and a white sport coat with blue designs.

Police are not certain if the body is Caucasion or native Indian. "It is believed the body had been in the water in excess of 72 hours," the spokesman said.

Duncan coroner T. H. Lines has ordered an autopsy.

Police said the cause of death could be drowning "but we want to be certain. Any further information from the public regarding this body would be greatly appreciated."

Duncan RCMP can be reached at 746-4125.

FISHERMAN AIRLIFTED FROM BOAT

A commercial fisherman is in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's General Hospital at Comox today after being airlifted Thursday night from his fishing vessel off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre spokesman said today a Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox was despatched at 8 p.m. when it was reported Rick Rockliffe, aboard the 40-foot two-masted west coaster Aeolus was reported suffering from a broken rib and a possible punctured lung.

The Richmond-registered vessel was 30 miles southwest of Tofino.

The destroyer HMCS Saskatchewan was 35 miles away from the Aeolus and was alerted but stood down after the Labrador reached the Aeolus.

Recreation Zone Hearing

Saanich will hold a public hearing June 27 on proposed amendments to a zoning bylaw to control what can be built or used in areas zoned for outdoor recreation.

The amendments were ordered drawn up by municipal solicitor Doug Patterson after Royal Oak residents protested the expansion of the Fun City amusement park at Vanalman and the Pat Bay Highway.

Richard Gauthier, president of the Royal Oak Ratepayers' Association, told council earlier this month that residents fear the park will attract undesirable elements, increase juvenile crime in the area, create noise pollution and add to traffic problems.

The main thrust of the amendments is to prohibit slot machines and motor-driven vehicles.

Mayor Ed Lum, however, has warned the amendments cannot be made retroactive.

Groups Oppose Oil Tankers

The Bluepeace Coastal Foundation and the Citizens Association to Save the Environment have combined forces in their fight to stop oil tankers moving through the Strait of Juan de Fuca to the Cherry Point refinery.

Bluepeace president Lofty Coning and CASE president Derrick Mallard report plans will be made to recruit and mobilize all concerned people.

In addition, the two organizations will contact all levels of government in their efforts to protect the marine environment.

Coning can be reached at 386-3614. Mallard's number is 652-3487.

Gulf Man Wrote Letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Gulf Oil Corp. executive said today he helped draft a Canadian government request that Gulf participate in an international uranium price-setting cartel.

The testimony by L. T. Gregg to a House of Representatives investigations subcommittee appeared to undermine Gulf's contention that it was compelled to join the cartel by Canadian officials.

At issue is a January, 1974, letter by a top Canadian energy official to N. M. Ediger, manager of Gulf's Canadian uranium-marketing subsidiary, claiming "it is deemed to be in the public interest" for Gregg to become an active member of the cartel's operations committee.

Gregg, then manager for uranium sales for the subsidiary, said the letter was drafted by Ediger and himself.

The letter was signed by G. M. MacNabb, senior assistant Canadian deputy minister for energy, mines and resources.

Gulf officials testified before the subcommittee Thursday that the firm joined the cartel only because it was forced to by the Canadian government. The officials also denied that this involvement violated any United States anti-trust laws.

Gregg said that his superiors at Gulf were sensitive about the anti-trust issue and that "I would not, as a practice, talk about club activities when I was in the United States."

He said that if asked about activities of foreign uranium producers he would deny knowing anything about the arrangement.

Subcommittee chairman John Moss (Dem. Calif.) said the subcommittee may vote to ask the justice department to investigate whether Gulf violated U.S. anti-trust laws.

Gregg, testifying under supeona, said that he served on the cartel's "operating committee" for the first four months of 1974 and attended various cartel meetings.

Gregg said the cartel had a quota system so that a percentage of the international market was guaranteed by the members — Canada, Australia, government-controlled production company's in South Africa and France, and an international firm called RTZ based in Britain.

"There was a set of minimum prices," he said, for each cartel member to use in selling uranium, and the members would take turns serving as the leading bidder for new business.

As Gregg described it, "the leader" had to bid at the minimum price level or above and the system served to raise prices repeatedly.

Gregg said the cartel's activities were co-ordinated by a "secretariat" office in Paris.

Prevue STUDENT CASHES IN

Prevue Payoff Puzzle perseverance and perspicacity have been rewarded with a $300 cash prize for University of Victoria linguistics student Adrian Leslie, of 12-4391 Torquay Drive.

Leslie said Thursday he intends to put the money toward his living expenses while completing a doctoral program at UVic, where he is developing grammars for previously unwritten native languages, particularly the Cowichan language.

Leslie, 29, has been a regular Prevue competitor since January but the prize has eluded him until now.

He said he submitted 64 entries a week ago, but this week he submitted only four and won.

He enjoys doing the puzzles because it "really sharpens the intuition," he said.

'Illegal' $25,000 Daily For Computer Consultants

DEAD at 65 from cancer is Werner von Braun, the German - born scientist whose rockets rained terror on London and sent Americans to the moon. See story on Page 22.

The NDP charged Thursday that the government is illegally spending more than $25,000 a day for up to 70 consultants on computer services.

The charge came in a motion to set aside the normal business of the legislature to debate the alleged unauthorized spending on development of the proposed B.C. Systems Corp., a Crown corporation intended to take over the government's computing services.

A bill to establish the corporation was introduced last April 4 but has not yet been debated.

Norm Levi (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said in his motion that the government is breaching the Audit Act by paying consultants up to $600 each a day without legislative authority to make the expenditures.

"The daily cost exceeds $25,000 for the hiring of as many as 70 computer consultants each receiving a per diem salary ranging between $350 and $425 plus full office and living expenses," Levi told the legislature.

Speaker Ed Smith ruled the motion out of order on several grounds, including the fact that it was argumentive and the facts contained in the motion could be disputed.

During question period, before Levi introduced his motion, NDP members pressed the Social Credit government for detailed information on their allegations but Finance Minister Evan Wolfe took all questions as notice, meaning he would possibly answer at a later date.

Wolfe later told reporters there were a total of 27 consultants receiving between $80 and $384 each daily plus expenses of $40 to $50 for those from outside Victoria.

The expenditures were approved earlier by the legislature and come from a contingency fund of $3.5 million for computer and consulting serivces, Wolfe said, adding other funds are available from ministries using computers.

8 Injured In Calgary Shooting

CALGARY (CP) — Two policemen were among eight persons taken to hospital following a wild shooting spree Thursday night in a west-end shopping centre.

Constable R. F. McLeary was shot in his left leg and Constable Duane Brown had shotgun pellets in the neck, but neither was in serious condition, a police department official said today.

Names of the other six wounded — taken to three separate hospitals — were withheld. Names were not released but police said two of the wounded were young persons.

A suspect also was wounded and taken into custody.

Police said that about 8:40 p.m. a man left a house near the Westbrook shopping centre carrying two guns.

They said the man shot one person in a parking lot after he left the house and shot more persons as he approached the shopping centre.

It was the second shooting incident in the city in the last three weeks in which policemen were wounded.

AD HOC HANDOUTS END

14% Cash Boost To Municipalities

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Long-awaited legislation guaranteeing municipalities a fixed share of provincial government income was introduced today by Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

"The days of ad hoc handouts to municipalities are over," Curtis said in introducing the Revenue Sharing Act.

The revenue sharing formula, part of the Social Credit campaign platform in the last election, will mean an increase of about 14 per cent in money given to municipalities and regional districts, Curtis said. It will replace as of April 1, 1978, the current system of a $34 per capita grant to local governments.

Curtis said per capita grants this fiscal year will total about $119 million.

Under the new formula next year, local governments will get about $140 million.

The bill provides a fixed formula for the calculation of provincial grants to municipalities and means local governments will no longer have to wait each year for the introduction of the provincial budget to find out if there has been any change in the per capita grant.

The legislation was welcomed by Union of B.C. Municipalities president Mayor Pat Duke, of Lumby.

Duke said he had not had time to study the dollar implications of the legislation but is happy the government has finally replaced the per capita system with a fixed formula.

"We are now going to know in advance what money we can budget," Duke said.

"We were continually going to the provincial government for ad hoc grants and a change of government or even a change of ministers could wipe them out.

"I think the UBCM will welcome it," he said.

Money for municipalities under the new formula comes from three sources:

The dollar value of one personal income tax point; the dollar value of one corporate income tax point and 6 per cent of provincial government revenue generated in B.C. from renewable resources, non-renewable resources and sales tax.

(A tax point equals 1 per cent of all taxes, both federal and provincial, raised in B.C.)

"Simply stated, this means that local governments will automatically receive about six cents of every economy-generated dollar entering the

10% LEEWAY TO BUY-B.C.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe has doubled the preference given to B.C. — manufactured goods bought by the provincial government as part of a B.C. — first campaign.

Wolfe said the move is designed to encourage municipalities, school boards, regional districts, universities, hospitals and other public agencies to make every effort to buy B.C.-made supplies whenever possible.

The move means any B.C.-manufactured article can be 10 per cent higher in cost than a non-B.C.-made article, and still be considered for purchase as an equal bidder.

Previous policy allowed only a five per cent special preference leeway for B.C. goods.

For the first time, a price preference will be given to Canadian manufacturers outside B.C. up to a maximum of five per cent, when B.C. manufacturers cannot supply the goods.

Wolfe said he estimates the amount of purchasing done by all public agencies in B.C. to be about $1.5 billion, including about $150 million by the provincial government itself.

Wolfe said about 80 per cent of the goods purchased by the provincial government are now B.C.-made but hopes the new 10 per cent preference policy will increase that to 95 per cent.

The preference policy will not be imposed on other public agencies, but Wolfe said word of the move will be sent to all those agencies so they can co-operate if they choose.

Raid 'Mistake' By RCMP—Fox

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Francis Fox blamed the RCMP today for making mistakes in joining an illegal raid in Montreal in 1972 and for recommending that a complaint about the raid not be answered by Jean-Pierre Goyer, solicitor-general at the time.

Fox told the Commons the government "seriously considered" creating a royal commission in 1976 after a Mountie on trial on another charge said he had taken part in the police break-in into the offices of a left-wing Montreal news agency.

Only "repeated and unequivocal assurances" from the RCMP that the incident was "exceptional and isolated" changed the government's mind.

Fox said the incident raises doubts about a situation in which the RCMP investigate and handle complaints made against them.

He said he will introduce legislation later this year setting out methods of handling public complaints against the RCMP "in an independent and objective manner."

RCMP Chief Supt. Donald Cobb and senior officers of the Quebec provincial and Montreal police forces were given unconditional discharges Thursday after pleading guilty May 26 to carrying out a raid without a warrant. Cobb, suspended without pay after the guilty plea, was at once reinstated. The discharge means he will have no criminal record.

The Quebec government has initiated an inquiry into the incident and Fox said he and the RCMP will co-operate fully.

He said the federal government had been committed to re-examine the matter once court action in Montreal had run its course.

The raid took place Oct. 6, 1972, when the combined anti-terrorist squad (CATS), made up of members from the three police forces, searched empty offices of l'Agence de Presse Libre du Quebec, le Mouvement pour la defense des prisonniers politiques du Quebec, and la Co-operative des demenageurs du 1er Mai.

"Neither RCMP headquarters in Ottawa, nor the commanding officer of C Division in Montreal, nor (Goyer), had been told of the search and seizure of documents . . . prior to the operation being carried out," Fox said.

He said he spoke personally to Goyer, former RCMP commissioner W. L. Higgitt, and former RCMP security service director John Starnes and was assured of this. Files bore it out, he added.

$2.2M PLAN TO SAVE ENERGY

The Provincial government Thursday launched a $2.2 million program to conserve energy.

Energy Minister Jack Davis said the three-year program, to be directed by the B.C. Energy Commission, will help industry, government institutions, homeowners and small businessmen find ways of saving energy.

"The BCEC is also being asked to look at renewable sources of supply such as solar energy, wind energy and wood wastes in order to reduce our consumption of oil and natural gas," Davis said.

"Demonstration projects will be encouraged by the commission and three — heat pumps, solar heating for homes and use of wood wastes — will be launched shortly."

NDU Bill Decertifies Faculty

The Notre Dame University of Nelson Act, introduced to the legislature Thursday by Education Minister Pat McGeer, provides for the decertification of the university faculty association retroactive to May 30.

The bill says the government and university will not be "liable for losses, damages or claims" resulting from this action.

The collective agreement for the faculty association of NDU (FANDU) is terminated retroactive to May 30, affecting about 20 staff members. The association is a local of the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees.

McGeer said later in an interview that NDU's current faculty would no longer have a case for claiming any new jobs at the David Thompson University centre.

A spokesman for the B.C. Federation of Labor said today the labor body is completely and totally opposed to the decertification move as it has been to the government's handling of the NDU matter.

Clamps on Post-AIB Rollback Gains

OTTAWA (CP) — The government intends to amend the anti-inflation law to stop unions and companies, which have had wage and price increases rolled back, regaining their losses after controls end, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

Macdonald told reporters outside the Commons it was the intention of the government to stop the use of AIB clauses in contracts which provide that employees can make up the difference between negotiated pay increases and those allowed by the anti-inflation board and the administrator.

Prices restrained by the board and the administrator also would be affected, Macdonald said.

Macdonald made the announcement as the Commons began a special three-day debate on a Conservative motion calling for an end to the program June 30. The program now is due to expire Dec. 31, 1978.

Conservative and NDP spokesmen said the controls program should be ended because it treats different groups inequitably and is hurting the economy.

The change proposed by Macdonald would follow the recommendations of both anti-inflation administrator Donald Tansley and board officials.

Macdonald said the problem was that in some contracts, when the program ends, pay increases would immediately go to the large amounts previously disallowed under the program.

"We feel that would be unfair to unions which have accepted rulings of the board or administrator," he said.

Macdonald said the use of AIB clauses could be extensive but he was not more specific.

He said there was uncertainty about the legal position of restraints once controls were removed and collective agreements ceased to be subject to mandatory restraint.

Earlier, the opposition said in debate that the controls had not effectively controlled inflation. The motion probably will be defeated because of the Liberal majority in the Commons.

Sinclair Stevens, the Conservative finance critic, said it was up to Macdonald to justify the continuation of the program.

CLUB MARKING 50 YEARS THIS WEEKEND

Doctors, Lawyers, Laborers —All Hooked on Motorcycles

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Once you've been a keen motorcyclist,, you're hooked for life, says Reg Shanks.

He should know.

"Going on 72," he was among members of the Victoria Motorcycle Club that "were stunting on the beach at the Oak Bay tea party," he reports.

The oldest active member of the club, Shanks is a director and general chairman for this weekend's golden jubilee celebrations. Members and ex-members will have a get-together at the Lambrick Park hall on Friday evening. "We'll be comparing notes and swapping lies," he says with a grin.

As Shanks reels off the names of those who were active members of the VMC in 1927, it begins to sound like a businessmen's directory.

Among them were Bill Dillabough of Dillabough and Luney, Keith Dorman of Dorman's Clothes an dthe Norrington brothers of Norrington bakery.

Then, of course, there were the Shanks — Reg, his brother Bob, who until recently operated Shanks' Saddlery, and their father, the late Pop Shanks who started Brooklands Motorcycle Sales and Service Ltd. on Fort back in 1913.

Reg, who carries on the family business, said although the VMC is officially 50 years of age the beginnings go back much farther.

"The roots go back to 1908 when there was a combination car and motorcycle club — seven or eight cars and four or five motorcycles," he reported. The VMC started as an entity in 1912 but was brought to an end by the First World War.

"When the war broke out the club was practically decimated with everybody joining up," he explained. "In 1919, there were a few stragglers around but in 1927 we really got together and we've never looked back."

Riding their machines in formation, members of the VMC have become an integral part of the Victoria Day Parade over the years. They've led the Pacific National Parades in Vancouver and gone through their paces for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip when the royal couple visited Victoria.

But it's not the pageantry that keeps the members together.

One of the best known of these is the annual Mt. Douglas hill climb. "It's probably the oldest athletic sporting event in Victoria," Shanks said, adding he saw his first one in 1921. Among the many pictures in Shanks' collection of mementoes is one of Newton Cameron, president of Victoria Plywood, winning the hill climb in 1951.

Another two events, eagerly looked forward to by members, first were run in 1933. They are the club's full-day and half-day cross-country trials.

But there's no limit to the type of events. "It's a very varied game with various forms of activity," Shanks said.

A few years back, the club acquired its own property, 173 acres in Metchosin in the vicinity of Mount Blinkhorn where it stages many of its trials and events.

Shanks says motorcycling appeals to people of all walks of life. Among the 110 to 120 VMC members you can take your pick from laborers, policemen, lawyers, dentists and doctors.

Is the sport waning?

"No," says Shanks, "it's even more popular than it was before. There are more machines around and they're making them more sophisticated."

There's another dividend.

New Apartments Stalled

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The soaring vacancy rate is forcing local builders to shelve plans for new apartment construction for at least one year, Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association manager Clayton Warren said today.

Of 17,099 apartment units in the Victoria area, 530 were empty in April for a vacancy rate of 3.1 per cent. The percentage figure had been announced earlier.

However, today's report elaborates on the earlier announcement and shows an additional 1,397 Victoria units were not included in the survey because they are less than six months old.

The national survey excludes these units because CMHC believes it takes up to six months for new units to be fully absorbed.

The new Victoria units are being taken up very slowly. A survey by the Victoria branch of CMHC shows 375 of these 1,397 new units are empty for a vacancy rate of 26.8 per cent in new apartment suites.

In addition to these units, an additional 1,320 apartment suites are under construction and will be finished by the time of the next survey in October.

Warren said there is no reason to hope that the demand is high enough to fill all the suites and the vacancy rate will grow, possibly to 10 or even 12 per cent by spring.

After that, said Warren, the vacancy rate will begin to taper off because of the pause in construction.

The CMHC survey shows the highest vacancy rate is in Esquimalt. Here the rate is already at 5 per cent. Second is Saanich at 4 per cent.

In Victoria, the highest vacancy rate is in James Bay but at 2.4 per cent it is below the district average of 3.1 per cent.

The rate was only 1.1 per cent in the Fort Street area and less than one per cent (0.6) in the Cook Street area.

The vacancy rate in Oak Bay was 1.1 per cent, unusually high for the area.

The Sidney rate was 1.7 per cent and there were no measurable vacancies in the outlying districts.

The survey does not look at buildings with less than six rental units, no duplexes, row housing, mobile homes and condominiums are excluded. The irony of the condominium exclusion is there could be 10 or 15 units for rent in a large condominium building but this is considered to be less than six (and therefore excluded from the rental survey) because each unit is individually owned.

Warren said the vacancy rate is really much higher than shown in the survey because of the condominiums and new apartments.

A survey conducted in May by the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association showed the vacancy rate in Esquimalt is over 13 per cent (CMHC shows 5 per cent) while in Victoria it is 5.8 per cent. (CMHC does not have a Victoria figure but it shows subtotals of James Bay 2.4, Fort Street 1.1 and Cook Street 0.6 per cent.)

Warren said the landlords' survey of vacancy rates was close to the CMHC total for Saanich. They showed about 3 per cent, compared with 4 per cent in the CMHC survey.

Warren said the association believes there is no reason to continue rent controls in light of the new figures. He repeated an earlier statement from the association that rent controls "no longer serve a useful function in light of market conditions."

He said rents are levelling off and in some cases decreasing because of the high vacancy rate.

The one area where there might be a shortage is in low-rent units. Of 1,331 units constructed for low-income families, senior citizens and other groups on limited incomes, only three were unoccupied for a vacancy rate of virtually nil. Another 410 of these units are under construction and the demand continues to be high.

TOWN TALK

Devotees of osculatory rhythm will be gratified to learn that there will be a presentation of this form of entertainment at the Memorial Arena on July 25.

Which is a way of saying hey, kids, Kiss is coming.

City recreation manager Jack Morgan confirms that the hard rock group is definitely booked for the arena on that date, bringing with them 11 trailerloads of equipment including their own stage.

Because of all that gear Morgan says capacity has been cut by 2,200 to a maximum of 5,000, which means the show will probably be the most expensive ever to be staged in Victoria.

The mighty Bate fastball team will meet the Victoria police in an exhibition match Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park.

But the world champions Bate players are going to have to modify their game somewhat. They won't for instance, be able to steal any bases . . . not with the police looking on.

This game will be strictly slow pitch and under those rules players can't bunt or steal, and once a team gets five runs in an inning it must give the other team a whack.

Police are reportedly negotiating to be allowed to send fielders outside the fence line. Fine idea: They can direct traffic between catches.

The game gets under way at 6:30 p.m. and admission will be a donation with all proceeds going to the B.C. Heart Fund.

JANITOR FIRM DRAWS BEEFS

Victoria's legal committee Thursday recommended that the city seek an injunction to shut down a janitorial business operating illegally from a duplex premises at 435 Springfield Road.

The action arises out of a petition of complaint signed by 11 neighbors.

Officials who investigated said in a report to aldermen that the owner of the janitorial business, Chuck Mowbray, 4295 Cedar Hill Road, was contravening the zoning bylaw and also operating without a trades licence from the city.

Nearby residents claimed the round-the-clock service resulted in the loading and unloading vehicles at all hours of the day and night, with attendant noise and parking problems.

The committee also authorized city solicitor Jakob de Villiers to seek an injunction to close down a restaurant operating illegally at 327 Belleville Street, although de Villiers said the owner, H. B. Plasterer, has indicated the restaurant would be closed down and the staff dismissed.

SAANICH police today released this artist's sketch of the suspect wanted in connection with Tuesday's $1,905 robbery of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Shelbourne Plaza. Anyone recognizing the man is asked to contact Saanich detectives at 388-4321.

Short Outfall Eyed As Political Solution

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Will the pollution control branch feel political pressure when it weighs the merits of a controversial sewage proposal at McMicking Point?

The provincial agency, which sets standards in such matters as sewage disposal, has established a policy of approving long ocean outfalls, such as the existing one at Macaulay Point and the one to be built at Clover Point.

But it is going to be asked to approve a short outfall extension at McMicking Point, at least on an interim basis, as a way around a hot political controversy.

Mayors Mike Young of Victoria, Ed Lum of Saanich and Brian Smith of Oak Bay, the partner municipalities in the project, met with Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis and Environment Minister Jim Nielsen on the subject earlier this week.

Young said today the mayors had been instructed by the regional board earlier to promote their case with the ministers and they wouldn't be doing their duty to have acted otherwise.

But the fact remains that approval of the McMicking short outfall plan lies with the PCB and is not supposed to be a political decision.

Appeals on any board decision could eventually make it an issue for the cabinet to decide.

The original land to eliminate shoreline dumping of raw sewage at McMicking and Clover Points was to have it all go out a 6,400-foot outfall off Clover Point.

But construction of a big sewage pumping station at Shoal Bay, part of that plan, was so vigorously opposed by neighbors and Oak Bay council it led to the idea of trying a short outfall into Enterprise Channel off McMicking Point. The hope is that strong tidal flows between McMicking and Trial Island will effectively disperse the sewage. But the extention of 500 feet or so is just a fraction of the long outfalls the PCB has approved along the same shoreline.

Young said the compromise plan requires amending the regional board's letters patent and that was another reason for meeting with the cabinet ministers and asking their co-operation.

MS Treatment Rallies

Proponents of the megavitamin treatment of multiple sclerosis will take their case to the provincial government next with mass rallies planned in front of the Legislature on Monday and Tuesday.

Dale Humpherys, spokesman for the B.C. Committee for Orthomolecular Medicine, said the group will petition the government to pay for the vitamin therapy program under the Pharmacare Plan.

The government ruled on April 1 that all over-the-counter drugs, including vitamins, would no longer be paid under the plan.

Humpherys said when the plan was announced that Premier Bennett promised it would protect persons against catastrophic drug expenses and was specifically aimed at the chronically ill.

But, Humpherys said, MS victims taking the megavitamin therapy pay up to $114 a month for the controversial treatment.

He complained that Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm is using a difference of opinion within the medical profession on vitamin treatment as an excuse to deny MS victims "the only treatment available to them."

FIRE RISK UP, ACCESS CLOSED

Open fire permits have been cancelled until further notice in the Colwood-Sooke fire district while access on two main roads in the Sooke Hills will be closed this weekend.

The Goldstream ranger station reports the fire rating as high with a risk of it rising to extreme if the hot, dry weather continues.

Gates on the Butler main road and the Bear Creek-Jordon River diversion are padlocked and fire permits will not be reinstated until there is significant rainfall.

Nova to Explore Silence Barrier

Helen Keller could neither see nor hear, but she found deafness to be the greater handicap. Nova looks into the world of one million Americans who lack the ability to hear human speech in "Across the Silence Barrier" on Wednesday, June 22 at 8:00 p.m. (rebroadcast Saturday, June 25 at 5:00 p.m.).

What are the complications of deafness? "I can't really understand the world he lives in," says the mother of a deaf child. The problems are manifest far beyond the immediate malfunction of the ear. Without hearing, how can we learn words; without words, how can we learn to read? Vocabulary levels for nineteen-year-olds in the schools and programs for the deaf throughout the country average below third grade level. Reading comprehension level averages around the fourth grade, fourth month. It is tragic when a deaf child, lacing the language to communicate, is misdiagnosed and confined to a mental institution. Yet the IQ of deaf people is the same as for the rest of us.

There are some extraordinary — but far from sufficient — breakthroughs by science and medicine toward understanding deafness. Some techniques solve mechanical problems in conducting sound, but nerve deafness, the most prominent form, remains a mystery.

Education for the deaf is itself an issue. Lip reading, with emphasis on speech skills, commits the deaf to strained participation with those who hear. The total communication approach, using both lip reading and sign language, provides two paths of expression, but only one leads to the hearing world. A recent recognition of the deaf population is the use of sign language inserts and captioned-for-the-deaf programs on television, frequently offered on Nine.

"Across the Silence Barrier" is a production of WGBH/-Boston and is made possible by grants from Exxon Corporation, the National Science Foundation, Public Television Stations, the Ford Foundation, and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Its presentation on KCTS/9 is paid for by Members of Nine.

Joyce Trisler dancers in "Soaring"

Program Features Dance Pioneers

The development of modern dance from the turn of the century through the early 1930's will be explored in an historical panorama, as Great Performances presents "Trailblazers of Modern Dance," Wednesday, June 22 at 9 p.m. on Public TV 9.

Narrated by Michael Tolan, the special will juxtapose photographs, drawings and rarely-seen documentary footage of the founders of modern dance. With Rosemary Harris as the voice of Isadora Duncan, Duncan's thoughts about the dance are spoken as her history unfolds. (Rebroadcast Sunday, June 26 at 2 p.m.)

Several selections from the early dance masters have been prepared especially for this program by contemporary performers. Dramatic ballerina Lynn Seymour dances "five Brahms Waltzes in the Manner of Isadora Duncan," an evocation of Isadora's spirit, choreographed and introduced by Sir Frederick Ashton. Annabelle Gamson performs two interpreted reconstructions of Duncan's "Scriabin Etudes," inspired by the Russian Revolution. Contemporary reconstructions of Ruth St. Denis and Doris Humphrey's "Soaring" and Ted Shawn's "Polonaise" will also be presented.

BOWLERS IN TOP GAMES

CBS Sports will broadcast live, the finals of the Professional Bowlers Association National Championship Tournament from Seattle, Washington, Sunday, June 19 at 1 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

This competition, with a total of $95,000 in prizes, is the richest in the 18-year history of the tournament.

Held at the Leilani Lanes in Seattle, the tournament is expected to draw as many as 190 entrants from among the PBA membership, and after preliminary rounds, which begin on June 13 and include 56 games, six bowlers will advance to the televised finals on June 19.

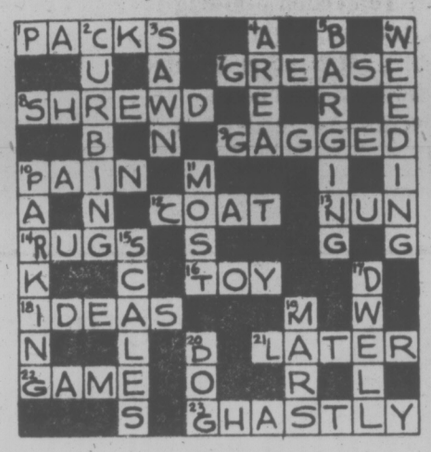
PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES DOWN:

2. CURBING not cursing. The clue hints that the man is doing something in the way of a partial correction (CURBING), albeit not a positive cure. "Cursing" doesn't really indicate any such effort.
4. AREA not aria. The idea of an AREA being attractive because of its "interest" (e.g., to tourists) is quite apt. On the other hand, an aria is attractive because of its charm, emotional appeal, etc.
5. BARGING not banging. There is an implication of abruptly entering the home in BARGING. "Banging into" hints at a noisy, forceful entry which is less apt.
6. WEEDING not wedding. The clue implies that repeated postponements may be from choice (just as they "may well not" be so). However, engaged couples are supposed to be keen to get married.
10. PARKING not parting. Participating in the farewells of parting is less of a "routine" than PARKING the car.
11. MOST not post. The clue is true of MOST office business, the post office being in no way especially apt.

CLUES ACROSS:

1. PACKS not sacks. PACKS, yes; but there is no call for such goods to be in sacks. Also, the clue's word "large" has more point for PACKS.
7. GREASE not crease. As suggested, GREASE would need to be removed. On the other hand, creases might drop out of their own accord (crease, also, is a little unnatural in the singular).
8. SHREWD not shrews. SHREWD women can look after themselves in the manner implied. The clue's emphasis is somewhat midsirected for shrews, who are spiteful or aggressive rather than self-sufficient or competent.
9. GAGGED not nagged. It would not be difficult for husbands to realize fully that they were being nagged. "Consider themselves GAGGED" is a figure of speech and not a reality at all.
10. PAIN not pail. A PAIN may well be nature's warning to go carefully. There seems no reason why a man carrying a pail (empty) shouldn't run if he wants to.
12. COAT not boat. Whatever you wish to paint (boat or not), it's a question of at least one COAT.
14. RUGS not rags. It is natural to interpret the clue in terms of jobs (cleaning RUGS) rather than minor pieces of equipment (cleaning-rags).
16. TOY not top. Playing with a top is assocated particularly with boys, not both boys and girls. Besides, TOY is a generalization which covers a top.
18. IDEAS not ideal. Specifying "Utopian" has more point for IDEAS. An ideal, in any case, is hardly a cynic's cup of tea.
22. GAME not gale. A "tough" GAME, particularly, yes; but, to a yachtsman, a gale is tough anyway. Also, a man fighing willy-nilly for survival in a gale, is not exactly "rising to a challenge."
23. GHASTLY not ghostly. The clue calls for an asnwer in the sense of "fightening," in which connection GHASTLY is stronger than ghostly.

John Hearn's Collectibles

Every now and then I feel the need to pause and take stock. As I said last week, I do a great deal of reading about antiques and collectibles — and a great deal of reading of the letters I receive from my own readers. Most of the time they are poles apart and, if my readers' letters are any indicator, I wonder who on earth the 'antiques and collectibles' magazines are catering to.

I know I must often disappoint many of my correspondents for whom I have no answer. Typically, they will give me a great deal of information about the size, colour, age and trademark of an antique and then ask me if I can tell them anything about it. In fact, what they have told me is all there is to be known. The majority of letters ask me to estimate the value of some object but this is something which can only be arrived at in negotiation between a buyer and a seller. As much as I enjoy readers' letters I must adivse you that I cannot in future offer any more such estimates which really mean nothing at all.

Above all, my letters are from non-collectors who are curious about some delightful or intriguing object which has been in the family for a long time; almost nothing I hear from this source would suggest that great wonderful world of collectors which I read about in the trade magazines.

'Antiques and Art' an excellent West Coast publication is a case in point. In one recent article a Market and Research agency advising on 'Investing in antiques' talks about 'the average 1,700 to 2,000 square foot home with ceiling 8½ feet high' and goes on to adivse how people who have collected 10 pieces of 17th century English oak furniture worth $6,500 might, by more judicious selection get $10,000 for them.

I see articles on Sevres pottery (see Sevres clock, circa 1840—$10,000). Another article is about Ming vases (1368-1644). Another article tells about Maynard's Auctioneers' Spring sale in Vancouver where Emily Carrs fetched $5,000 to $22,000 and an unusual Chinese bed went for 'an affordable' $1,000. I like writing about simple things which ordinary people can afford but what I am confronted with is a literature which is of purely academic interest to anyone with an income of less than $20,000 a year — not high by today's standards but definitely 'carriage trade'.

I would really love to hear from you as to whether or not I should write occasionally about 17th century French escritoirs, or how to collect pre-1900 steam driven automobiles or the jewelry of the Tsars — or do you want me to stay with my usual folksy down-to-earth stuff for which there is so little information available.

Next week I want to tell you why such information is so hard to come by.

VIEWERS HAVE ACCESS

A program "which provides a voice for British Columbia people who want to communicate the purpose of their veiwpoints throughout the province," is how BCTV's award winning public affairs program, "Access", could be described.

"Access" will be entering its third broadcast season this September, and its producer, Margit Nance, will again be considering requests from British columbia residents who wish to suggest topics for "Access" segments.

During the past season, "Access" presented the story of a Kamloops man whose small business failure forced him into bankruptcy.

Another program showed a woman, — the victim of a house fire, — who was campaigning to have a new clinic for burns established at her hospital.

The issues were presented on behalf of a native Indian community who were opposing the istruction of a pipeline in their area. These three stories all were based on requests that "Access" received from viewers.

Individuals who wish to suggest possible topics for "Access" during the coming season are encouraged to write to: Margit Nance, c/o "Access", British Columbia Television, P.O. Box 4700, Vancouver, B.C. V6B 4A3.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE

This Week's Prize is $50.00
Answer to last week's puzzle on Page 2

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week!

THIS CROSSWORD is not a game of chance or a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a word list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! So start and play today!

PLEASE NOTE: EACH ENTRY MUST BE IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully for you must think them out and give every word its true meaning.

2. Check the word list: it has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.

3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.

4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.

5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.

6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.

7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.

8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.

9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.

TV MAILBAG

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. I know Ellen Corby, who plays the grandmother on "The Waltons," suffered a stroke recently. Will she every return to the series? — L.C., Camden, N.J.

A. As previously mentioned in this column, Ellen Corby suffered a stroke and was forced to temporarily leave "The Waltons" last year after only half the episodes had been filmed. Not one to be kept down, Miss Corby is well and is acting again. She will be reintroduced to "The Waltons" this coming season in a special two-hour episode, "Grandma Returns." The program is tentatively listed as the season opener for the series.

Q. Would you please tell me what happened to Gary Moore? — P. F., Victoria, B.C.

A. Nothing has happened to Gary Moore so far as I know. He's the host of the television daytime game show "To Tell the Truth," which is syndicated and may not appear on your local stations.

Q. I would like to know a little bit about Mark Shera, who played on "S.W.A.T." and is now on Barnaby Jones. I also would like to know where to write him. — K.R., Washington, PA.

A. Mark Shera was born in Bayonne, N.J., where he took acting lessons as a youngster and attended high school. He pursued acting at Boston University, appearing in several student productions. Shera's professional career has been a success story from its inception.

In his first professional audition, he won the role of a disciple in "Godspell," playing that part in Boston for nine months, then assuming the central role for 10 months on the road and six more months in New York.

In "Godspell," Shera came to the attention of producers, who cast him in the CBS Television pilot "Nicky's World." His performance earned him a guest star role in "Kojak," followed by a guest appearance in "Gunsmoke" and ultimately, his regular role of the wisecracking Dominic Luca on the "S.W.A.T." series.

Shera is single, 5 feet, 9½ inches tall, weighs 155 pounds and has brown hair and eyes.

The address for Shera is QM Productions, 1041 N. Formosa, Hollywood, CA 90046.

Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies. Inquiries should be sent to Thom Mead, TV Mailbag, in care of Prevue, Box 300, Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Today's Highlights

U.S. Open, on 2 and 6 at 1 p.m. U.S. national championship, the 77th Open, which is the first golf event to have TV coverage of the entire final round.

Great Performances — Opera, on 9 at 2 p.m. Pagliacci, a 1968 film version of Ruggiero Leoncavallo's classic opera, sung in Italian and staged at La Scala in Milan.

National Geographic — Documentary — on 7 at 5 p.m. Journey Into High Arctic, an account of a wildlife expedition into Canadian North, headed by conservationist Al Oeming.

Say Brother Pays Tribute to Webster Lewis — Music, on 9 at 8 p.m. Special: saluting composer Webster Lewis, whose repertoire spans spiritual, jazz and rock.

Probe, on 11 at 8 p.m. The impact of Frost-Nixon interviews is discussed by the same panel which appeared on probe while the interviews were in progress.

Who's Who, on 7 at 10 p.m. Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal talks about his 30-year hunt for Second World War criminals around the world. Wiesenthal, who is still active, has tracked down some 1,100 Nazis, including the infamous Adolf Eichmann.

This Land, on 2 and 6 at 10:30 p.m. Angus McKinnon, an elderly cowboy, reminisces about the Canadian west at the turn of the century. McKinnon describes the early cattle drives (to be seen on film), and the whiskey traders who came through Alberta foothills. Last show of the series.

Spotlight on Movies

Daddy Long Legs (xxx), on 5 at 11:30 a.m. An Entertaining musical starring Fred Astaire as a middle-aged millionaire who anonymously supports a French girl through school. Astaire has a great dancing partner in Leslie Caron. (1955).

The Skull (xx), on 11 at noon. English-made thriller with the skull of the notoroius Marquis de Sade driving a professor to murderous rage. Peter Chusing. (1965).

Ma and Pa Kettle at Waikiki, on 11 at 1:30 p.m. Another Kettle comedy. In this one the family takes over a pineapple factory. Marjorie Main, Percy Kilbride and Lori Nelson. (1955).

The Horizontal Lieutenant (xx), on 5 at 3 p.m. Comedy about the misadventures of an American officer in love and war. Jack Carter and Paula Prentiss. (1962).

Sunset Boulevard (xxxx), on 11 at 3 p.m. One of the great films of all time about Hollywood, starring Gloria Swanson, William Holden, Nancy Olson and Erich von Stroheim. The powerful story is about a down-and-out screenwriter who becomes the gigolo for a fading movie queen of the silent days anxious to make a comback. Fine direction by Bill Wilder. The movie picked up four Oscars. (1950).

The Magnificent Magical Magnet of Santa Mesa, on 5 at 8 p.m. Comedy about a group of people who try to steal a young inventor's rights to an invention which could solve the world's energy crisis. Made of television in 1977.

I Never Sang for My Father (xxx), on 4 at 9 p.m. A moving drama with Gene Hackman as a 40-year-old still trying to play son to Melvyn Douglas as the father. The story is based on Robert Anderson's stage play about an 80-year-old father, former mayor of Long Island suburb, who is obsessed with concepts of strength and pride. (1970).

Mrs. Parkington (xx), on 12 at 11 p.m. A fictitious story of the lives of a multi-millionaire and a poor girl he weds. Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Edward Arnold and Peter Lawford. Occasionally corny. (1944).

The Left Hand of God. (xx), on 5 at 1:30 p.m. Slow-moving adventure yarn with Humphrey Bogart as an American who gets caught up in the private wars of a renegade Chinese warlord, played by Lee J. Cobb. (1955).

House of 1,000 Dolls (x), on 7 at 11:30 p.m. British-made crime drama with Vincent Price as head of a white-slave ring. (1967).

The Night My Number Came Up (xxxx), on 2 at 11:45 p.m. A well acted British drama about an air force officer's troubled dreams and their effect on his work. The movie is based on an interesting J. B. Priesley story. Michael Redgrave and Alexander Knox. (1956).

Captains of the Clouds (xxx), on 4 at 11:45 p.m. Drama starring James Cagney and Dennis Morgan. There are some good moments in this fairly exciting melodramatic salute to the RCAF. Cagney may be a bum for the first few reels, but he literally comes through with flying colors at the end. (1942).

Chisum, on 6 at 11:50 p.m. For details see Satutday's listing on Channel 8 at 12:10 a.m.

The Happy Ending (xx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Initially an intriguing view of a modern marriage, as Jean Simmons walks out on her husband and family trying to "find herself". John Forsythe and Lloyd Bridges. (1969).

Man on a Spying Trapeze (x x x), on 13 at 12:30 a.m. Italian-made adventure about two CIA agents who track an organization traitor in Beirut. Wayde Perston. (1966).

White Heat (xxxx), on 7 at 1:10 a.m. A brutal gangster melodrama starring James Cagney, Virginia Mayo and Edmond O-Brien. This is a realistic study of a hood. Not for the squeamish. (1949).

Spotlight on Movies

Jivaro (xx), on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Adventure movie about head-hunting Jivaro Indians. Fernando Lamas and Rhonda Fleming. (1954)

Lucky Texan, on 11 at 1 p.m. Western starring John Wayne and Barbara Sheldon. (1933)

Somebody Loves Me (xx), on 5 at 3 p.m. Biographical movie of song-spinners Blossom Seeley and Nenny Fields — their ups and downs in show business. Routine musical with Betty Hutton and Ralph Meeker. (1952)

The Brain, on 4 at 8 p.m. Comedy with David Niven playing the "Brain" behind a French train robbery which doesn't quite work out. (1969)

West Side Story (xxxx), on 7 at 8 p.m. The celebrated Broadway musical masterpiece about rival white and Puerto Rican gangs in a New York ghetto becomes a spectacular movie musical which earned 10 Academy Awards in 1961. Excellent New York City location photography and fine score by Leonard Bernstein and Stephen Sondheim, Natalie Wood, Rita Moreno, Richard Beymer, George Chakiris and Russ Tamblyn.

The Playboy of the Western World (xxxx), on 12 at 9 p.m. A lyrical film based on the classic Irish play by J. M. Synge. The plot about a young stranger who becomes the idol of a small village is less important than the soaring, poetic language of the play, and the performances of Siobhan McKenna and Gary Raymond, who plays the playboy. (1962)

Will Penny (xxx), on 13 at 9 p.m. A memorable western with action growing out of character development, starring Charlton Heston, Joan Hackett and Donald Pleasence. Heston plays a saddle-worn cowboy who tries to stay uninvolved despite interfering circumstances. Excellent photography. (1968)

Hands Off the Ripper (xx), on 4 at 9:30 p.m. English-made thriller which details the homicidal rampage of Jack the Ripper's daughter. Eric Porter and Angharad Rees. (1971).

Retreat Hell! (xx), on 13 at 11 p.m. War drama about the exploits of an American battalion in Korea. Frank Lovejoy and Richard Carlson. (1952).

Werewolf of London (xx), on 7 at 11:30 p.m. Thriller about a doctor who turns into a killing creature. Henry Hull and Valerie Hobson. (1935)

The Couple Takes a Wife (xx), on 12 at 11:30 p.m. Comedy made for television about a romantic triangle, involving a married couple and their servant. Robert Goulet, Myrna Loy and Bill Bixby. (1972)

Imitation of Life (xx), on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Tear-jerker starring Lana Turner, Sandra Dee, John Gavin, Susan Kohner and Juanita Moore. The story is about two widowed mothers, one white, the other black, and their daughters. (1959)

F. Scott Fitzgerald and The Last of the Belles (xxx), on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Richard Chamberlain plays the novelist, working on a short story about his romance with Zelda. Blythe Danner, Susan Sarandon and Ernest Thompson. Made for television in 1974.

Son of Sinbad (x), on 13 at 12:30 a.m. Adventure movie with Dale Robertson, Sally Forrest and Vincent Price. (1955)

After Midnight With Boston Blackie (x), on 2 at 12:45 a.m. Crime drama about a search for missing diamonds. Chester Morris and Ann Savage. (1943)

The Raven (xxx), on 7 at 1 p.m. Momentous teaming of horror greats with Bela Lugosi as a doctor with Poe-obsession, and Boris Karloff as a victim of his wicked schemes. Others in the cast are Irene Ware, Lester Matthews and Samuel S. Hinds. (1935)

LOVERS EMBRACE—Louise Lambert and Michel Cote embrace during filming of a CBC-produced special about two lovers in a French settlement in Quebec in the 1740s. The authentic looking house in the background is actually a plaster and plywood construction, not stone. The hour-long special is one of seven that will be aired next season to mark the centennial of Imperial Oil Ltd.

PLAN Nº. 76-1552
AREA : 1552 sq. ft.
WIDTH : 72 ft.

Spanish Tradition, Convenience

Reflecting strong Spanish influences, the exterior of this home has brick veneer, textured stucco and authentic tile roofing. If desired, the tile could be replaced by asphalt roofing, providing it's properly colour co-ordinated. The arches, at windows, entry, chimney and garage complete the theme of a Canadian Hacienda.

This particular plan could be built with or without the two-car garage, depending on your lot size and budget. Detaching the garage entirely is another possibility.

There is a full unfinished basement at two levels, which could be used extensively for future expansion. Roughed-in plumbing and a second fireplace make it possible to create a recreation centre, extra bedrooms and a utility.

The living and dining rooms on the lower level form a large L and are centred around a cosy wood-burning fireplace. An easy change to the fireplace design could result in an opening to both living room and kitchen. Exposed brick in the kitchen, dining room with built-in barbecue add to the Spanish character of this design.

Modern and efficient, the informal kitchen is separated from the dining room by cabinet, including an eating bar if preferred.

On the upper level, the three-piece bath can be used as a guest-powder room and serves the smaller bedrooms. The master bedroom has a two-piece en suite and a very large walk-in wardrobe.

Plans for design No. 76-1552 may be obtained at a cost of $60 for the first set and $9 for each additional set, plus $3.50 for postage and handling. B.C. residents please include 7 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs Series No. 33 featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas plus more than 300 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.25 ($1.75 plus 50 cents postage and handling.) To order these items please send cheque or money order payable to Home of the Week. Address your orders to Home of thqqe Week, c/o The Victoria Press Ltd, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 1R2.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Shot in Head Ends Actor's Double Life

By Steven Scheuer

NEW YORK — Steve Collura was leading a double life for five years. At various times during the past five years, he appeared on the soap opera, "The Doctors" (NBC), played parts in films, and appeared in plays while doubling as an undercover agent for the New York City Police Department's Special Investigating Unit. Steve's cool, street-smart New York background made him a perfect choice for the assignment which came about when a New York police detective spotted him in an Off Broadway play and approached him with the proposition for the undercover job. In one year, Steve made no less than 126 felony narcotic busts. His police exploits finally came to a dramatic end when he was shot in the head during a stakeout for a huge drug bust. Steve survived and is back to acting as his only profession these days. Want to know more? His amazing adventures appear in the new book, "Collura: Actor With a Gun," by Bill Davidson, which is coming out early next month.

It must be true love for Leslie Brooks on "The Young and the Restless" (CBS) — otherwise, how could she put up with her whining husband, Brad Eliot?

Leslie has shown more patience than Job himself in the past six months, dealing with Brad's behavior. After watching her husband slink away last fall, unable to tell Leslie he's going blind, pregnant Leslie renewed her relationship with him. You could almost guess old Brad would foul things up. Although he's very polite and expresses hope about being able to handle his blindness, he's striking out at all turns. When Leslie returned from a Bermuda concert, Brad took her dining and dancing. Then, on the way out, he accidentally struck Leslie in the stomach with a suitcase.

As a result, Leslie lost her baby but she never revealed the reason to Brad. In the ensuing weeks, Brad Eliot can be counted on to learn the truth, and feel sorry for himself all over again. The old "I'm not good enough for you" line will be trotted out time and time again.

By now, some viewers are saying "That's right buddy, you can't do anything, so why not get lost." But Brad will hang around moping, Leslie will remain kind and considerate, and fans can groan.

Victoria Mallory, who plays Leslie, accepts the plotting like the trouper she is. She says Leslie can probably remain noble till doomsday. On the other side of the coin, Victoria is happy when her character is allowed to sing and play the piano on the show, which is all the actress really wants. Victoria's background has been mostly on the musical stage (having played in a revival of "West Side Story" and "A Little Night Music" in New York City). But since that world is seldom self-sustaining, the lovely actress hunts for a character like Leslie to play and then holds on for dear life.

PLOT PORTENTS

The David Mallory — Jill Foster romance sputters along on "The Young and the Restless," remaining a solid thing having little imprint upon Jill's feelings. The Vanessa-Lorie feud continues with the mother-in-law's blind hatred taking over.

With her new hobby, photography, Brooke becomes a real threat on "Days of Our Lives" (NBC). New Plot turns bode trouble for the Anderson Manufacturing Company, underbid by competitors lately, and for the love affair between Mary and Neil. Mike has come to his senses over Trish, hopefully in the nick of time . . . and Linda begins to visualize Bob as a future husband.

The Stars of Yesterday

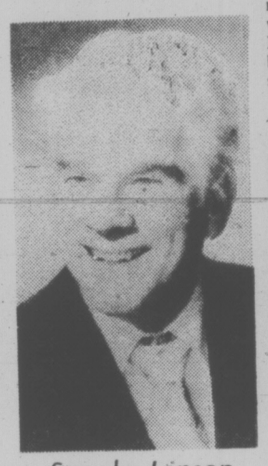
Where Are They Today?

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — In the relatively innocent 1950s, when the country was still preening itself over the successful conclusion of World War II (if not the Korean War), when boys were wearing heavily pomaded, jelly-roll hairstyles, and girls, toreador pants, stars of "Your Hit Parade" were urging "Dance With Me Henry."

And none sang more urgently than Snooky Lanson, personable male vocalist flanked on the show by girl singers Dorothy Collins and Eileen Wilson.

"Your Hit Parade," like "Gunsmoke" and "Dragnet," had been a success on radio before it moved to NBC television in 1950.



Snooky Lanson

On radio it had offered straight music, of course, but as a show to be seen as well as heard it featured mimicry and dramatization along with each song so that Lanson and the ladies had to prove themselves not just as vocalists but as performing personalities.

Happily for Lanson he had the background to meet his need, because he'd been standing up in front of audiences as a band singer since he'd been in his teens.

And this background he garnered selling songs as vocalist with Francis Craig and Ray Noble remains an asset because to this good day he's selling.

Now, though, he's merchandising billboards, not music, through an outdoor advertising company in Nashville, Tenn.

Snooky calls his reasons for settling in Nashville "very simple."

He didn't gravitate to Music City, U.S.A., to get on the Grand Ol' Opry or to get songs he'd written published.

He settled in Nashville, he explains, because he'd worked there pre-"Hit Parade" and because he's married to a Nashville girl whom he met at a dance at Dunbar Cave, a pleasure spot which in the 1930s and '40s was middle Tennessee's island version of Catalina Island.

It was a place where young folk congregated to dance, picnic and, as was the case with Snooky, fall in love.

A Memphis boy, Lanson began entertaining as a kid in his home town.

Moving up to what passed for the very big time in Nashville, he joined the Craig band.

Then in 1940 he became Noble's vocalist.

Along the way, he starred in "Sunday Down South," a radio show aired by WSM in Nashville, and even made a few film appearances.

But Snooky Lanson didn't become a name on the lips of the nation until he was signed to star in the televised version of "Your Hit Parade" in 1950.

Television's "Your Hit Parade" made its debut 27 years ago with Lanson, Collins and Wilson backed by the Lucky Strike Hit Parade chorus which closed each show warbling, "So long for awhile . . . that's all the songs for awhile . . ."

"I went on the 'Hit Parade' in 1950 and stayed eight years," Lanson remembers. "Then they gave us four months' notice. They said that 'Your Hit Parade' was as American as apple pie and that anyone could do it.

"As it turned out, they were wrong.

"When the format was completely changed, the public wouldn't accept the show."

Nor did the public accept an updated "Hit Parade" which flopped as a summer replacement show a couple of years ago.

"But I don't believe the 'Hit Parade' could have gone on with the music we've had lately," Lanson continues. "Too much of it's trash.

"Now groups are more popular than the music.

"In the old days, different singers could sing the same arrangement and the listeners would be pleased because the song was what they wanted to hear."

Though he lives in Nashville, he's never tried to get into the country field because he doesn't think he belongs there. However, he hasn't quit performing entirely.

For the last three years he's presided over a local radio show featuring "All Time Greats," and he goes out and does tea dances at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Nashville.

"They could all sing if they wanted to," their father boasts. "But they don't."

Making Films 'Hard Work'

By DAVID STERRIT

NEW YORK, New York — Before he started work on his latest comedy, Annie Hall, Woody Allen was asked why he makes movies.

"Every young person in America wants to direct films," he explained, "and I can. People actually give me money to create motion pictures! So I guess I'd better do it, or I might regret it some day . . ."

Woody is not the most eager cineaste in Hollywood. In fact, he isn't even in Hollywood — he lives in New York, has returned to making his films here, and spends a good part of his new film Annie Hall venting hilarious spleen at southern California. He finds filmmaking hard work, works hard at it, and generally behaves like a sensible fellow.

In short, he's a far cry from the lovable loser he plays onscreen. He worries about being "too cerebral" in his daily life. He acknowledges that the literacy and seriousness of his films may keep him from ever gathering a truly huge following. And he dreams of making more sober and introspective projects in the future.

If you didn't already know it, this straight-talking comedian is a major movie artist with a bright and challenging future.

Interestingly, the two most important makers of American comic films — Allen and the more racous Mel Brooks — share a freewheeling interest (despite their many differences) in stretching the limits of screen comedy.

Brooks breaks all the rules and shoots a farce in black-and-white (Young Frankenstein), then gets even bolder and fashions a film with no dialogue (Silent Movie). Allen's films include a zany documentary (Take the Money and Run), a scrambled Japanese adventure with bizarre English dubbing (What's Up, Tiger Lily?), and now Annie Hall, a fascinating comic exploration involving every cinematic device from subtitles to split screens.

This visual adventurousness is one of Allen's pet preoccupations.

Allen's current ambition is to make increasingly "serious" films. "I've done a certain amount of comedy that was strictly for laughs," says the former nightclub comic and writer of sardonic essays for the New Yorker magazine and other publications. "It was thin, amusing if you liked it, and that's all. In order to grow, I knew I'd have to deepen the work — to use comedy in the service of ideas, or more genuine satire, or emotional exploration. It's an attempt to develop."

That's why Woody feels he's going to be "more and more of a challenge" to his fans.

According to Woody's wisdom, "If you do a comedy and get serious now and then, it's creepy." So his "serious comedy" would be largely drama. "It would have to be about real people — essentially a serious story with comedy in it, with humor based on situation and observation, confronting a subject of some profundity . . ."

Ultimately Allen would like to fashion a true tragedy, in the Eugene O'Neill vein. "I'd like to try that psychological, personal style," he says, "as opposed to a social drama, a Dog Day Afternoon, or a One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

He admits it might take the public some time to get used to this idea, and knows for sure that he would never appear in such a picture.

Allen agrees that cinema is a difficult medium to use for personal communication, within a commercial framework, and that "only a few guys" have been able to "elevate it to art." Film, he says, "is the only art form where big money is one of the creative tolls of the artist. A painter or composer can sit home and work, and it doesn't cost him that much. For me, to make even a low-budget film, I have to go and ask for $3 million!"

Allen continues to try despite the difficulties, and to succeed as few other comic filmmakers.

Conversely, "in terms of developing a cinematic style," he has been influenced by such serious artists as Fellini, Truffaut, Bergman, and Godard.

In search of a change of pace the other day, I picked up Louise de Kiriline Lawrence's Another Winter, Another Spring: A Love Remembered. An example of the marginal Canadiana so dear to the hearts of this country's branch plant publishers, Another Winter, Antother Spring is a reminiscence of a Swedish girlhood and a Russian marriage, by a writer who happens to live in Rutherglen, Ontario, about 200 miles north of Toronto.

At first, Mrs. Lawrence's book is unprepossessing. The opening pages describe her ancestral home on the Baltic coast of Sweden and dispense capsule biographies of grandparents, father and mother, Nanny, sister Ebba, etc. Detailed references to friends in high places, plus Mrs. Lawrence's descriptions of such matters as her education and her "coming out", seem snobbish or ostentatious to modern-day, North-Americanized ears. And matters are not helped by the author's skimpy treatment of her parents' marriage. Here, the reader senses, lies a superb story. What kind of writer would dream of wasting splendid material that is made-to-order, true to life and ready to hand?

The answer, it turns out, is: "The kind of writer who has an even better story to tell." By page 50 we are plunged into the midst of the Russian Revolution and the lives of two young lovers who manage to keep their heads above the maelstrom for nearly two full — very full — years.

They are Louise herself and Gleb Nikolayevish Kirilin, son of a Russian general whose family had served in the Tsar's Imperial Guard for generations. Military to the core, Gleb could no more deny his convictions and training than an eagle could refuse to fly.

Mrs. Lawrence prefaces her book with this quotation from Fray Luis de Leon: "The beauty of life is nothing but this, that each should act in conformity with his nature and his business". She ends it with Gleb's own words: "I wish I could see things more clearly. Perhaps I never shall — for I must live in consequence with the fundamentally true traditions of my fathers and my training and principles."

These two quotations neatly sum up the reason for the disappearance of the hero in imaginative literature today (let alone life), for who, in this cynical age, seeks truth or beauty anymore, and who can believe in anyone else who does?

It's a lamentable, though doubtlessly not permanent, situation. In the meantime, while we're waiting for the cycle to move on, it's good to be reminded of a time and place in which people could believe in something enough to die for it, and make unimaginable sacrifices for love.

Louise met Gleb in 1918 at Horserod, a Danish camp for invalided prisoners of war. She was 21 and a Red Cross nurse; he was slightly older, an army lieutenant with a smashed hip and a brother killed in battle. (His mother, informed that both sons had perished, "threw herself out of the window and died on the way to hospital". Two years later a remaining son was killed.)

When the Bolsheviks signed the cease-fire with Germany in 1918, most of the Russian officers in Denmark returned home, Gleb among them. His attachment to Russia, as louise was to learn at her peril, was indissoluble.

Gleb located his father just in time to watch the old man die, found a home for his young sister, and escaped back to Sweden, where he and Louise were married. Three days later his temporary visa expired and he returned to Russia. Louise joined him at Archangel. They were there in 1919, the year the British Labor party came to power and the Allied forces withdrew, leaving White and Red Russians to settle their differences alone.

At Archangel the White Army command escaped on icebreakers and sent their troops to defend the Murmansk Railroad. "They left us to be caught like rats in a trap," Louise tells Gleb angily months later, beside a prison train.

It is one of the very few diatribes in the book. Another Winter, Another Spring was written 30 years after the events it descirbes, and owes its freshness and immediacy to an early draft based on Louise's letters to her mother. It owes its political maturity to the author's determination (not unlike that of Conrad, in Under Western Eyes), to reveal "the essence of the Russian character", free from "the distortions created by political trends and events".

As a personal reminiscence of the Russian Revolution, then, Mrs. Lawrence's book is remarkably balanced and temperate. As a love story easily the equal of Yury Zhivago's, it is superlatively romantic and utterly riveting.

A Camera Celebrates the Physical

By JULIAN REID

In her previous book, The Last of the Nuba, German photographer Leni Riefenstahl paid visual tribute to the Mesakin Quissayr of the Sudan, a joyous and peace-loving people still dwelling in a state of primal harmony with the living world around them. Now, in People of Kau, she turns to a related tribe, the South-East Nuba, who live just 125 miles away from their pastoral cousins. Yet what a world of difference there is between them!

Whereas the Mesakin Quissayr were the true innocents, gentle and unassuming, the South-East Nuba are a sensuous, passionate people who pour their collective energies into an intensely physical cult of the human body.

Riefenstahl, whose classic film-documentary of the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games demonstrated her breathtaking sensitivity to the graceful poetry of bodies in motion, does full justice to their energetic knife-battles and ritual love-dances. Yet the most unforgettable among her images are the incredible face-paintings with which young tribesmen customarily adorn themselves, literally transforming their countenances into "animated Picassos."

People of Kau, with its 160 outsize pages of superb color photographs, is an ecstatic celebration of that passionate physicality which our straitlaced ancestors condescendingly dismissed as "savagery" — and which today we are beginning to realize represents a profound bodywisdom which is a vital component of our innate human heritage. Like the South-East Nuba themselves, this splendid volume transforms sheer animal being into the living essence of pure art.

PEOPLE OF KAU, by Leni Riefenstahl. Collins. $25.00.

'A Little Bit of Everything'

By FRED BARNES

When a secret Palestinian group of terrorists come up with a plan that could bring Israel to its knees, unlimited financial support is quickly available from the more-radical Arab leaders.

The first test of newly-developed explosives from East Germany destroys a prosperous village, leaving no survivors, and Israel is alerted to throw together the cream of its anti-terrorist personnel to fight this new peril.

That pits Major Saul Lahav against a discredited former Egyptian code-named the Falcon. The Falcon was lucky to escape with his life after taking part in an abortive coup against President Anwar Sadat, regarded by radicals as soft on Israel. Now, backed by key figures in Libya and Iraq, he is playing for monstrous stakes: Bring Israel to total disaster, and he will rule a new Palestinian state comprising Jordan and Israel, for the radical Arabs have long since decided that Hussein must go.

For a desperate band of intelligence experts in Israel, starting with a tremendous disadvantage and only an unofficial tip from the CIA to go on, the stakes are the same as they have been since 1949 — the very survival of Israel.

This reviewer has not previously encountered Jack Hoffenberg, a veteran of 10 novels, but it is difficult to discount his publisher's claim that Hoffenberg is America's number one storyteller. This novel, 17 Ben Gurion — the address of the Special Operations Branch in Jerusalem — has a little bit of everything. Basically, it is a novel of suspense and adventure that moves at a leisurely pace, but the underlying tension grips the reader as well as any fast-paced story. In addition there is a tender love story that could stand on its own as a novel.

This type of story, where the action necessarily must shift from side to side, is a difficult one to develop. Hoffenberg handles it superbly, never falling into the trap of making one side the moustachioed villians and the other the white knights.

The Falcon picks as his second target Israel's only oil field. His moves against that objective, and the desperate search by the Israelis to pinpoint a shadowy opponent, provide the heart of an excellent novel.

An Interview With the Expert Who Has Frightening Message About Pensions

Last week I reviewed an extremely important book, Pensions and Survival: The Coming Crisis of Money and Retirement, by Geoffrey N. Calvert, and I told you that after reading the book I had visited the author and would share some of his observations with you.

For those who have not already bought or borrowed the book I should say that its essence expresses the author's concern that pension schemes for federal and most provincial civil servants are not funded and that benefits are being paid out of general revenue, meaning that with no reserves the next generation, and particularly their children, will have to pay crippling taxes to support a growing army of pensioners.

There's a great deal more in the book relating to these and allied matters and when I arrived at the lovely waterfront home in Sidney of the author, an eminent actuary, economist and futurist, I was still puzzling over how to approach this alarming and complex subject.

I need not have worried. Calvert served during the Second World War as statistician to the New Zealand war cabinet (he was born in New Zealand) and after the war he established the statistical division of the World Bank in Washington. He remained with the World Bank for 20 years, then acted as consultant for the U.S. Social Security scheme before coming to Canada to found a firm of pension specialists.

With that background, plus his work in economic and demographic research, future studies, acting as consultant to many huge pension funds in Canada, to say nothing of his interminable travelling to conduct seminars and address large gatherings in Canada and the United States, he is a very practised interviewee. In fact he requires little prompting; he just talks. Like this:

"There are quite a few angles (other than the Canada Pension Plan) that should be of interest to young people, namely the commitment under the federal civil service, the absence of funding in the provincial plans which are building up a beautiful big liability but very little in the way of assets. The federal people are making what you call a book-keeping reserve and that's not a satisfactory funding, but the provincial governments in some cases, seven out of ten, are doing an awful job of providing for the future pension liabilities in the provincial civil service plans.

"They're not setting up any reserves so that the employee contributions are being treated as general-revenue and spent today. That's the employees' own contributions which they think they are accumulating with interest in a fund and to which they are entitled to a refund if they leave the civil service. But there's no fund. And there's no employer contribution going in at all."

"Does this apply in B.C.?" I asked, and was happy to learn that it doesn't, although the provincial plan is "not as sound or strong as a private plan."

CALVERT . . . worried

He said Ontario and B.C. are really the only two provinces which are doing a "decent" job. Every other province, he added, "is in bad shape, some in terrible shape and some in a shocking condition."

Calvert told me he was talking to one provincial government treasurer the other day and the man was complaining of the enormous rise in the cost of the pension roll at this time. "He ain't seen nothing yet, as they say. That's only the beginning," said Calvert. "It's going to increase enormously — and there's no reserve of any kind."

I agreed that this was shocking and suggested that an even more shocking thought was that the average taxpayer, who stands to gain nothing, has to pay for this shambles. "That's right," said Calvert, "the private plans are funded — they have to be — but most of the civil service plans are not."

Recipients of the Canada Pension will be sorry to learn that this influential expert is opposed to any increase in benefits other than the kind of increases now in force because "that could threaten the economy, for it could take away from the funding of the private plans which are making a very important contribution. Canada is hungry for capital . . . we need capital in this country like we need life itself."

Calvert is all for private enterprise in the pension field but he readily admitted there are bad company pension plans. When I drew his attention to one particular plan he said, "You know you can design a pension plan that's no good . . . I'm very distressed to hear about that, I should go and talk to them . . ."

When I went to see Calvert I had expected to find a flinty-eyed human computer spewing out statistics. I was totally unprepared for the kind of man he is — affable, relaxed, modest and compassionate, and as delightfully hospitable to a stranger as was his charming wife.

He stressed his concern for "the prospect of build-up of taxation which lies ahead like a big thunder-cloud over the heads of the next generation which is totally unaware of it." And one cause of this, he explained, is the present lack of funding of government pension plans.

He is worried about inferior private pension plans and even more worried about the large number of people in private industry who have no coverage at all. He is concerned about the plight of widows who are left without adequate protection and is greatly upset about creating "vegetables" out of people who want to continue to work, perhaps on a reducing scale, but who are forced to retire on reaching an arbitrarily set age.

If all this gloom and doom business sounds like the talk of a pessimistic futurist, Calvert will remind you of the recent collapse of the finances of New York City when, because of the very same faults Canada is now committing, pensions to former city employees were stopped — even current pay was suspended — and taxpayers angrily rejected fresh impositions to make good on over-generous under-funded benefits.

If Canada should go the same way, the blame, says Calvert, rests on the shoulders of the federal government, which set a bad example for provincial governments and Crown corporations to follow.

Calvert is hopeful that if enough young people read his book — and I hope they will — the tide may be turned by public awareness and pressure. If it is the credit must go to him, for his book, Pensions and Survival, will have been the catalyst.

It is unusual to write a follow-up article to a review but I thought the subject sufficiently important to warrant doing so. And all the facts you require to become fully informed are contained in Calvert's book, which was published by the Financial Post and sells for $10.95.

CPR Success Story: Willing to Take Risks

By JAMES MCCOOK

Who needs an additional 438 pages on the Canadian Pacific Railway and its offspring so soon after Pierre Berton's two volumes, The National Dream and The Last Spike? The answer is that Berton stopped workin' on the railroad when the spike was driven in 1885 and left to others the story of the hotels, ocean liners, smelters, air lines and real estate transactions which make CP a modern colossus.

Dr. Lamb tells a cool, detailed and — to an unusual degree — entertaining story. As the CPR is always good for an argument about what it has given Canada and what Canada has given it, the author's opinion might as well have priority. It is:

"Canada was as generous to the Canadian Pacific as it could afford to be when the railway was starting out in life. In return, no single organization has contributed more to the country's development in the 90 years since the vital line linking East and West was completed."

Dr. Lamb's survey of Canadian Pacific achievement is a reminder of the enthisiasm and readiness to take risks with money which marked the CPR construction. The railway builders secured every penny possible from the federal government but they also put their own fortunes on the line.

George Stephen (Lord Mount Stephen) estimated the cost of the railway at $164,454,322. That seemed an alarming amount to the man who obtained so much of the money for construction. In 1971 the name Canadian Pacific Railway was changed to Canadian Pacific Limited to cover the varied interests of a concern with assets soon to exceed $4 billion.

This immense growth was due largely to the vision and ability of senior officers.

Sir William Van Horne, the American who spearheaded the construction, gave an example in paying attention to details. When former Prime Minister Alexander Mackenzie planned a trip on a Great Lakes ship Van Horne sent detailed instructions to the officers. Mackenzie liked his porridge with good milk at breakfast. He liked his food plain but well cooked.

Himself a man who enjoyed the pleasures of the table, Van Horne was a tireless critic of hotels and restaurants under his control. At Field, B.C., he ordered a bottle of French wine at $3.50 and stormed that "it certainly had never been nearer France than Hochelaga and would have been dear at 25 cents."

What we need today are more railroad bosses testing the amenities!

From the start the CP men were quick to take opportunities for profit. In 1888, the railway having made money from sale of lots at Vancouver, Van Horne decided to spend it in building a hotel near the hot springs at Banff.

He helped to design the building, a surprising combination of cheauteau and shooting lodge, and was furious when he found the contractor had faced the building the wrong way, giving the best view to the kitchen. Van Horne at once sketched a rotunda pavilion to be added to the building and rescued the view for the guests. He never failed to rise to an emergency!

In tracing the ramifications of the CP empire, Dr. Lamb gives due attention to the later builders. After Stephen and Van Horne came the rough-tongued Thomas G. Shaughnessy (Lord Shaughnessy), whose time was so precious that he expected his elevator, carrying no other passenger, to be waiting for him each day to take him to his office floor in Montreal.

Sir Edward Beatty as president dreamed of bigger and better ships and railways, but was ensnared in the coils of depression, competition with government-assisted lines and the widening quarrels with labor.

Dr. Lamb counts Norris Crump, who retired in 1972, as one of the outstanding leaders. Member of a railroading family, a veteran of the roundhouse and the officer who forced through the dieselization of the system, Crump made the railway fit the times and hastened the expansion of its interests in other fields.

Dr. Lamb suggests that Crump may be the last of the CP top executives who was born and bred a railwayman; his successor, Ian D. Sinclair, had been the company's chief law officer.

The Canadian Pacific naturally has enjoyed being considered a factor in the unification of Canada and in saving the West from United States expansionism. Van Horne, an American himself, shaded this pleasant picture by saying that the CPR was "built for the purpose of making money for the shareholders and for no other purpose under the sun."

The shareholders have had their worries, especially over the Canadian government's readiness to take over railways which failed under private ownership and are part of the Canadian National Railways.

Dr. Lamb remarks that the CPR feels it has been meeting CNR deficits. CP paid $181,100,000 in income tax in six years, 1966-71, and in the same period the government made "contributions for deficits" to the CNR that totalled $161,700,000.

That makes it seem that in the Canadian Pacific free enterprise is fighting strongly. A pretty sight!

HITE . . . 'throw off shackles'

'Ships That Pass In Night' Spur a Sexual Revolution

By AL FORREST

The Hite Report masquerades as a how-to-do-it sex manual for woman but in fact it is a political document as disturbing, in its way, as the Communist Manifesto.

Women have nothing to lose but their chains of sexual and political slavery, says author Shere Hite.

She has distributed 100,000 lengthy questionnaires and received 3,019 replies. The questions range through the whole gamut of sexuality from physical actions to attitudes.

She makes some startling discoveries.

The main one is that men and women are like two ships passing in the night as far as sex is concerned. When one is just getting around to doing the shopping the other is closing the store for the night.

One is satisfied and the other is not.

The man is happy, the woman is not.

Like everything else in life, Hite says, the woman has been ripped off. She calls it sexual slavery.

She has made other, related discoveries. For one thing there is no such thing as female frigidity — only frigidity in the presence of a male.

For another, women who appear to be frigid with men are not dysfunctional. They are normal. Almost 70 per cent of all women regularly come away from a sexual encounter unsatisfied, although 95 per cent of them can easily be satisfied under other conditions — for example by themselves or with another woman.

It is time, she says, to redefine what is normal.

The sexual revolution has not helped women, only made things worse. There is more mating and this means more occasions when ships are passing in the night.

The solution, she says, is sexual exploration by women. This means a search for new ways of relating physically to men.

Let women relate to other women or to themselves. They know they can find satisfaction there and at least they will not continue to play a subservient role to men. She sees conventional sex as a political put-down for women.

Maybe lesbian is normal, she suggests, and adds that at least it is politically desirable.

She concludes that until women begin to put their own needs first they remain nothing but sexual slaves to men.

The book is written is a lucid, documentary style. It is easy reading, clear and reasonably concise.

Its assumption, however, that woman no longer need men seems somewhat disturbing. And the rather violent language about tossing off the (male) shackles is provocative in the extreme.

Women may well rise up and bid for, not equality, but domination, as suggested in this book.

But if they achieve this end, one wonders where little girls are going to come from to inherit this brave new world?

New Direction in Poetry

By MARILYN BOWERING

Poetry, particularly B.C. poetry, tends to divide along lyric and narrative lines. There are strong adherents to both "schools," each believing their kind is the only "real" poetry.

The narrative school in B.C. tends to concern itself with a macho world of logging, bear-wrestling, and that all-Canadian proving ground — the Northern Pub.

The lyricists, on the other hand, struggle with a landscape peopled by Jungian Animas, Animus', Shadows, and Shaman. Both modes, in the hands of a "real" poet, express something "real," but in the last few years much of both sorts of poetry has been on the near edge of parody. I, for one, have been waiting to see where poetry would go once the Death poets and Muscle poets had autopsied and flexed themselves tired.

Voice My Shaman is an original, new direction, not only in B.C. poetry but in Canadian poetry. Charles Lillard combines the narrative or anecdotal form with the lyric, creating poems of a peculiar emotional toughness and vulnerability. The macho settings are there, but the voice and eye that considers them is both loving and tutored in the classics.

Lillard introduces the book with a quotation from Cezanne: "I could keep myself busy for months without moving from one spot, just by leaning now to the right, now to the left." He approaches "place," which for him is British Columbia (as Ireland was for Yeats, or Spain for Lorca), not in a spirit of regionalism, but of rightness. Where one is, is where one brings to bear all that one knows; by "leaning now to the right, now to the left," changing perspective, the reality of the place becomes known. Wallace Stevens said, "From this the poems spring, that we live in a place that is not our own, and much more, not ourselves." For Lillard the discovery of place is as close as we can come to the discovery of ourselves.

The movement of the book is from more narrative poems to more lyrical poems, though the fusion of both is never lost. The poems work through a journey which is one of time, not travel; from remembrance of things past to learning to escape "the prison our minds made."

Many of the poems begin with a literal placing. Landscape, season, time, and weather are established in a manner that suggests a surveyor's precision, but "It is not enough to have lived/on this coast," says Lillard, "one must have lived past it." The learning means understanding what it means to be "born-in a time/when mythology was possible,/though doubtful," learning from "this history where/men move from bear to wife/mistress to bottle/and back again/never smarter/for the lesson . . ."

The love poems in the book are particularly well done, full of sensual beauty — "Your head is between my hands/and I cry for the moon;/your tongue, a loud fragrance on my lips,/tastes of sea-writhened oak" — and of lines of richness and surprise — "Louse-brown stalks chatter/in the evening wind".

My single criticism of the book relates to a few poems, notably "Baptism," in which the language is overly self-conscious, and the poet, sometimes momentarily, abandons the poem to rhetoric. Happily, this is a rare occurrence.

What is special about Voice My Shaman is the pleasure it gives. Lillard's intelligence is eclectic, engaging, and he knows his craft. The poems are vehicles, never interference, and work in that magic place between eye and brain.
